RECORDS OF THE REGALITY COURT OF MELROSE	1

INTRODUCTION

THE Records of the Regality Court of Melrose dealt with in these volumes bring before us the operation of the system of heritable jurisdiction in Scotland at a time when its powers were waning. Little or no trace has come down to us of the earlier proceedings of the Court in which the Abbot, doubtless invested with larger powers, dealt with the temporal affairs of the Monastery, but the system of government which is illustrated in these pages is one which ran its course through many centuries, and its traces are not yet obliterated in Scotland. It is therefore appropriate that we should give a brief introductory survey of its origin and its gradual development down to its practical extinction in 1747.

Towards the end of the third century of our era we note the earliest movement into the Roman Empire of these bands of invaders of northern or eastern origin, whose incursions grew in frequency and magnitude as the foundations of the older civilisation decayed, until they not only overwhelmed Italy, but, gradually moving across central Europe, obtained a hold on Britain.

The leaders of those invading tribes divided among themselves the territories which they subjugated; and each in his turn subdivided his lands among his soldiers and others who became his vassals or feudatories. In the Leges Barbarorum, or codes of the laws of these tribes or nations, we have a compendium of their legislation with reference to the conquered; and in the Styles of Marculfus, written about the year 660, we have the germs of our early English and Scottish writs and charters. Among these styles, for example, will be found the grant to a duke or count of certain jurisdiction, requiring him to administer equal justice to all within his sphere; a bond of indemnity by a feudal lord to one who has killed another at his instigation; and the form of sale of a serf.¹ The right of possession acquired by these vassals became known by the new term 'Feudum,' anglicé, fee.

Although there are grounds for believing that there were seats of jurisdiction with heritable rights and vassalage in pre-Norman times, we must allow that the introduction of the feudal system into Britain at the time of the Norman Conquest is probably the earliest authenticated source of formal judicial administration in respect of territorial possessions, as what preceded it was more of the communal character. On Anglo-Saxon times we cannot dwell.

The Roman 'villa,' according to some authorities, was the archetype of the manor and barony.² Not only was the English manor formed after the pattern of the Norman barony, which had a Roman origin, but the same features were exhibited in the Scottish barony and regality when the feudal system made its impress upon the south and south-west of Scotland on the establishment of English settlers or knights under the patronage of Scottish sovereigns.

In modern parlance we understand a 'villa' to mean a mere residence, but among the Romans it represented a large landed estate held by some lord or great magnate in whom were vested extensive powers.

Two enclosed courts surrounded the residence of the proprietor. The outer one contained the dwelling of the manorial or baronial officer, the common kitchen where ¹ Marculfus, Formulae, I. c. 8; II. c. 18 and c. 22.

² So Seebohm and others. Many scholars, however, assign to the manor a Germanic origin.

the slaves cooked their food and performed their work, granaries and cellars where the produce of the estate was stored, cells where the slaves slept, and underground dungeons where they might be put in chains. The inner circle or court contained the stables and live stock. Outside the enclosed area the land was worked by the slaves. Besides these slaves there were freemen, holders of allotments of land, who paid tribute to their lord in corn and other produce.¹

Parallel in many respects to the Roman Villa is the English Manor in early times, which has been described as a territorial unit with judicial courts and local customs.

A suggestive survey gives its main features as follows :

(1) Castles and buildings in the demesne within and without the moat, with gardens, curtilages, dovecotes, fish-ponds, fields, and culturae with a certain number of acres of arable land in each culture of meadow and pasture.

(2) Common pasture outside the demesne, on which the lord could place a limited number of beasts, with parks and demesne woods to cultivate and reclaim.

(3) Woods outside the demesne, in which others have common rights with pannage, herbage, honey and all other issues of the forests, woods, moors, heaths, and wastes.

(4) Mills having a monopoly of grinding (thirlage) for the tenants at fixed charges ; fish-ponds, rivers, and fisheries, several and common.

(5) Pleas and perquisites belonging to the county, manor, and forest courts.

(6) Churches belonging to the lord's advowson with heriots, fairs, markets, tolls and day works, services, foreign customs, and gifts, liberties, wardships, reliefs, and yearly fees.

(7) Free tenants holding by socage, military service, fee farm, or 'in eleemosyna,' by charter or not, and doing suit at the lord's court.

(8) Villein tenants, their tallage, day work, customary duties, and rents.

(9) The officials, being the steward of the manor, the praepositus, and the bailiff.

In formal terms a manor has been described as 'an estate forming both a possessory and an administrative unit, with a hall as its administrative centre, having certain lands retained by its owner in his own hands and other portions holden of him by tenants, who were bound by custom to do rent and service to the lord.'¹

A Scottish barony or regality resembled the English manor in all points of constitution. Subinfeudation was restricted in England by Charter 9 Henry III., which provided 'that no man should either grant or sell land without reserving sufficient to answer the demands of his lord'; and by the Statute Quia Emptores, 18 Edward I., it was enacted that 'from henceforth it shall be lawful to every free man to sell at his own pleasure his lands . . . provided nevertheless that the feoffee [subvassal] do hold the same . . . of the chief lord of the same fee.' New manors could only be created by the Crown, and held of the sovereign, but Scotland continued the granting of subfeus.²

The learned contributions of the late Professor Maitland, chiefly published by the Selden Society, and the valuable work now being done by the Manorial Society, which is printing the forms, court rolls, and court books of the Lords of the Manor in England, afford a great deal of information regarding courts of heritable jurisdiction which cannot be obtained from Scottish records.

² For further information on the history of the feudal system, we refer to Sir Thomas Craig, Jus Feudale, and Walter Ross, Lectures on Conveyancing, vol. ii.

It appears that at an early period after the introduction of the feudal system the Scottish lord or chieftain owning estate approximately equivalent to the English manor became known as a baron, but the origin of the title is altogether obscure.¹ The earliest mention of a baron in Scotland that has come to our knowledge is contained in the Charter of David 1. (dating from 1124) giving the lands of Annandale to Robert Bruce.² In a grant by David to Dunfermline, executed in 1125, we have barons mentioned together with earls.³

The powers of barony courts extended to the disposal of civil questions and bloodwits or lesser crimes, fines being exacted, sentences of imprisonment passed, and, even in some cases, when expressed in the grant under which they were constituted, capital punishment might be inflicted. It has, however, to be kept in view that these courts with all their powers were the outcome of a composite and gradual evolution during several centuries when lawlessness was more or less prevalent. Such terms as lord of regality, baron, sheriff, steward, etc., are hardly capable of rigid definition as they were more or less subject to a process of change. What might be at one time a rude custom would sooner or later develop into a more formal practice, with laws and regulations of control. While, therefore, adopting generally the strict definitions of our institutional writers, we have to keep in view the elastic character of all these offices.

The development of a lavish system of granting heritable jurisdiction to favoured vassals latterly led to great abuses, for the lower courts were parcelled out among the Lords of Regality and Barons, and even sheriffships were frequently vested by heritable succession in the great landowners. This kind of grant arose at an early date and was not soon checked as in England. It is found in its fullest and most objectionable form 'in the charter by Robert Bruce to his nephew Thomas Randolph of the Earldom of Moray, where even the ancient free boroughs of the Kingdom are included within the king's grant to his favoured tenant in capite.'¹ This system led to the overlapping of judgments, conflict between the courts and even with the Crown. Finally, under the Heritable Jurisdiction Act already referred to, the powers of these courts were restricted and the administration of the law fell more directly under the control of the Supreme Courts and the Crown. A large sum was then paid to the holders as compensation for the loss of revenue.

The barony courts, as later known, even when they had the privilege of capital punishment, were not of the same extent and importance as the courts of a judge ordinary, such as a sheriff, steward, bailie of royalty, regality or burgh: the barons were subordinate to the sheriff and other judges ordinary within whose jurisdiction the lands lay. Their decreets could not be executed by hornings, but only by poindings and corporal punishment. Their courts were not courts of record in which writs could be registered, so that no recorded deeds in barony court proceedings have been preserved.²

Though resting under more restrictions than other courts, the barony courts had on the other hand this advantage, that all the profits, fines, and other emoluments belonged to the baron himself. Sheriffs, stewards, and bailies of royalty, as they presided over royal courts, were accountable to the sovereign alone. The bailies of regality, like the baron courts, were not accountable to any one for their ingatherings, because though they held royal courts the Crown had specially gifted the profits of the court to the vassal by the charter of erection of the regality. A grant of regality covered much higher powers than that of a baron, although it might chance, subsequent to the period when barons became peers of the kingdom, that a lord of regality or his bailie was not a titled superior.

A regality has therefore been described as ‘a separate little kingdom carved out of the realm, where a great man was indulged with a gift of supreme authority’;¹ or, again, the lord of regality has been defined as a magistrate who had a grant of lands from the sovereign with royal jurisdiction annexed thereto.² In other words, it was a grant under which the sovereign devolved all his royal rights upon the grantee, including the power to exercise capital punishment and the power to deal with all crimes except treason. The civil jurisdiction of the lord of regality was thus often equal to that of the sheriff, his criminal jurisdiction to that of the justiciary, as it included the four points or pleas of the Crown and every crime except treason.

The powers of the lord of regality were so extensive that he had even the right to appear before the sheriff or justiciar and demand that any culprit who dwelt within his jurisdiction should be sent back to be judged and dealt with by him. He was, however, obliged to find caution that he would do justice within a year and a day on the malefactor whom he repledged. This caution was called ‘Culreach.’³

The constitution of a regality is illustrated in the letters of bailliary by the Abbot of Melrose in 1535, given

Another interesting example of such grants is to be found in the Charter of Sprouston, which contains the verdict of an inquest held by Robert I., declaring Sprouston to have the proper rights, powers, and customs of a regality. Through the kindness of Dr. George Neilson, Glasgow, we are permitted to print this charter.

Robert, by the Grace of God, King of the Scots, to all good men of all his land, greeting. Know ye that we have examined and truly comprehended the inquest made according to our command in presence of our sheriff of Roxburgh by good and faithful men of the same sheriffdom concerning the liberties, customs, and services of the lordship of Sproustone, and rendered to our chapel in these words :—

Inquest made at Roxburgh on the Saturday following the feast of St. Peter ad Vincula² in the year of grace 1320, to wit—With what liberties, customs and free services did the Lord de Vescy formerly hold the entire tenement of Sproustone, by Willaim de Rule, Adam de Rule, Peter de Aldroxburgh, John de Lilliscleif, Robert (de) Wodfurde, Patrick de Langneutone, Thomas the fuller, William de Sprowistone, John son of Adam, Galfridus the clerk, Hadulphus Fossart, Adam de Cavertone and Alexander de Chattow : who, being sworn, unanimously declare that the Lord de Vescy formerly held the whole tenement of Sproustone like a king's holding by the same liberties as the Lord Alexander, King of Scotland, beforetime held all his other lands of the same kingdom and by the customs,—that none of his men of the tenement of Sproustone shall pay tax within the boroughs of Scotland for selling their own private goods or buying for their own private use; but yet if the said men shall have sold anything or bought anything for their own use and sold that same thing for their own profit in trade, they shall pay tax; and that the said Lord de Vesey shall have in the said tenement of Sproustone his own justiciary, chamberlain, chancellor, coroners, serjeants for the said Lord de Vesey to hold after the manner of a king and even to maintain his own measures independently whatsoever they be, after the manner of the said lord, King of Scotland. In testimony of which matter the seal of the sheriff of Roxburgh is appended together with the seals of William de Roule, Alexander de Chattow, Hugo de Roule, and Galfridus the clerk, who were present at the said inquest.

We, therefore, wishing to bestow on Robert de Broys our son the lordship belonging to us of all the aforesaid tenement of Sproustone, give, grant, and by this our present charter confirm the said lordship to the same Robert to be held and had by himself and his heirs lawfully begotten of his body as freely and peacefully, fully and honorably, with all liberties, benefits, free services, customs and easements in everything and by everything as the above inquest more freely and peacefully, more fully and more honorably bears and testifies, on the said Robert and his aforesaid heirs performing to us and our heirs the service thence due and customary in the times of our predecessors, kings of Scotland. In testimony of which matter we have ordered our seal to be affixed to our present charter : witnesses : Bernard Abbot of Abirbrothock, our chancellor, Thomas Ranulph, Earl of Moray, Lord of Annandale and Mann, Walter, steward of Scotland, James, Lord of Douglas, Alexander de Setone and Robert de Lawedre, knights.

At Berwick on Tweed, the last day of January, the fifteenth year of our reign.

In connection with the recognition of Sprouston as a regality, we find mention of it in an inquisition held at Roxburgh by order of King Edward I. (2nd January 1304) upon the death of William de Chartres. The land of Appletreerig was declared to be his by right of inheritance, and we read ‘cele terre est tenuz del regal de Sprouston par le service de un esperver “blanc” ou v. sous a la volunte du donour.’¹

A baron, while he had power to deal with civil actions relating to debt and possessions, was restricted in criminal matters in so far as he could not deal with cases of treason and the four pleas of the Crown, which, as we have already recorded, were committed to the king’s judges or lords of regality. The baron could, however, punish theft by capital punishment,² which fact may perhaps account for the occurrence so frequently of gallows hills near to the seats of barony as well as regality courts.

No recorded laws or rules regulating a regality court have been handed down to us, because such courts were controlled by the arbitrary powers of the lord of regality; but in the Regiam Majestatem we have a law, attributed to William the Lion, and dated 1180, giving the form and manner of holding a baron court, and in a general way we may assume that what regulated a barony would also control a regality court, though it had not the same royal supervision.

The law to which we refer is rendered in the old Scottish vernacular as follows:—

‘The assise maid at Strivelyn the mononday next befor the fest of sanct Margaret the madin next eftir the first crounement of schir Philip king of France throw common consent of prelatis erlis and barounis and fre haldaris. That nouthir bischopis na abbotis na zit erlis na barounis na ony fre haldaris sal hald thar courtis bot gif the kingis schireff or his servand be thar or sommond to be thar for to se that the court be rychtuisly led. And gif the kingis schireff quhen he is sommonde to the court of baronis cumis nocht na zit sendis ony kingis servand it sal be leffull than to the baroun his court lauchfully till halde withoutyn the kingis forfalt and that be done throw lele wytnes. And of al othir maner of querellis ilke freman that court hes sal haf al thingis that fallys therof saufand the kingis amercyment. Item thar has na baroune leyff to hald court of lyf and lym as of jugement of bataile or of watir or of het yrn bot gif the schireff or his servand be thar at to se gif justice be truly keptit thar as it aw to be.¹

In 1197 these minor courts were regulated further by an ordinance passed at Perth, in which the great barons were pledged neither to support law-breakers nor take money for the remission of crimes. If they failed in their duties they were to forfeit for ever the right of holding a court.²

We find that while the ecclesiastical court pronounced sentence of death upon a criminal the execution of the sentence was delegated to the civil authority or bailies.³

Among the earliest grants of heritable jurisdiction which we have traced is that of Alexander I. in 1124, in which he gave to the prior and brethren of the church of the Holy Trinity at Scone the right to hold courts and appoint ordeals of hot iron, water, etc.⁴

David I. in 1126 granted to the monks of St. Cuthbert at Durham the lands of Coldingham and others in that neighbourhood.⁵ This charter is important in respect that it gives the grant in detail and links us with the ecclesiastical court held on Homelecnol, to which we shall refer later.

⁴ Liber Eccl. S. Trinitatis de Scon, No. 4, p. 4.

⁵ Raine, North Durham, Appendix, No. xv. p. 4.

In the charter we find the following words :—

‘Cum sacca et socca et toll et team et infangethef et cum omnibus terris et silvis et equis et fracturis navium et cum omnibus consuetudinibus liberas et quietas ab omni opere et servitio,’ etc.

There are to be found in other charters grants of blood-wit, outfangthef, furca et fossa and other rights, but the above is the earliest charter relating to Scotland we have been able to discover containing in detail the powers exercised by a lord of regality or baron.

Some explanation of the terms may be of interest and value.

Sac or sacca was a corruption of sacu, and meant the right to deal with litigious questions.

Soc meant a liberty, privilege, or franchise granted to a subject, or the district over which jurisdiction was exercised.¹ Briefly sac and soc meant litigation and jurisdiction.²

Tol or Thol appears to have been the right of the grantee to exact custom or customary payments for goods entering, passing out of, or carried through his lands.³

Team meant warranty or pledge. In England the expression was ‘frank pledge,’ which covered a sort of mutual bond of security between grantee, vassals, and others. It might be latterly expressed in the language of our Regality Court records as ‘good neighbourhood,’ and of old was an attempt to remedy the insecurity of life and property.⁴

Infangethef meant the right to punish the thief caught ‘with the fang’ within the jurisdiction of the grantee.

Outfangthef was the power to follow a felon with the fang beyond the soc or jurisdiction, with a view to bringing him to justice in the grantee's court. These two rights carried with them the power to exact fines and to secure the movable estate of the thief (escheats) or attach the heritable estate; so that these pecuniary benefits made the grant of a regality or barony the more desirable.

Bloodweir meant jurisdiction in cases of assault where blood was shed: the 'weir' meant the fine exacted and payable to the lord of the court.

Furca et Fossa. Fossa meant of old the ordeal of testing the culprit's guilt or innocence by immersion in water: if the accused sank he was innocent, if he was guilty he swam. The belief was that pure water could not retain a perjurer.¹ Furca designated the gallows on which he was hanged when found guilty. Latterly the expression furca et fossa covered the barons' right of pit and gallows or jurisdiction in life and limb, or power to hang men and drown women. The charter already quoted refers to 'hot iron,' and it may be explained that this meant the treading upon or holding red hot iron.² The ordeals of ferrum and fossa were abolished by Alexander II. in 1230, c. 6.³

In the reign of David I. all greater magnates attended in person the royal moots every forty days, while in William's reign these became sheriffs' moots.⁴ From this time forth the privilege of a regality was confined to the greater barons or clergy, upon whom it was conferred by grant from the sovereign. In the case of the clergy the abbot or prior appointed a deputy or bailie to hold the court, and this deputy was generally the most powerful proprietor in the district. He in turn appointed a bailie depute, who sat in the court, heard the cases, and pronounced his interlocutors. To exact rents and other dues from a needy tenantry, a baron's bailie would often have to play a most ungracious rôle, as is suggested in a jeu d'esprit of the seventeenth century (ascribed to a certain Patrick Anderson, physician in Edinburgh), which pictures the court of a Scottish baron, the homely fashion of its procedure, and the subserviency of the bailie to the impecunious laird and his lady.

'The Copie of a Baron's Court. Newly translated by What 's-You-Call-Him, Clerk to the Same. Printed at Helicon, beside Parnassus, and are to be sold in Caledonia.'

I. In the first scene the Bailie appears in answer to a summons from the Baron, who has awkward pecuniary difficulties to face.

BARON. Some disappointments makes me malcontent,
I cannot live, and live not on my rent :
My court and jurisdiction is as free
As any not exceeding my degree,
And you, Sir Bailie, know that I can do it,
My old infettments lead me justly to it.

BAILIE. Not to offend your worship in effect,
I dare be bold, it is your own neglect ;
Your predecessors, of good memory,
Did manage matters with audacity ;
Your power, Sir, is not a whit abridg'd,
Nor yet was theirs more amply privileg'd.

BAR. You 're right indeed : and I forsooth resent it,
And possibly shall make some to repent it.

BAIL. Sir, hold a Court, that we may clearly see
Th' alleg'd abuses of the barony.
Go, Officer, and warn the tenants in,
And where we ended let us now begin.
If with your worship's pleasure it could rest
To countenance the court, yourself, 'twere best.

BAR. Go to, Sir Bailie, for I must confess
You are sufficient for the business ;
I'll to the hunting : Hey, dogs ! Hey, dogs ! Hey !
Great pity 'twere to lose so brave a day.

II. Bailie, Chamberlain, etc.

BAILIE . . . Is your book about you ?

CHAM. A Psalm-Book, Sir ? . . .

BAIL. It is your book, man, of receipts I mean.

CHAM. Excuse me, Sir, it was by me mista'en ;

What needs a book of that kind or condition ?

I have discharges of my intromission.

BAIL. That 's not the matter : I would only see

The count of rest,¹ if any rests there be.

The Laird complains, and hath some cause I trow,

At Whitsunday his worship hath ado,

And yet his mails and duties come not in Till that the calends of the next year rin.

This stains his credit, damnifies his state,

And this abuse is bred but of the late.

CHAM. The roomes are rental'd to so high avail

The tenants termly cannot pay their hail.

The bygone years, you know, Sir, have been ill.

BAIL. They do not so, you 'll grant, continue still.

CHAM. I cannot help't : I poind, arrest, remove,

And all I do is for the Laird's behoove.

III. Lady, Bailie, Chamberlain, Clerk, Officer.

OFF. Madam, the members of the court are met ;

All is not right, the Chamberlain doth fret.

LADY. Where are they now ?

OFF. Below into the hall.

LADY. Incontinent I will go see them all.

BAIL. God save your Lordship !

LADY. And you, Sir Bailie.

The Laird hath won, and you must pay the failzie.

BAIL. What is the matter ?

LADY. I did lay a eroun

You should not come before the day at noon.

BAIL. But I durst lay the best ox in my plough, Madam, your tenants think it soon enow.

LADY. Good Bailie, fleg them, fleg them, fleg them thieves,

They multiply upon us termly grieves ;

It 's Lammas now, and yet we want our ferm.

My husband bought a fleet horse at the term,

And I myself did sell a score of hogs
 To buy three couple of these English dogs,
 In case the Laird with caption were prest,
 He may hunt on to Berwick with the best.

To make him free I will'd him sell a town,
 Though of the worth he would give somewhat down ;
 It 's misery to see a man so set
 To rack his rental, and obscure his debt.
 This is my verdict till the day I die,
 A man hath no more rent nor he hath free.

IV. Lady, Bailie, Clerk, Officer, Tenants.

OFF. Sir Bailie, all the tenants are conven'd.

BAIL. Clerk, fence the court. TEN. The great God be our friend ;

For anything that we can see or say
 No mercy is for none of us this day.

CLERK. Silence : I fence, and I forbid in plain,
 In the behalf of our dread sovereign
 And in the name of the right honourable
 The Laird and Bailie, sitting at this table,
 That none presume to speak, though for a friend,
 Unless that leave be asked, and obtain'd.

BAIL. Go forward quickly, and read on the rolls,
 That we may know the rest of farn year's bolls.¹

CLERK. John Peterson, John Paterson, John Dunkison, John Davison,
 Tom Taylor, and his brother,
 Will Waker and his mother,
 The old good-wife, and her son Gibbie,
 John Jameson and stinking Tibbie,
 The Over-town, and Nether-town,
 The Wester-town, and Cottar-town,
 The Foul-Foord, and the Miln-town,
 Brank forment him, and the Hill-town,
 The Mutton Hole, and Reek thou there,
 The Windy-Walls, and Whissell-Bare.

OFF. They are all present. TEN. Here, Sir Bailie, here,
 We cannot run no faster to repair.

BAIL. John Davison, come tell me what 's your rest,
For you are one I know can pay it best.

J. D. Rest, said you, Bailie ? Marry, God be lo'ed,
My neighbours kens I get but little o' it.

BAIL. Behold that villain rightly understands,
And yet unrightly answers my demands.
I must speak Scots : Swinger, let it be shawen
Into the court what thou art justly awen.

J. D. My awen, I thank you, little or nothing
Was ever mine since you began to reign.

OFF. The Laird is 'lighted, for it 's more nor noon,
And ask'd at me if that the Court was done.

BAIL. Intreat his worship humbly to come in,
He 's come in time ; I pray thee, fellow, rin.
Your worship 's welcome ; I have been full near Your Bailie, Sir, I think this twenty year,
And yet such knavery did I never see Under pretext of plain simplicity ;
John Davison, as each man hears and sees
He cuts me off with amphibologies.

J. D. To tell you, Sir, the clipped veritie,
I had a stag, a bonny beast to see ;
Our good young master, the young Laird I mean,
In a good time he coft¹ him here yestreen ;
Whose price he said his father would allow,
And this completes my bygone mails I trow.

BAR. Pass from him, Bailie, for this time ; I swear
If that I chance to live another year
I'll teach them better manners. Clerk, call on.

BAIL. Call on the tenants of old Whisell-Bare.
How now ? I think I see none of them there :
Cause note them absent. Windy-Walls compear,
What are ye resting for the foresaid year ?

TEN. More nor our room can pay, as you well ken,
If you exact 't we are but herried men.

BAIL. I cannot let these crafty villains pass.

Go, Officer, and poind them, man by man,
I'll meet their craft the best way that I can.

Call on the tenants of the Over-town.

TEN. Here's our discharges, Bailie.

BAIL. Lay them down;
They rest nothing indeed.

BAR. Go take them in,
And with the best ale roundly pack their skin.
These are the lads that I may lippen till—
Go to your dinners, eat and drink your fill.

OFF. The rest, Sir Bailie, have discharges too.

BAIL. That likes me well; we have the less ado.

Unlaw the absents, and see that ye poind
The tenants resting, as you was enjoind.

CLERK. Sir Bailie, please, you have not ended all;
There are some bills yet of complaint to call.

BAIL. Be short then, Clerk, I cannot stay, say on.

CLERK John Dunkison against John Davidson.

BAIL. John Davidson, he is a pawky knave,
He doth molest us more than all the lave.

J. D. I never had a pack in all my life,
But one, I wasted wooing of my wife.

BAIL. Your worship hears; who can abide his mocks?

BAR. Go, Officer, and put him in the stocks.

CLERK. As also, Bailie, here poor Maggie Beans Upon Will Waggrels heavily complains.

Maggie Beans, having received bad barley seed from
Will, is awarded damages for the failure of her crop.

LADY. Now for my interest, Bailie, I compear,
We have a kid-thief to our Webster here;
A greater knave lives not I think nor he,
Cause punish him, and that exemplarily.

WEBSTER. Bailie! now for the love of God, but hear me.

BAIL. What would you say? stand by, let him come near me.

WEB. It's not so much for any imputation
The Lady hath unto my occupation,
As for my daughter, who but went away
Out of her service the last Whitsunday,
Who at her going, when she crav'd her fee,
The Lady lock'd a gown up privily,

Which was into my daughter's keeping, so
 Her fee thus poinded, she got leave to go :
 Judge you, Sir Bailie, for I cannot read,
 If this be not a crying sin indeed.

BAIL. If that be true, I think, Madam, you wrong him.

LADY. I know as much, Sir Bailie, as would hang him.

BAIL. Into this ground you shall no longer sit,
 Wherefore I warn you presently to flit.

OFF. Go get you gone in time, if you be wise,
 Lest you pass to the knowledge of assize.

Then Bailie and Clerk discuss the lack of good servants in these days.

CLERK. The steward, cook and brewster now are one ;
 All gallant fellows to the wars are gone.
 In one man's person this pluralitie
 Makes men indeed to crave a larger fee ;
 And lady's gentlewomen, as they call them,
 A world of gifts must nowadays befall them :
 To sew, to spin, weave pearline and knit shanks,
 To page the laird, and win the steward's thanks ;
 She must be rare in all these handy trades,
 Cast off her gown and syne go make the beds.
 At all occasions she must still be ready,
 Or else she is not meet to serve my lady.

BAIL. Clerk, by your leave, I'll teach the Laird a trick.
 Requests you see instead of press go thick ;
 Offer unto some captain two or three
 Of yeomen, men within the barony ;
 By violence ere they aboard be brought They'll rather stay and serve the Laird for nought.

TEN. Bailie, forsooth your counsel ay was good,
 And heavy curse we give you to conclude.

BAIL. Your worship will take yon for me I trow.

BAR. Such casualties belong to you.

BAIL. Sir, I request you for the Clerk provide them.

CLERK. Nay rather, Sir, betwixt you two divide them.

LADY. Clerks ay were knaves ; take up your books and gilt,
 You fash the Laird ; your dinner, Sir, is spilt.

BAR. Up stay the plough, and let us kill a mouse,
 I and the Bailie must have one carouse.

In this skit, interspersed with much that is irrelevant, we see the respective duties of the officials, the 'fencing' of the Court, the reading of the rolls, and the nature and conduct of the suits.

Turning to England we shall find a very similar order of rule. There was not a definite classification of courts until about the beginning of Edward 1.'s reign, when under his rigorous quo warranto inquiry they were divided into two grades. These were, on the one hand, the franchises and regalities (libertates and regalia), both of which the king maintained could only exist in the hands of a subject by virtue of a grant from the Crown, and on the other such jurisdiction as was comprised in the possession of a manor or the mere fact of having tenants.¹ Professor Maitland gives examples of the petty offences dealt with by these courts: The customary tenants had shirked from boon works or done their ploughing badly, others had been guilty of petty misdemeanours, one man had committed an assault, another was not in frankpledge, a woman had broken the assize of beer, another had made too free a use of the English for 'meretrix' and so forth. In later times the English courts branched out in different directions, and the duties devolving upon the judges of such courts were correspondingly varied in character. Comparing the administrative powers of manorial and regality or barony courts, we may conclude that the laws of the two countries were at early periods practically the same,² and that the offences with which their respective courts dealt were similar in nature.

In studying the evolution of heritable jurisdiction, we can trace how the powers and rights of regality and barony courts were defined by various statutes and Acts of Parliament.

By 7 James I. 1427, c. 2,¹ small barons and freeholders were exempted from attending Parliament, a provision probably copied from England from King John's Charter of Privileges, Secs. 17 and 18.² Following this no freeholder under £20 per annum was required to attend.³ Next we have all barons and freeholders above one hundred merks ordained only to send their procurators,⁴ and finally the commissioners of small barons and freeholders were given a vote in Parliament.⁵ Subsequent Acts regulated their attendance in Parliament.⁶

Various Acts of Parliament were passed regulating or curtailing the powers of the Lord of Regality and his officials. Thus on 27th May 1432 three statutes were enacted, two dealing with those who executed the law beforehand, and those who refused to execute the law, and the third ordaining all officials to have wands and horns;⁷ while on 22nd October 1436 an Act was passed regarding the selling of thieves by the Lords of Regality.⁸ By the fifteenth century the grants of regality were so extensive as to interfere with the royal prerogative, and in consequence it was enacted in 1455 that no regality could be granted except by Parliament.⁹ This Act was qualified by the Act 1617, c. 12, to the extent that when any party held an heritable right of jurisdiction, etc., for forty years, though not granted with consent of Parliament, he secured an unchallengeable prescriptive right. In subsequent Acts of Parliament we find further regulation and restriction of regality and barony powers, until finally the Act of George II., c. 43 (1747), abolished all heritable jurisdictions.

The sites upon which these Courts were held in early times, and the remains which aid us in their identification, form a branch of our inquiry which must not be passed over. Dr. Neilson¹ and Mrs. Armytage² have shown that when the original wooden castle of the Norman baron, built on some natural or artificial mound, gave place in course of time to a stone building, erected it might be on the same spot or elsewhere, the mound, the original gathering-place, usually remained at least for some time longer the seat of jurisdiction, where sasine was given and other functions performed.

The Norman mote or mound was of varying heights, twenty, thirty, forty, up to about an hundred feet. It bore round the summit a breastwork or rampart of earth, enclosing a small court, which was surrounded by a stockade of timber and surmounted by a wooden tower, as shown in the Bayeux Tapestry. The base was surrounded by a ditch, while at the base of the mound there was a court much larger than the small space enclosed on the top of the mound. This bailey, court, or barrack was also surrounded by a ditch connecting it with the ditch of the mound so that the hill fortification was enclosed and the court protected by earthworks. Such castella and fortifications on these mounds in Scotland were erected to overawe the Celtic inhabitants and subdue them to the Crown, as we find stated in Benedict of Peterborough's Chronicle, which narrates in the year 1174 that 'the men of Galloway drove out all the bailiffs and guards whom the King of Scotland had set over them ; they slew all the English and French whom they could lay hold of ; they besieged, took, and destroyed all the fortifications and castella which the King of Scotland had made in their land, and slew all they found within.’¹ To Dr. J. H. Round is due the honour of proving that the castellum was at this date a fortified enceinte of earthwork and wooden erections.² An interesting description of one of these wooden castles, situated at Merchem, near Dixmude, Belgium, is contained in a passage in the life of Bishop John of Terouenne, written about 1130, by John de Collemedis. This has been discovered by Mr. G. T. Clark, who gives the following translation :³ ‘ It chanced that in a town called Merchem, Bishop John had a guest-house. There was also close to the court of the church a strong place, which might be regarded as a castle or a municipium, very lofty, built after the fashion of the country by the lord of the town many years ago. For it was customary for the rich men and nobles of those parts, because their chief occupation is the carrying on of feuds and slaughters, in order that they may in this way be safe from enemies, and may have the greater power for either conquering their equals or keeping down their inferiors, to heap up a mound of earth as high as they were able, and to dig round it a broad, open, and deep ditch, and to girdle the whole upper end of the mound, instead of a wall, with a barrier of wooden planks stoutly fixed together with numerous turrets set round. Within was constructed a house or rather citadel, commanding the whole, so that the gate of entry could only be approached by a bridge, which, first springing from the counterscarp of the ditch, was gradually raised as it advanced, supported by sets of piers, two, or even three, trussed on each side over convenient spans, crossing the ditch with a managed ascent so as to reach the upper level of the mound, landing at its edge on a level at the threshold of the gate.' This striking description coincides with what has been observed in the vestiges of certain moated mounds in Galloway and in Scotland generally, and is borne out in illustrations of the Bayeux Tapestry.

It has been shown by Dr. Neilson that in some baronial demesnes there are two distinct mounds, one the seat of the castle, the other the seat of the court of the lord, thus demonstrating that the original site of the baronial residence had been abandoned for a new one while the administration of justice remained fixed in the older. Dr. Neilson gives a list of motes which were the site of the chief messuage of baronies in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, a great number of which he finds, from entries in the Retours, the Register of the Great Seal, and elsewhere, were seats of justice or places where sasine of a barony was taken ; ¹ but this list, he expressly states, is far from exhaustive. Many more instances can be traced through the public records and otherwise. The subject, we may say, is still in its infancy.

The well-known Tynwald Hill in the Isle of Man with its courts probably affords one of the best examples in Britain of a mote as an early seat of jurisdiction. The first syllable of the word, 'tin' or 'ting,' signifies 'a court.' Near the county town of Dumfries there is a small village of the same name, Tinwald, in reference to which it is remarked in the New Statistical Account of Scotland, "'Tings" or courts are well known to have been held in the open air ; and immediately adjoining the church here, there is a mound which a few years ago was perfectly entire, but is now ¹ much defaced, evidently artificial, and said to bear a striking resemblance to one bearing the same name in the Isle of Man, upon which local courts were held until a very recent period.' In Shetland we find a place-name of the same derivation, Tingwall, and records have been preserved in Kirkwall of 'tings' or courts, held at 'Heid Stanes.'² Their functions were to confirm lands to the Udal heir and to deal with minor criminal cases and village grievances of various kinds, just as our Regality Court Records contain services of heirs (Retours), and the settlement of local questions. The president of a court, or 'ting,' was the representative of the jarl, and sat in his place just as the bailie depute sat for the lord of regality or baron.

Turning again to the mainland of Scotland, we must first mention the mote at Scone, a rising ground or hillock known as the Mount of Belief,³ where the kings were crowned and where they held many courts. Parliament met there in September 1227,⁴ on 5th February 1283-4,⁵ in 1286,⁶ on 10th February 1292-3,⁷ on 23rd February 1301-2,⁸ and on many other occasions. Robert II. was crowned there on 26th March 1371, and met his prelates, earls, barons, etc. on the following day 'in the Royal seat upon the Mount at Scone.'⁹ On 7th March 1390-1 Robert III. held a parliament there.¹⁰ Palgrave's statement that this most ancient landmark in Scotland had been removed,—'the great pyramid of Scotland, destroyed by the landscape gardener to adorn the view from the drawing-room window,'¹ is fortunately incorrect. The editor through the kindness of Lord Mansfield has been permitted to examine this most important royal mote, and has the pleasure of stating that it is still in good preservation.

Fordun says regarding it that Scotland was prior to the time of Malcolm II. divided into thanages or fee farms, paying rent to the Crown, but Malcolm remitted the rents and gave away the whole kingdom, only reserving to himself the mote hill of Scone,² in return for which the people gave him the feudal rights of 'ward,' 'marriage,' and 'relief.' No manuscript of this enactment is extant earlier than Fordun, who wrote, according to Skene, 1384-7. Following Fordun, Skene gives us the striking preamble of the Leges Malcolmi MacKenneth, which says:—

'1. King Malcolme gaue and distributed all his lands of the Realm of Scotland amongst his men.

'2. And reserved na thing in propertie to himselfe, bot the royal dignitie, and the Mute-hill in the towne of Scone.

'3. And all his barons gaue and granted to him, the warde and releif of the heirs of ilk Baron, quhen he sould happen to deceis for the King's sustentation.'³

Though the Regiam Majestatem has been almost universally condemned as apocryphal and shown to be an adaptation or almost a copy of Glanvil,⁴ yet we agree with E. W. Robertson when he states that there are probably some grains of truth lurking under the above statement. Walter Ross,⁵ one of our ablest writers on conveyancing, also gives weight to these laws, chiefly on the ground that they were revised and altered by Parliament on

14th March 1425-6,¹ and acknowledged to have been the authentic law of the country by special Act of Parliament in 1487,² and again by Statute 1633.³ We have also some support for the statement in this preamble, which most students view so sceptically, from the Book of Deer, our oldest Scottish writing, where we find that Malcolm II. (Maelcolouim, son of Cinead) gave a grant of the king's 'share' in Bibdin and Pett (possibly Biffie and an old Mill on the Ugie).⁴

In a precept of sasine, dated 14th July 1456, granted by John, first Lord Lindsay of the Byres, in favour of Robert Innes of the lands of Aberchirder, there is a special reservation of 'le karnem de monte castri' and an acre of land for the holding of courts.⁵ At Innes, according to the account of the family of Innes by Duncan Forbes, written in 1698, there was 'a small hillock befor the Barrass-gate of Innes, upon which Sir Alexander received his honours, which to this day is called the Knights hillock.'⁶

In the Stewartry of Strathern there are a good many mounds which were the centres of jurisdiction. The king's steward held his court in 1320 at the 'Skait' or Stayt, which was a mound on the lands called the Broich (Bordland), Crieff,⁷ where on numerous occasions courts were held and documents executed.⁸ Unfortunately this mound was levelled down in November 1860,⁹ but the gallows hill, referred to by Sir Walter Scott as the 'Kind Gallows,'¹⁰ where the criminals condemned at these courts were executed, is still in evidence, with a tree on its summit, at the south-west end of the town beside the cattle mart and a little west of the site of the other mound.

The mound at Hund Hill, Longforgan, is specially interesting, as there is (or lately was) preserved among the papers of Sir Patrick Keith Murray of Ochtertyre the earliest known minute of a baron court in Scotland,¹ held there by Sir Patrick Gray on 16th January 1384-5. The original grant by Robert II. on 11th February 1373-4 to Patrick Gray contains a clause requiring the third of the service of one knight, thus indicating jurisdiction and courts.² Though these lands are situated at a considerable distance from Crieff, they in later times formed, and still form, part of the holdings of the family of Ochtertyre who held the heritable jurisdiction.

South of the Forth, motes are more plentiful in the west than the east of Scotland. The mound at Castle Law near the Hirsell, Coldstream, is the only mote hill recorded in Berwickshire by the Royal Commission on Ancient and Historical Monuments in Scotland.³ It is very well preserved, and seems to have been connected with the old barony of Darnchester. The ruins of a castle are close to it. Prior Aernaldus of Coldingham we note, whose tomb and stone coffin are still to be found at the priory there, held a court on Homelenoll about 1202-8.⁴ There Henry de Prendergest granted two discharges before the whole court of Coldingham.⁵ This mound, which is about a hundred to a hundred and fifty feet high, stands close to the sea at Coldingham Bay. Coldingham Law, which is near to the Priory, has a circular rampart round the top after the usual fashion of Norman motes, and leading from the main road near is found an old disused road to the Gallowshill, which immediately suggests to us the sinister connection in olden times between the seats of judgment and speedy execution. On the south side of the Tweed, in front of Makerston House, Roxburghshire, is a mote known locally as the Pleahill, where courts are said to have been held. Here it might be suggested were held the courts of the barony of Maxton, which adjoined the regality of Melrose.

The earliest reference we have discovered to them is in the time of David I., when a certain Thomas de London who had married a Margaret Lovel obtained a grant of the Manor of Lessuden or St. Boswell.¹ She, with consent of her husband, Thomas de London, and her son by a former marriage, Henry Lovel, in the time of William the Lion (1165-1264) granted to the monks of Jedburgh the lands of Ughtredesxaghe.² Henry Lovel was in possession of the barony of Hawick in 1166, when he is mentioned as a witness,³ and again in 1190.⁴ His eldest son, Ralf, having died without issue, the widow, in 1207, claimed her dower and renounced the Scottish Barony of Hawick.⁵ The younger son, Henry, having succeeded to the barony, died prior to 30th August 1255,⁶ his son Richard was served heir to him and obtained the barony.⁷ Richard Lupellus (Lovel), 'Lord of Hawick,' son of Henry, excambed certain lands for two oxengang in Branche-ulla (Bransholm).⁸ Richard, having died without issue, was succeeded by his brother Hugh, who, in 1264, had some litigation with his sisters,⁹ and was in possession of the barony in 1268 in the reign of Henry III.¹⁰ Hugh, having died before 16th June 1291, was succeeded by his son who was in minority. His estates were placed under the charge of John de Soules,¹¹ whose daughter he married as it afterwards appears. His heir, Richard Lovel, swears to serve against France on 10th June 1297.¹² He is mentioned in a roll of knights, etc., in 1298,¹³ and on 28th July 1301.¹⁴ On 1st September 1302¹⁵ he finds two men at arms to support Edward I. He receives ten marks on 15th April 1306 for assisting Edward to put down Robert the Bruce.¹⁶ He seems to have left Scotland about this time, for Robert the Bruce gave the lands of Bransholm, in the Barony of Hawick, which belonged to Sir Richard Lovel, to Sir Henry Baliol.¹⁷ On 4th January 1310-11 the King (of England) gives him the Manor of Wyn-firthegele in exchange for the manor of Old Roxburgh, belonging to Muriella, his wife, heiress of John de Soules.¹⁸ He was valet to Edward II., and obtained

Mr. A. O. Curle, has recently cleared out the ditch around this mote in several places, and among other objects discovered a coin of the reign of Henry II., thus fixing the residential occupation of the mote in the twelfth or thirteenth century, when we have seen Henry Lovel held the barony. After the lands were forfeited by the

a charter in 1316 of the lands of Sir John Soules in Dumfries and the manor of Old Roxburgh as husband of Sir John's daughter,¹ but Old Roxburgh was retained by the king for the safety of Roxburgh Castle, and Richard Lovel and his wife got a grant of the Manor of Bradenach in Devon in exchange.² He was evidently deprived of the Barony of Hawick, for in the reign of David II. (1329-71), Mauritius de Moravia, Earl of Strathern, had a grant of this barony.³ Thomas(?) Murray had a grant of it, and also of Sprouston.⁴ Maurice Murray had a grant of the town of Branhholme, which John Balliol had forfeited,⁵ and Maurice Murray had a grant of the ward of Walter Cumming of Rowallan in the Barony of Hawick,⁶—all pointing to the forfeiture of the Lovels. On 22nd September 1341 David II. gave to Sir Wm. Douglas the lands in the valley of the Eske and the Ewys which James Lovel had forfeited.⁷ In August 1347 certain commissioners appointed by Leonel, the king's son, on 26th May of that year,⁸ report that Richard Lovel himself and his ancestors have possessed the Barony of Hawick from time beyond memory till it was taken in the king's hand under his ordinance by the Sheriff of Roxburgh, that the barony is held in fee simple of the king as to the Castle of Roxburgh by service of . . . that it is worth in all issues . . . 40 merks.⁹ The records contain many references showing Richard or Sir Richard Lovel and his wife were then residing in Somersetshire and owning manors there. He had an only son, James Lovel, who predeceased him, for his widow, Isabella, had liferent of two Somerset manors on 18th November 1342.¹⁰ These manors had been settled on him by his father on 9th March 1328-29.¹¹ As the reversion in the grant was to Richard and his heirs, it is evident that the son died without issue during his father's lifetime, and that the lands and barony then passed out of their hands. In the reign of David II. (1329-71), William, Lord Douglas, younger, obtained a grant of the lands of Eskdale and Ewsdale which William Lovel had forfeited.¹² This is probably the Sir William Lovel who was at Haydenebrugge in July 1327.¹³ Lord Douglas obtained a grant on 22nd September 1341 of the lands which James Lovel had forfeited.¹⁴

We may conclude that the Lovels had adhered in their allegiance to the English crown, and had therefore retired to their English estates and been forfeited in Scotland, thus losing their barony and the Mote of Hawick.

Lovels and granted to the Morays they passed into the hands of the Douglasses. On 5th November 1484 James Douglas, son of William Douglas of Drumlanrig, obtained a charter of the Barony of Hawick, in which it was provided that the sasine should be taken ‘ad capitale messuagium baronie de Hawyk nuncupatum le Mote.’ The Deed proceeds to record that sasine was so granted, ‘acta erant hec apud dictum lie mote de Hawik.’¹ Similarly in a charter to Sir William Douglas of Drumlanrig we find ‘quas [terras] rex incorporavit in unam liberam baroniam de Hawik, et voluit quod una sasina apud principale messuagium sufficeret pro terris in warda tentis, et sasina apud le moit de Hawik pro terris in alba firma tentis, et villam de Hawik in burgum in baronia.’²

In a similar way we might trace the baronial connection of other motes. Sasine was given by John Murray of Fawlohyll, Sheriff of Selkirk, of the Lordship and Forest of Ettrick and Tower of Newerk, near the Tugurium and manor of Galloschelis.³ In 1185 William the Lion held a Court at Roxburgh ‘at the Justis Mute in the fest of Saint Symon and Jude with common consent of all the Baronies thar togidder gadderit.’⁴ It was known as the Castle of Marchmound,⁵ and the mound or mote with a trench round it still remains. Alexander II. held a court there on 30th March 1231.⁶ At Annan, the lordship of which was granted by David I. to Robert de Brus, 1124-40,⁷ there is a mound known as Bruce’s Moat where courts were held⁸ at or before 1218, and the Galabank of the present day doubtless covers the site of the gallows.

quently referred to in early charters.¹ On 28th June 1363 David II. confirmed George Dunbar in half the baronies of Tibers and Morton in Dumfries.² On 23rd August 1369 George of Dunbarre, Earl of March, granted to John Mautalent for his homage and service all his lands and tenements of his barony of Tybres, excepting to the granter and his heir his messuage the mote (Monte) of the Castle of Tybris with Dalgernok, and the lands of the free tenants . . . for rendering three suits yearly at the granter's court of Tibres and to the king 'forinsec service' so much as belonged to the lands.³ The lands of Tibbers are referred to in a Crown Charter by Robert III. to Robert Mautalent on 11th October 1401,⁴ and on 10th August 1489 James IV. grants to

¹ Sir Richard Siward gets 40 marks sterling on 24th March 1291-2 for keeping the three castles of Galloway and Nithsdale,¹ which were Dumfries, Kirkcudbright and Wigtown.² He was witness to Balliol's homage to Edward I. on 16th January 1292-3.³ He was taken prisoner at Dunbar Castle, 16th May 1296, and sent to the Tower.⁴ His wife obtained protection 17th December-30th September 1295-6,⁵ and an annuity from his lands 15th April-24th October 1296.⁶ His forfeited estates were restored to him on 31st July 1297,⁷ and he was freed from the Tower on 30th July 1296-97 to serve the king beyond the seas, his son John being left as hostage.⁸ His son Richard, junior, is to have his fetters removed and be treated leniently (29th May 1298) in Bristol Castle, because of his father's good service in Flanders.⁹ He begins to build a house at Tibbers on 27th August 1298.¹⁰ He is appointed Warden of Nithsdale on 23rd April 1299.¹¹ On 16th November 1299 he is ordered to strengthen the palisade of the close of Lochmaben Castle.¹² This was doubtless the older castle which was erected on another site where there is sufficient left of what may well have been a mote before there was a stone castle erected at the Castle Loch. On 12th June 1302 he receives £50, the balance of the repairs of his Castle of Tybres.¹³ He was made prisoner in Tibbers Castle by Robert Bruce in February or March 1306.¹⁴ On 4th August 1306 John de Seton was drawn and hanged for holding it against the king.¹⁵

Robert Mateland of Auchincassill a charter of 'locum Castri et montem nuncupatum le Mote de Tibris' with bounds and pertinents extending to two acres, etc.¹ James Maitland is retoured as heir to his father, Robert Maitland, in certain two acres of land in the town of Tibris on 11th May 1506.² These two acres seem to have contained the mote, for on 21st July 1510 he renounced in favour of Sir William Douglas of Drumlanrig 'the twa akiris of land, the Mote and Castellstead of the Tybbiris.'³ Tibbers is again referred to in the Crown charter in favour of John Maitland of Auchingassill and his heirs on 25th April 1541 as 'castri locum et montem lie Mote de Tibberis nuncupat., extenden. ad duas acras terrarum.'⁴ In parecept by Queen Mary on 12th July 1544 for granting sasine to James Douglas of Drumlanrig the stead of the Castle is mentioned, 'Castri locum alias Castell Mote of Tibberis.'⁵ It is followed by a commission by her in his favour to hold courts, appoint deputies, etc.⁶ The lands and barony with the Castle and 'Castellmoit' are mentioned in the service of William Douglas of Drumlanrig as heir to his father Sir James Douglas of Drumlanrig, 17th October 1615,⁷ and again in the service of James, Duke of Queensberry, as heir male of entail to his father William, Duke of Queensberry, 22nd October 1695.⁸

Citing only one example in Ayrshire, we would select Tarbolton Hill, because not only is there the mote hill here, but in close proximity to it there is another mound which still bears the name of the Gallow hill. Chalmers, speaking of Tarbolton, says, 'At this village there is a mount or small hill, which was formerly the court-hill of the barony of Tarbolton, and the hall formerly built on this mount was the chief messuage of the barony, where sasine was given.’¹ In a grant of the lands and barony of Tarbolton to John Stewart, son and heir to Matthew, Earl of Lennox, and Elizabeth Stewart, his spouse, in which those lands were incorporated into a free barony, they are referred to as ‘quas [terras] rex pro bono servitio incorporavit in unam liberam baroniam de Torboltoun, et ordinavit aulam situat. super le Courthill de Torboltoun fore capitale messuagium ejusdem.’²

It would be easy to add to the few examples we have given, but they will suffice to show that many a mote stands recorded as the original judicial gathering-place of a Scottish barony or regality.

The question naturally arises: Where were the Melrose Regality Courts held, and is there any evidence of a mote in the neighbourhood? From the 28th March 1657³ courts were regularly held in the Tolbooth. On 1st July 1607, it is recorded that the court was held ‘in the kirk,’⁴ indicating, we think, that this was an exceptional meeting-place. The earlier courts, we imagine, would be held within the Chapter House or other buildings apart from the Abbey itself, as ecclesiastics were prohibited from holding their courts within a church.⁵ We have failed to discover the site of a mote in the neighbourhood of the Abbey, though the ancient landmark of the Gallowbrae is still to be found.

The history of the Monastery of Melrose dates from the end of the sixth, or the beginning of the seventh century, when a religious house was established on the right bank of the Tweed, about a mile below Leaderfoot, at a point where the river, making a sudden bend, forms a natural defence to the site.¹ The first abbot of this monastery was Eata, pupil of the great Aidan, Bishop of Lindisfarne ;² the first prior, Boisil or St. Boswell. More famous still was the member of the fraternity who on the death of Boisil was appointed prior in 664,—St. Cuthbert.³

In 839 the Monastery was burned by Kenneth, King of the Scots. Though restored to some extent and more than once reinhabited, it was allowed gradually to fall into decay and was finally abandoned in the second half of the eleventh century. For generations thereafter it was much frequented by pilgrims who came to pay their vows at its shrine of St. Cuthbert's Chapel.

In 1136 David I. founded a new monastery on the Tweed, two and a half miles west of the former building ; and the name of Melrose being transferred to this later foundation, the earlier was henceforth known as Old Melrose. To the new monastery of Melrose, completed in 1146, came a company of Cistercian monks from Rievaulx in Yorkshire.

In 1322 the Monastery was ransacked and destroyed by the English army under Edward II. For its rebuilding Robert the Bruce made a grant on 26th March 1326 of two thousand pounds out of the revenues from the escheats, fines, etc., of the county of Roxburgh.⁴ On 10th November 1357 David II. granted a protection in favour of the Abbey,⁵ and on 31st August 1358 the monks obtained from him the whole custom of their wool.¹ Their lands were then confirmed to them, and they were erected into a free regality,² so that from this date (1358) we can trace the existence of an heritable jurisdiction.

It is more than likely that the monks had exercised judicial powers from the time of the establishment of the monastery, for we find a reference to their court in the time of Robert I. (1306-27).³ Other monastic establishments had already acquired judicial functions: the Priors of Coldingham acted in a judicial capacity in their court on Homelenoll as early as 1202-8,⁴ and Richard, Abbot of Kelso, held a court of regality on 15th August 1285 at Reveden (Redden).⁵ At first the abbots of Melrose themselves exercised jurisdiction over their vassals, but later on it will be found that they delegated their duties to a lay assessor, and the appointment became hereditary in the hands of the Scotts of Branhholm, who latterly became the Dukes of Buccleuch.

Richard II., raiding the country in 1385, burnt the Abbey of Melrose. In October 1389, however, he indemnified the monks by granting a reduction of two shillings on each sack of wool up to one thousand sacks which they should export from Berwick-on-Tweed.⁶

Sir Walter Scot of Buccleuch, 'Wicked Wat,' was appointed bailie of the Abbey lands in 1519 by Robert, Abbot of Melrose. The office was shortly after made hereditary, and confirmed by a charter under the seal of the Papal Penitentiary, dated 12th May 1525.⁷

By the reign of James I. the worldliness and arrogance of the churchmen, the monks of Melrose among others, had become marked, and disapproval of the tone of their lives was increasing amongst laymen. In the course of the next generation discontent was rife, but such reforms as were attempted by the general chapter of the Cistercian Order at Cîteaux in the time of James v. were rendered ineffectual by the petitionings of the monks. The abuses of the Church of Rome remained to be swept away only by the overpowering force of the Reformation.

The Abbey was demolished in 1545 by Sir Brian Latoun and Sir Ralph Evers, who made an incursion into Scotland and defaced the tombs of the Douglasses at Melrose, an outrage which the Douglasses and the Scotts avenged in the battle of Ancrum Moor.

When at length the Reformation came, by Act 6 James v. c. 20, the Church lands were appropriated to the extent of one-third of the revenue of the benefices, and the superiority was annexed to the Crown. On 7th June 1568 Michael Balfour, Commendator of Melrose, by authority of Royal letters, dated 3rd March 1557, granted in feu farm to Alexander Balfour of Denemyne a large amount of the Abbey lands.¹ In 1566 Queen Mary had granted the Abbey lands to Francis, Earl of Bothwell; and on Bothwell's forfeiture the Monastery with its lands and lordship, and with power to feu the lands, was granted on 1st May 1569² to James Douglas, second son of Sir William Douglas of Lochleven, as Abbot and Commendator. The grant is explained by the fact that the Commendator's mother was also mother of James Stuart, Regent Moray, by James v. The Act of annexation of 1587 put the lands under the complete power of the Crown.³ On 9th December 1606⁴ the Commendator resigned the lands into the hands of the king, in order that they might be erected into a temporal lordship in favour of the Earl of Morton.¹ The Earl of Morton having resigned the lands and lordship, the king, on 28th August 1609,² granted them in favour of John Ramsay, Viscount Haddington, for his services in the Gowrie Conspiracy on 5th August 1600. In this grant an allowance was made to James Douglas, the Commendator, and all regalities were reserved. This John Ramsay was a son of Robert Ramsay of Wylicleuch. He was created Viscount Haddington and Lord Ramsay of Barns on 11th June 1606, and on 28th August 1609 Lord Ramsay of Melrose,³ when he obtained a charter of the lands and barony of Melrose, which were then erected into a free lordship and barony with power to appoint a provost and bailies, admit burgesses, etc., but these powers were never exercised. He resigned the peerage, lordship, and barony on 25th August 1618 in favour of Sir George Ramsay of Dalhousie, a relative, who received the grant and the title of Lord Ramsay of Melrose.⁴ John Ramsay went into seclusion for a short time, but on 22nd January 1620-1 he was created Baron of Kingston-on-Thames and Earl of Holderness. When resigning the earldom he sold the lands of Melrose on 30th September 1618⁵ to Sir Thomas Hamilton, who on 19th November 1613 was created Lord Binning,⁶ and on 20th March 1619 Earl of Melrose and Lord Byres and Binning.⁷ On 14th February 1621 the Earl of Melrose received from James VI. a new grant of the lordship and barony of Melrose and all the temporal rights that the Abbey of Melrose had formerly held, which was to be called the Burgh of Regality of Melrose, power being granted him to create a provost, bailies and councillors, and to have market and levy customs.¹ These superiority rights were purchased by Ann, Duchess of Buccleuch. In 1747 her descendant, Lady Isabella Scott, obtained the sum of £5000 as compensation for the regality rights on the abolition of heritable jurisdiction.

The series of records of the Regality of Melrose, now published by the Scottish History Society, begins with a volume of Acts and Decrets of the Bailie's Court, for the period from 31st August 1605 to 17th June 1609, preserved in the Register House, Edinburgh. The Court Books, containing the Registers of Decrets between the years 1609 and 1657, appear to have vanished, and the Editor has been unable to trace them, but a record of the Court during this period is contained in a single volume, a Register of Deeds, Obligations, Hornings, and Indentures, covering the period from 15th February 1641 to 5th August 1651, now in the possession of Mr. James Curle of Priorwood, Melrose, who has kindly offered it for publication by the Society, together with other documents relating to the Court. Three further volumes belonging to Mr. Curle continue the series of Acts and Decrets from 28th March 1657 to 11th March 1676, while some unbound sheets, containing matter relating to the proceedings against Covenanters and others, bring down the Register to 12th July 1682. From separate sheets, also in Mr. Curle's hands, we have the Enrolments of the Regality Court for the years 1682 to 1684. Finally, there is included a volume of Hornings, Inhibitions, etc., for the period 1662 to 1706, also from the Register House.

local and general information of value to the historian of the Borders. During the greater part of the period embraced in the books the owners of Branksholm, now the Dukes of Buccleuch, were the Lords of Regality, as we have previously noticed, under whom there were various bailies acting. Walter Chisholm of that Ilk is the first bailie depute mentioned. The next is 'Dene Jhonne Watsoun.' He was apparently the last of the monks of the priory, and at the time of the Reformation entered the reformed church. In a volume of Charters in the hands of the Society of Antiquaries, there is a Tack by James Douglas, Commendator of Melrose, and James vi., the patron of the abbacy, in favour of Robert Scott of Thirlestane of the Kirk of Ettrick with the teinds, dated at Holyroodhouse, 7th December 1594. One of the witnesses is Dene Jhonne Watsoun, who signs himself as 'only convent,' thus indicating, we take it, that he was the last of the monks. Another bailie mentioned in the earlier part of the volume is Gideon Jackson of Lochhouses.

Turning to the subject-matter of the volumes before us, we find that they are composed of a great amount of material of a very varied character and of the greatest value to the historian and genealogist, throwing light upon the manners and customs of the people of the Borders, the way they lived, the things they said and did, the mode in which they managed and worked their lands, what they ate and drank, and the price they paid for their commodities.

The Decrees obtained for debt call forth comment only on the general poverty which then existed, and the insufficient coinage of the country. The Decrees are themselves interesting on account of the quaint expressions used, and the information they afford concerning the amounts sued for and the character of the goods or articles supplied. For example: 'Wm. Boustoune in Galtounsyd is decerned to pay James Thomson 20 merks [one shilling and eight pence sterling] as ane part of toucherguid with twa merkis money as for 2 firlots meill, crop 1595'; or again: 'Ordanes the decision of the cummer and debait betuix David Jamiesoune to be endit betuix and this day xv dayis or ellis thai salbe condemnit in the bluid and tuilze.'

Generally it might be said litigants went before the bailie with an action for the smallest trifles, and proceeded with the process in due solemnity. Next we have 'retours' or services of heirs carried through before the bailie, in which a jury is empanelled, witnesses cited, and after inquiry a judgment pronounced in terms of the findings of the jury, declaring the propinquity of the claimant to the deceased and his right to the heritable or movable estate, as the case may be.

Proofs were taken as to heritable titles in cases of disputed ownership. Boundaries and marches were investigated, proofs led, and the rights of parties determined. The vassals of the Regality, apart from the town of Melrose, appear to have been thirled to the Milne of Langshaw, but in many cases, obviously to avoid payment of the thirle multures, the feuars seem to have preferred to go elsewhere. A good deal of litigation consequently appears to have arisen both before the bailie and the Supreme Courts to compel these recalcitrants to send their grain to be ground at Langshaw and to pay the dues exacted.

Acts were passed by the bailie regarding Sunday closing: fleshers were ordained to close all day, and hostlers during the hours of Divine Service. Rules were enacted regarding drunkenness, brawling, assaults and miscallings or slanders. Fines were imposed regarding trespassing, both by men and cattle, and schedules of such fines were fixed. Actions for removing tenants and for violent profits were instituted and disposed of. Caution was demanded and obtained in actions of lawburrows and in security for debt and other kindred purposes. In criminal matters, assaults, batteries, and all cases of effusion of blood were dealt with ; fines were imposed, and the goods and effects of the defender or culprit pointed and sold.

The vassals of the Regality had to appear at the Court, whether to act as jurymen or otherwise, and were held as concurrents to the judgments passed by the bailie. Those failing to attend or give good reason for their non-appearance at the half-yearly courts were fined.

The Court was a court of record, and Writs were recorded in volumes, some of which are still preserved, and are now printed. The Writs recorded consist of settlements, marriage contracts, bonds for debt or of caution, apprentice indentures, decrees arbitral of arbiters or oversmen, 'retours' in services of heirs, acts and rules of Court, and generally a record of all the judgments of the Court.

Many of the quaint expressions found in the records call for elucidation, but as glossaries have already been printed in several earlier volumes of the Scottish History Society's publications, we need only refer our readers to these and to the several editions of Jamieson's Scottish Dictionary for the explanation of obsolete words and terms.

The Editor desires to acknowledge the valuable assistance he has received from Dr. Maitland Thomson, Dr. George Neilson, and Mr. James Curle in the preparation of this Introduction, and in revising his proofs.

[A leaf at the end of the volume contains the following :]

Alexander Cranston of Moreiston.

Few granted be the Abbot, etc., 1550. Never confermed.

Thair is ane precept (gevin be my Lord of Haddingtoun his commissioners) of clare constat for geving of seasing to Alexander Cranston as air to Mr. Thomas Cranston his father. Quæro, If the commissioners having power to geive precepts of clare constat may prejuge the Vicout in the right of the lands, seing thay had na power to annalie naine of the lands.

Some process of confirmation be vertew of ane generall commission direct to Mr. Jhon Thorneton, wantis the commission, as Ardmillans confirmation daited 6 Nonas Octobris 4^o, Pauli 3^l, of ane 5 l. 9 s. 4 d. land of Beanches, Litle Smeiston, Pereiston, and Knokfenton.

When Ardmillan produced at the first he produced nothing for ane thrie lib. land of Platcorway bott allanerlie the Papes confirmation thairof, ane chairtour gevin be Andro, Commendatair, 1535, and ane precept of clare constat gevin be Michael, etc., without aine seasing. Att the first calling he gat ane day to produce ane protocoll, bot at the day he hes produced ane chairtour gevin be the said Andro, ane precept of seasing whilk doeth appeire authentique eneuch, bot no seasing thairupon bot allanerlie ane seasing gevin upon Michael, Commendator of Melrose, his precept under the note of James Ross.

William Cairnecorse, younger of Calphill, his evidents wer brunt, of the fragments quhairof thair is onlie twa chairtours of confirmation under the great seil of the twa halfis of Ladopmure. Thir landis are nominatim exprest in my Lord Ramsays chairtour bot onlie the milne of Ladopmure.

Scot of Harden produces ane chairtour of confirmation of the landis of Langhoupe disponed to him be the last commendatair as fewer, and of ane other chairtour granted to him be Mr. Jhon Home of the landis of Over and Nether Clifhoupis, Quhytekirk and Quhyteland, Ermscleuch and Abbotissykes in Liddisdaile, lyand in within the schirefdome of Edinburgh, to be haldin of his Majestie superior be vertew of the act of annexatioun. Quæro, If thir landis perteinit to the Abbot of Melrose, and what right Mr. Jhon Home had thairto.

Quæro, If the Kingis confirmation befor the Papis authorietie was abrogat was eequivalent to the Papis confirmation. Of this kynd is the confirmation of the few of the landis of Drygrainge in anno 1539, produced be Coldenknowis.

If this confirmation be not fund sufficient, quæro secundo, If Lithgow who was the first fewers chairtour to be haldin of the King maid to Bruntfield being confirmed be the King with ane general grant of all right, wilbe thoght ane sufficient confirmation of the few.

The few of Newton milne set to William Cairnecross of Colmislie hes na seasing produced, bot ane rolment of court beiring that the seasing was recognost in the notairs books.

If this seasing be not good, Quæro, If the yconomus precept of clare constat without the convent, and seasing following thairupon, may supplie the same.

Cairnecrose of Colmislie hes allanerlie ane precept and seasing of his 8 li. land of Colmislie, and ane few unconfermed of the Westsyde of Housbyer, Langlie, and the croft called Cellararishauch ; quæro, If upon his resignation of thir landis as pertaining to him with ane de novo damus without mention of the Kings right acqwyred to his Majestie be the act of annexation may not be querrelled propter obreptionem. Thair is some argument for the not confirmation becaus the de novo damus dispensis thairwith.

Ane husband land in Ridpeth possest be William Anderson set for payment of 22 s. 4 d., be ane auld chairtour wanting the conventis consent and not confermed, is set of new be the King 1587 for 20 s., 3 poultrie, and 12 d., in augmentation ; sic est diminutio of 16 d.

Decreet of transferring,
Merseer v.
Darling.

On 13th January 1644 James Merseer, then in Nether Burnes of Galloscheills, now in Galtounesyde, pursuer, obtained decreet before the deceased Hew Scott of Galloscheills, bailie of this regality for the time, and a decreet interponed thereto on 2d September 1648 by the deceased Thomas Lythgow, also bailie thereof for the time, ordaining Andrew Darling called Eister Andro, portioner of Apiltrieleives, to pay to him 26 l. Scots of principal and 36 s. of expenses. The defender being disobedient, the bailie is asked to interpone his decreet, that execution may follow. This is granted. 1 diet.

Decreet,
Vogane v.
Cuthbertson.

John Vogane in Fauchhill sues William Cuthbertsone in Erleistoun for 40 s. Scots as the balance of the price of oats bought at Candlemas a year past and promised to be paid last Whitsunday. Decerned on second diet, as confessed ; with 6 s.[?] 8 d. of expenses.

Decreet,
Hietoun v.
Hunter.

Alexander Hietoun in Dernick sues Thomas Hunter in Lessudden for 14 l. Scots borrowed six years ago, and a boll of pease promised seven years ago 'for the incaist of a stake of beir,' price of the boll of pease 15 l. Defender denies and refers to pursuer's oath, and thereupon decerned, 'reservand modificatioun for the peis.'

Decreet,
Pringill v.
Darling.

On 27th December 1656 Jean Pringill, wife of Thomas Feirgreive, obtained decreet against Eupham Cairncroce, lawful daughter of the deceased Nicol Cairncroce of Calfhill, for repayment of 10 l. 13 s. 4 d. of principal and 16 s. expenses of plea ; in terms whereof she caused John Fennick arrest in the hands of James Darling in Apiltrieleives 14 l. or thereby due by him to the said Eupham, which he refuses to make forthcoming. The bailie ordains him to make the said sum forthcoming. 2 diet. 13 s. 4d. expenses.

The persones efternamed wes nominat and appoyntit for compryseing, they are to say, William Edgar in Melrois, Alexander Eilleis there, James Eilleis, weivar, James Wallace, Mungo Donaldsone, Adame Lythgow, George Blakie, Thomas Lookeupe, John Wallace, smyth, quha each one of them efter utheris being personallie present gave thair aithes de fidei administratione.

Bowar.

Complaint by John Bowar Eister, portioner of Eildoun, that John Bowar, Wester, portioner there, has intruded to possession of a headrig of land of the pursuer's in Eildoune pertaining to his husbandland there, and has tilled the same twice over, thinking to appropriate it to his own use. He is also owing 40 s. as the balance of the interest of 80 l.

principal, and about seven years ago he borrowed an 'ax tree worth 15 s.' and promised the price thereof or as good an 'ax' tree for it.—3 October 1657, pursuer to prove two last articles next court day.—17 October 1657, Robert Bradie deponed he heard John Bowar, Wester, say he would come in the pursuer's will for the 40 s. John Vaire deponed he heard defender say 'he had payed mickle maire.' Ordains John Bower to use further probation.—30 January 1658, 'ordaines to cause ony tuo of the honest neighbouris of the toun of Zeildoun to be present the nixt court to declair whither John Bower Eister wase lauffullie wairnd to the parting of the grund or not. Decerns for the 40 s. upon the persewers oath; payed judicialle.'

Melrose, 13 February 1658

Andrew Tunno, notary in Melrose, sues James Meine, Tunno v. Mein. indweller in Wester Langlie, tenant to William Cairncrose, 'minor' in Calhill, for 8 l. Scots conform to a precept granted to him by John Ker and Andrew Ker of Kippilaw desiring him as tenant foresaid to pay the same to pursuer in the fore end of the rent of the lands of Calhill possessed by him, and which he should have paid at Martinmas last. Decerns conform to the libel and the precept produced.

Complaint by Andrew Pringle in Haukburne against John Leyes in Whitlaw, who in 1653 was 'adjoynd with him for outreaching and furnishing of bedding and uther furnitur to the Inglishes,' and the pursuer having furnished to the garrison of Hallidane two feather beds comprised to 16 l. each, the defender promised to pay his proportion of 4 s. daily for each of the beds so long as they remained in possession of the English, being now four years, and still unrestored, so the defender ought to pay his proportion, but refuses. Defender denying claim, pursuer to prove it next court day. Gavin P[ater?]son in the Kiltknow depones the one bed was put out by Andrew Pringle and Gavin Patersone, John and Robert Leyesse, which bed was Gavin Paterson's bed and comprised to 16 l. Pringle v. Leyes.

‘ and if it cam home to have payed four s. per diem, and if not, the said 16 lib. ’ ; and the other bed was put out by Andrew Pringle, being his own, for the said four persons and William Law adjoined to them, and comprised at about the same as the other. Thomas Law, weaver in Melrose, knows nothing as to the beds acclaimed, ‘ bot that the whole beds put out to that garisone wase comprised to 16 libs. the piece, and that every joyner¹ suld pay their proportione off the beds in caise of thair not returning, and quhat they were found worse.’ The judge finds that the beds libelled were put out to the garrison at Hallidane ‘ and that the first bed lybellit wase put owt by Gavin Patersone whilk wase comprised to 16 punds, quherof the defender and persewer and Robert Leis and himself wase to bear a lik burding, for payment theroff it did not returne, and of the four shilling a day if it did returne, as it did not,’ and decerns defender to pay 4 l. Scots as his part ; and of 4 merks as his part of the other bed, there being five partners ; and absolves from the daily proportion, as the beds did not return.

Hownam.

Complaint by George Hounholme in Darnick against James Smith, son and apparent heir of the deceased William Smith in Mosshouses and Isobel Smith his sister, executors to their said father, as follows :—The defunct on 28 April 1639 granted bond to pursuer for 36 l. Scots repayable before St. Lukes Day in that year, with 6 l. of expenses ; and no payment being made by him, his executors ought to satisfy the debt, but refuse. Defenders present, with Andrew Tunno their procurator, pursuer depones 22 l. thereof paid by defunct to him and only 14 l. resting. Absolves, because both defenders swear they had no intromission with defunct’s estate save only what would defray his funeral expenses.

Melrose, 27th February 1658

Riddell v.
Bryden.

Claim by Patrick Riddell of St. Boswells against James Bryden and Janet Kyle his spouse, in respect of a contract,

28 May 1636, between them whereby for 1000 merks they disposed to the pursuer half a husband land in Lessudden, under reversion, which contract being lost in these troublous times, and the defenders having a double thereof at the time of the making, the pursuer desired delivery of a copy for his own security, but it was refused. He therefore asks for production and registration of the deed. Defenders not compearing, after sundry diets, decerns them either to deliver to pursuer an authentic double of the contract or to produce the contract to the clerk to be registered; because the pursuer adduced witnesses to prove the contract, viz. Mr. Andrew Halliburtonne of Paleshill, unmarried, 60 years, deponed he had read the contract within the last twelve months, and James Bryden had it then in keeping and had promised to deliver to Patrick Riddell a just copy. Mark Halliburtonne in Lessudden, unmarried, 50 years, depones as above. John Maben in Maxton, 50 years, depones as above.

Further, the said Patrick Riddell sues James Bryden for 20 l. 8 s. Scots as balance of price of bear bought from pursuer 14 years ago; also 10 l. of a fine imposed by the justices of peace on him 'for his layeing on of trowpers upon the Earle of Haddingtounne maist wrangouslie efter tryall,' for which the pursuer became his cautioner and had to pay the same, but can have no relief. Decerns on defender's confession, who compeared shortly after pronouncing of the first sentence.

James Stoddert in Mungoiswells, portioner of Lessudden, sues James Gastounne in St. Boswells for three bolls and a half of ferme bear, Lessudden measure, for the duty of a quarter of land there pertaining to pursuer, and possessed by defender, crop 1654, at 5 l. 10 s. the boll as the same was then sold by him to William Fischer in Dernick, 'quhich he refussed to deliver, he offering to receive the samyn.' Compeared Michael Fischer 'offering him to prove be Thomas Huntar and Robert Kyle that he came tuo severall tymes for the beire, which wase never redie to deliver.' John Robesone deponed that James Gastoune 'desired him to cause William Fischer receive the beare att the Lambes efter the Candlmes, and knew not quhether he had the beare or not.' John Cochran deponed as above. Judge finds by depositions that the bear libelled 'quhilk wase dew to have been payed be the defender to the persewer att the terme of Candlmes wase not proferrit till the Lambis thereafter, quhilk wase lang efter William Fischer his day of payment of the persewers ferme beir,' and decerns for 5 l. 10 s. for each boll, being the price of the rest of that crop.

Stoddert v.
Gastounne.

Bowar v. Mar. John Bowar, Eister, portioner of Eildoun, sues Thomas Mar in Melrose for 10 merks promised at Martinmas last. Defender granted 5 l., decernes therefor and absolves from the rest ; expenses, 13 s. 4d.

Mein v. Bell. James Meine, son of John Meine, portioner of Newsteid, complains against George Bell, portioner of Reidpeth, in respect of decreet, 5 December 1657, against John Anderson, portioner there, for 42 l. 10 s. of principal and 48 s. of expenses, whereupon Alexander Uschar, officer, arrested in hands of said George Bell ten bolls of bear due by him to said John Anderson for the ferme of certain of his lands in Reidpeth possessed by said George Bell, last crop ; but the victual is not forthcoming ; or 18 l. 2 s. as value thereof. Decerns as confessed, defender absent.

Newtoun v. Threipwod. Complaint by William Ker, portioner of Newtoun, and . . . , portioner there, against James and Archibald Moffits, portioners of Threipwood, who refuse to obtemper a decreet, January 1653, against them at pursuer's instance for 21 l. principal and 33 s. 4 d. expenses of plea.

Ker v. Darling. Complaint by same against Andrew and Peter Darling in Appelltreeleivs and John Turnbull there in respect of not obeying decreet said day against them for 4 l. 13 s. 4 d. with 26 s. 8 d. expenses. Andrew Darling held as confessed, being absent, and by Thomas Stenhouse's declaration, to whose oath it was referred by pursuers.

Melrose, 13th March 1658

John Bunzie, elder, portioner of Newsteid, sues James Wauch in Melrose for 4 merks of borrowed money and 2 merks for a full of oats bought from defender 10 years ago and undelivered. Defender denied and craved pursuer's oath of calumny, who deponed, and referred to defender's oath, who deponed he was due nothing. Wauch v.
Bunzie.

George Sueit in Erlestoun sues Nicol Bennet in Les-sudden for 6 l. 2 s. Scots as balance of price of 3½ bolls of bear bought from pursuer 4 years ago. Defender denied debt except 25 s. Scots and referred to pursuer's oath, who deponed the debt owing. Sweit v.
Bennet.

Thomas Stenhouse, portioner of Newtoun, depones that he dreads bodily harm of James Wauch in Melrose, who threatened his life lately both in Edinburgh and Melrose. Ordains defender to find caution and to remain in ward till this is done. John Bowar in Melrose, Thomas Law there, became cautioners for James Wauch not to molest complainer or his dependents, under penalty of 100 l. Stenhouse v.
Wauch.

Isobel Anderson, liferentrix, wife of John Meine, portioner of Newsteid, sues William Anderson, portioner of Reidpath, for 5 bolls 1 firloft ferme bear, Melrose measure, counting 'fyve mikle fulls' to each boll, as the duty of certain lands in Reidpeth pertaining to Isobel in liferent and set by the said John Meine to him, crop 1657; which ought to be paid, or 10 merks for each boll. Decerns on defender's confession, modifying 6 l. for the boll, with 48 s. expenses. Anderson v.
Anderson.

Archibald Walker in Gallascheills sues John Cairncrose, herd in Wester Langlie, for 8 l. Scots as rent of a house and yard of the pursuer's possessed by him and set to him for a year about 7 years ago, with a kain fowl and two 'sheare darges.' Defender grants possession of the house Walker v.
Cairncrose.

for three quarters of a year. Ordains him to pay 3 l. in composition for the whole, with 10 s. 8 d. expenses.

'Suorne men in Lessudden admitted.'

David Unes in Lessudden, James Cochran there, Robert Lile, smith there, and Thomas Huntar there, 'admitted and received to discern and decyde betuixt neighbour and neighbour for merches, who made faith accordinglie.'

Melrose, 27th March 1658

Fisher v.
Cairncross.

William Fischer, portioner of Eister Langlie, seeks new decreet against Euphan Cairncrose, affirming the former decreet, 14 July 1655, ordaining her to pay him 7 l. principal and 10 s. 8 d. expenses. Granted, with 6 s. 8 d. expenses of extracting.

Eiston v.
Gastoune.

Bessie Eistoun in Lessudden and William Robson her spouse sue Andrew Gastoun there for half a boll ferme bear due for a quarter of land in Lessudden of theirs possessed by him crop 1657. Decerns as confessed, and pursuer to give a discharge ; modifies 3 l.

'Severalls in Appeltreeleives decernd conforme to the rentall.'

Melrose, 10th April 1658, G. Jackson

Pringle v.
Pringle.

Complaint by Robert Pringill of Blindlie, proprietor, and Mr. William Jonstoun, minister at Lawder, Wadsetter, against Andrew Pringill in Halkburne, as follows : The said Robert wadset to the said Andrew his three merk lands in Blainslie with houses and pertinents called the Roan, for a certain sum conform to their contract ; which he redeemed at Whitsunday 1657 by paying the full sum to the said Andrew, and then anew wadset the lands to the said Mr. William Johnstone for a certain sum. Nevertheless, Andrew Pringle, though oftentimes required thereto, will not deliver up his contract of wadset and securities, or grant renunciation. Robert Pringle pursuer compearing by George Pringle his eldest son, Mr. William Johnstone compearing personally, and the defender also personally, the bailie-depute ordains defender to deliver up to Robert Pringle the infeftment following on said contract, with a sufficient renunciation; because he confessed payment and granted having the infeftment. And whereas defender alleged a year's duty owing him by the said Robert, and till it was paid he ought not to deliver the writs, this was found no relevant excuse, but action was reserved to him for the duty if found liable. Andrew Pringle asked act of court and took instruments in respect as he alleged the bailie-depute had decerned against him 'disconforme' to the order of law. Also decerns for 4 merks of expenses of plea, to be paid by him to pursuer.

William Cairncrose of Allenschaws sues John Meine, Cairncross v. Mein. portioner of Newsteid, for 10 l. yearly for three years, 1654-1656, for the 'watter maill of Tueed betuixt Leadermouth and Newsteid mylne,' set by pursuer to him in tack, which tack is consigned in the hands of Andrew Tunno, notary in Melrose, with consent of both parties. Also he claims of him 'for streaking of the said water yeirly the saids yeirs 58 s.' Pursuer depones he received no maill from defender except 5 l. Decerns for 7 l. 10 s.

Thomas Gill, miller in Newton mill, sues Thomas Vair, Gill v. Vair. smith there, who having wadset from Mr. John Currie, portioner there, certain lands in Newtoun, promised on 13th March inst. to pay within 5 or 6 days to the pursuer, in the fore end of the wadset price, 10 merks which the said Mr. John Currie was owing to the pursuer 'for the timber, nailes, and workeing of tuo doores wrought be the persewer to him att Quhitsonday last and conditioned to be payed be him befforhand, with xxx s. resting be him to the persewer for theiking of ane house in Newtoun,' extending to 8 l. 3 s. 4 d. Defender absent, pursuer depones upon the debt and promise. Decerns, with 16 s. 8 d. expenses.

George Aird, herd in Melrose, sues William Cairncrose Aird v. Cairncross. of Allenschaws, for 10 l. Scots for half a year's service wrought in 1656, with three loads of peats of bounty, at 5 s. the load, and 5 s. of expenses for driving his lambs to Edinburgh that year. Decerns for the 10 l., absolves from the peats.

Also sues same for 5 s. due to pursuer and his wife Bessie Merser for each of four days' work wrought to him in 1656. Decerns for 4 s. daily.

Eccles v. Bulman.

William Eccles, servitor to Thomas Stenhouse in Newtoun, sues William Bulman in Newtoun, for 3 l. 14 s. Scots of fee and a pair of hose of bounty, price 12 s. for half a year's service from Martinmas 1656 to Whitsunday 1657. Decerns for 3 l. 12 s., with 10 s. 8 d. expenses.

Paterson v. Pringle and Leyes.

Gavin Paterson in Kiltknow complains against Andrew Pringle in Haukeburne, John and Robert Leyss in Whitlaw, whose horses, nolt, sheep, etc., in harvest 1655, ate and destroyed four bolls of oats, Melrose measure, 5 fulls to the boll, price with the fodder 5 l., and their bestial being thereupon apprehended were apprised by Robert Broun in Hemphauch, William Kirkwood in Creumshills, James Stobo in Blindlie and James Barrie, herd in Whitlaw, for the said sum. James Stobo, 80 years, depones 'ther wase oddis off fyve bolles eaten.' Robert Brown deponed likewise, and that Gavin Paterson's bestial ate none thereof. William Kirkwood depones he comprised '5 furlots aits and ane peck oats.' James Barrie deponed as above. Pursuer on oath purges his own bestial. Decerns conform to last comprising, and modifies 5 l. to the boll.

Halliwall v. Waugh.

Interpones decret at instance of Thomas Halliewooll in Galtounsye against James Wauch in Melrois for 3 l. 16 s. with 16 s. 8 d. expenses contained in a former decret pronounced by 'Drygrange,' dated 2 August 1656.

Brotherstones v. Bryden.

Janet Brotherstanes, widow of John Kyle, portioner of Lessudden, and James Archibald, now her spouse, sue John Bryden there for 3 l. 10 s. for ferm bear and ale ' taken on be the defender fra hir and compted to the said sowme att Mertymes bygone ane yeire ' ; and he also detains from her a ' tueile bolster ' worth 20 s. ; also he intromitted with ' ane dry waire stand ' worth 30 s. and took it away from her house ; also he borrowed from her ' hir whole pleugh and pleugh graith except the colter ' about 6 years ago, worth 10 l. Defender denies the 3 l. 10 s and depones only 25 s. due. ' Ordaines the defender to speak with his wyfe for the bolster ; confesses the stand, decernes to delyver the stand and the defender to have sex shillings. Ordaines the persewar to depone for the pleugh graith and to prove the ferme beir.'

Melrose, 24th April 1658

Complaint, same against same, for half a boll of bear yearly, 1655-1657, Lessudden measure (5 ' mickel ' fulls to the boll), due by him ' for the owtfeild land of the third of half a land in Lessudden ' pertaining to her and violently possessed by defender. Decerns upon Janet Brotherstone's oath for the plough graith conform to the former claim ; admits the bear to her probation as before ; principal 11 l. 5 s., expenses 16 s. 8 d. Brotherstones
v. Bryden.

Complaint by Thomas Reidfuird in Melrose against William Fischer, portioner there, who in 1654 set to him three acres of land in the Annay of Melrose for crop 1655 for payment of the master's duty and 9 l. to him ; and he set the same in tilling to James Merseur in Newsteid, who tilled four ' yockings ' thereof ; and thereafter the defender set the same over again to Alexander Uschar, who entered to the said tilled land, whereupon James Merseur raised and obtained decret against the pursuer for four merks for the said ' yockings.' The defender ought to pay this, and 20 l. of profit which the pursuer might have had of the land.—10 April 1658, defender denied setting the land to pursuer ; referred to defender's oath.—24 April 1658, absolves, defender deponing he never set the land to him. Fisher v.
Reidfurd.

Hunter v.
Anderson.

John Anderson, portioner of Reidpeth, complains against William Hunter, portioner there, who cuts, destroys and takes away the pursuer's wood and trees in Reidpeth, to the number of 20 oak and birch trees, 40 s. the piece, which he ought to refund, besides a fine of 10 l. imposed by act of Parliament for cutting green wood. Defender depones he never cut any of the pursuer's timber. Absolves.

Gibson v.
Moffat.

Archibald Gibsone in Birkensid sues John Moffit in Threipwood, his tenant, for 12 l. yearly for 1656 and 1657, and 17 l. of crop 1655, extending to 41 l., besides 70 l. as the rent of the pursuer's husband land there, Whitsunday 1657 to Whitsunday 1658. Defender absent, pursuer deponed the sums due to be as above, deducting a year's feu-duty and four years' cess. Further he claims 20 s. for the price of a dale. John Hall, portioner of Threipwood and James Meine, portioner there, declare that each husband land in Threipwood paid of cess yearly for 1655, 1656 and 1657 the sum of 10 l. and for 1658 7 l. (their declaration dated Melrose, 31 March 1659 [sic]). The feu-duty and cess being deducted, there remains 70 l. of principal. Decerns therefor, with 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. of expenses.

Mein v. Cairn-
cross.

Complaint by John Meine, portioner of Newsteid, against William Cairncrose of Allenschawis, who set a three years' tack to pursuer of that part of the water of Tweid between the Newsteid mill and the ford of Leidder on both sides of the water, 'reserving onlie to himself the shooting barring and burning of the said watter'; but Drygrange's servants fished the north side, and the pursuer wanted possession thereof for a year and a quarter, whereby he is damnified in 6 l. 6 s.; and the defender himself and others in his name 'did severall tymes strake the said watter and did catch furth therof every on of the said tymes the number of tuo fisches, price of the peice therof tuell shilling,' which he ought to pay, with 5 merks of penalty for breach of the tack.—17 October 1657, Defender denies 'strakeing of the watter' except once; pursuer to prove.—10 April 1657, compeared Thomas Turner and deponed ‘he straked the watter att the persewers [sic] directione at severall tymes bot knew not weell how many fisch he got.’ Robert Forsan ‘deponed the lyke.’—24 April 1658, the judge finds that defender has not kept the conditions of the tack, and ordains him to pay to the pursuer 5 merks of penalty therein contained, with 4 merks as damage sustained through defender’s striking the water.

John Cochrane in Darnicke accuses William Bullman in Newtoun of detaining from him an obligation granted by pursuer to the deceased Stephen Bullman his father for 50 l., notwithstanding that the pursuer has paid to the defunct both the principal and annual-rents.—27 March 1658, the judge orders the bond to be delivered, and the defender to give his oath whether or not the annualrents are paid.—10 April 1658, bond produced ; pursuer’s wife to depone anent the annualrents.—24 April 1658, ordains defender to give the bond to pursuer, with a discharge, and to pursue for his annualrent ; expenses, 13 s. 4 d.

Cochrane v.
Bullman.

Melrose, 8 May 1658

George Alexander in Mosshouses, lawful son and executor of deceased Richard Alexander, desires authority to be interponed to a decreet obtained by him, 2 May 1657, decerning James Davidson, portioner of Blainslie, to pay to him 12 l. Scots of principal and 12 s. of expenses. Judge interpones decreet ; expenses of extracting, 16 s. 8 d.

Alexander v.
Davidson.

In 1650, between Michaelmas and Martinmas, John Stobo, hind in Colmsliehill, came to the town of Leastoun and desired James Mitchelson, merchant burgess of Edinburgh, to deliver to him for the use of Thomas Feirgrive in Bentmylne a barrel of tar, which Mitchelson did, and Stobo carried the same south here, having agreed to pay 40 l. therefor within 8 days or else 100 merks ; yet they refuse to make payment. Defender absent, decerns on pursuer’s oath for 40 l. principal and 19 l. 3 s. 4 d. of annualrent ; expenses, 4 l.

Mitchelson v.
Stobo and Fairgrieve.

Vair v. Currie. Complaint by Thomas Vair, smith in Newtoun, against Mr. John Currie, portioner there, who was owing to Thomas Gill in Newtoun 8 l. 3 s. 4 d. 'for dooers makeing and his house theikeing,' and at his earnest desire the pursuer undertook payment, and Gill obtained decret against him on 10th April last for the said sum, with 16 s. 8 d. of expenses. Mr. John Currie on 19th March 1658 obliged himself for the pursuer's relief, but refuses to do so. Ordains Mr. John Currie to relieve the pursuer or pay the sum acclaimed ; expenses, 13 s. 4 d.

Pringle v. Henrie. Thomas Pringill in Stow sues John Henrie in Allenschawis for 6 l. Scots as the balance of the price of an ox bought from the pursuer at Martinmas a year past. Decerns on pursuer's oath, defender absent ; expenses, 13 s. 4 d.

Melrose, 5th June 1658

Anderson v. Heitoun. Complaint by Margaret Andersone, widow of John Eccles in Newtoun, and John Eccles, their eldest lawful son, against John and Andrew Heitoun, portioners of Newtoun, who obtained decret, 27 December 1636 from deceased James Pringill of Buckholme, bailie of the regality, against pursuer and her spouse for 25 l. Scots with 20 s. expenses, and another decret by him, 28 July 1638, against the same for 33 l. with 26 s. 8 d. expenses ; and on 8 November 1651 they obtained authority interponed to these decreets, notwithstanding that the said deceased John Eccles paid the whole sums, principal and expenses, to them before his death, except 6 l. Scots ; and they desire that execution be stayed and probation led.—6 December 1651, continued to 13th.—20 December 1651, Robert Meine, mason in Newsteid, married, 60 years, depones he heard John Eccles, on death-bed, 24 hours before his decease, declare he was owing nothing to John and Andrew Heitoun save 6 l., conform to a note then made by the deponent dated 17 March 1644, produced. Alexander Meine, son of said Robert, depones the like. James Bunzie depones as above.—22 May 1658, defender to be cited to hear sentence.—5 June 1658, the judge pronounces sentence conform to said depositions, and ordains decret to be delivered back before extracting.

Anthony Murray by his precept, 25 May 1657, desired William Taite and William Bellanden in Ladhopenmure to pay to George Alexander in Mosshouses 12 l. Scots out of the readiest of the Whitsunday rent; but they refuse, and George Alexander asks decret. Decerns conform to the bill and precept produced. Alexander v.
Tait and Bellenden.

William Edgar in Melrose sues Andrew Darling in Appelltrileives for 12 l. Scots borrowed 'quhen the trowpers wase lying upon him,' who promised payment on 9 May 1658. Decerns as confessed, defender absent. Edgar v. Darling.

James Wallace, portioner of Melrose, for himself and the rest of the feuars and possessors of the town of Melrose and Danieltoune, complains against Francis Scott in Melrose and Adam Lythgow there, his resetter, in respect that before last Pasch the pursuers hired and feed the said Francis to be town herd and promised him 3 l. of fee and a pair of shoes in bounty, worth 8 s., and he promised to enter immediately, but failed therein, and his resetter will not exhibit him or pay the fee. Decerns defender to enter to his service or pay the fee. Wallace v.
Scott.

Melrose, 19th June 1658

Complaint by John Stobo in Colmsliehill against George Pringill of Buckholme and Thomas Feirgrive in Colmslie, in respect Pringle ordered the pursuer as his servant to obtain from James Mitchelson in Edinburgh a load of tar, and Mitchelson obtained decret against pursuer for the price, but Pringle received the tar and delivered half thereof to Fairgrieve, both of whom ought to relieve him. Pringle depones he neither directly nor indirectly instructed pursuer to get tar for him; absolves. Fairgrieve to be cited to next court. Pringle v.
Stobo.

Laidlaw v.
Reidfurd.

William Laidlaw in Fadounsíd sues Thomas Reidfurd in Melrose for 7 l. 8 s. Scots as balance of a greater sum. Held as confessed, 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Eccles v.
Unes.

Mungo Eccles, servitor to William Ker, portioner of Newtoun, sues David Unes in Lessudden for 9 l. 12 s. as agreed-on price of 6 firlots of 'bounteth beire' sold to him about a year last Martinmas, and payment promised at St. Mungoes day thereafter. Decerns as confessed for 4 l. 13 s., with 10 s. expenses.

Bowar.

John Bower, Eister, portioner of Eildoun, complains that John Bowar, Wester, there, in March last directed his servant woman, Isobel Riddell, 'to take the fewill and foile of my own peis stra of my dung hill steade and laye it upon his,' and he ought to be fined. The judge 'ordaines aither partie to soupe efter thair mucking and digthing in the entrie, and when they doe not mucke to dicht and soope day about the entries that goes in and owt to and from thair houses, and this act to abide remaine and stand in full force and effect in all tyme cuming as wase clerlie understood.'

Melrose, 3d July 1658

Cairncross v.
Turnbull.

William Cairncrose of Allenschawis sues Adam Turnbull, mason in Newsteid, for 4 l. 10 s. as the agreed-on price of a boll of oats bought from pursuer two years ago. Defender absent, held confessed at 3d diet; 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

sundry.

John Notman, miller in Langschaw mill, and Patrick Scott, his master, complain against the following persons, whose lands are astricted and thirled to the mill of Langshaw, yet they have abstracted their multure and sent their grain to other mills to be ground, viz. John and Robert Leyes in Whitlaw, 30 bolls of oats within the past 15 days, whereof the multures, etc. extend to a boll of meal and 'schilling'; Thomas Caldeleugh in Blainslie, 20 bolls of oats, Roxburgh measure, of crops 1656 and 1657, being a boll and a firloft of meal and 'schilling,' of multure. The pursuer and Andrew Tunno his procurator produced a decreet obtained before the sheriff of Roxburgh by the said Patrick Scott in 1654 ordaining the fore-said persons and others to grind all their corn at the said mill, excepting the teind and seed. The judge ordains defenders to compear next court and depone what they had abstracted. Thomas Caldeleugh depones he abstracted 3 bolls, crop 1656, and has paid the multure thereof since, and 5 bolls, crop 1657. Decerns. John Leyes confesses 10 bolls. Decerns. Robert Leyes confesses 10 bolls. Decerns. Modifies 9 l. for crop 1657, and for crop 1656 according to the fiars; so Caldeleugh is liable in half a firloft 'schilling,' crop 1657, 30 s. as the multure of 5 bolls of oats, with 5 mutties of meal, at 3s. the muttie, 15 s., being the knaveship, 45 s. in all, with 10 s. 8 d. expenses; and John and Robert Leyes are due half a boll 'schilling' as the multure of 20 bolls, at 6 l. for the 'schilling,' and half a firloft of meal, 3 l., in all 9 l. with 40 s. expenses.

John Scheill in Ersiltoune sues Andrew Pringle in Haukeburne for 36 l. Scots 'for the fraction of three trowps horse in Captan Walter Scott, Sir Walter Scott of Quhitslaid, and Robert Ker of Faldounsyd, their troupes, the yeire of God 1650, which money wase payed to him be James Lythgowe of Drygrainge'; also the half of 42 l. 3 s. 'received be him fra the toune of Melrose for fractiones of horse delyverd to him be William Edgar, Andro Phaup, and others, the yeire of God 16—.' Defender desired inspection, granted.—13 June 1657, defender failed to give in defences, so judge admits to probation.—4 July 1657, continued.—11 July 1657, Alexander Uschar deponed that James Lythgow and he did deliver to Andrew Pringill 'for the fractiones of thrie trouping horse' 72 l. Scots, whereof the said James had the receipt signed by Andrew Pringle, 'which sowme was allowit in the few maill dew be Mr. William Wallace to the Erle Hadington for certane bygane maills.'—30 January 1658, produced a discharge by Andrew Pringill in Halkburne to Andrew Phaupe for 42 l. 6 s. dated 6 July 1650.—3 July 1658, decerns conform to the libel and depositions and copy of discharge produced; execution to stay till the principal discharge is produced 'to ly in proces, never as yit extractit.'

Lithgow v.
Moffat.

Complaint by John Moffit in Threipwood against John Lythgow in Newhouses, who set to the pursuer the 'two-part' of a husband land in Threipwood, with houses, etc., in a three years' tack, and while the pursuer has paid to him the whole tack duty he refuses to grant a discharge, and has registered the tack and poinded the pursuer's goods. He also claims 20 l. yearly of damage through want of a 'sitt-house and barne and ane byre,' which by the tack he was obliged to erect for the pursuer in timber and stones, and the pursuer was to 'ture and theik conforme to the ordor of master and tenandrie.'—8 March 1658, probation.—22 May, copy of claim to be given to pursuer [sic].—19 June, reply produced, ordains defender to see and eik.—3 July 1658, absolves defender from the claim and promise, being referred by pursuer to his oath.

Mertoun v.
Merser.

John Merser, portioner of Brigend, sues James Mertoun, tailor there, for 3 l. Scots due to him for weaving 60 ells of woollen cloth, at 12 d. the ell. Also the defender out of malice about 4 years ago did 'sell and kill' a ewe of the pursuer's, price thereof with the lamb 5 l. Absolves defender on his oath from both claims.

Melrose, 10 July 1658

Purves v.
Anderson.

John Anderson, portioner of Ridpeth, is ordained to pay to James Purves in Ersiltoun 10 l. 18 s. Scots borrowed before Fastingsevin last, payable within 20 days thereafter under pain of doubling; decerned on pursuer's oath, defender absent; 20 s. expenses.

Hall v. Freir.

Katherine Hall, wife of Andrew Mar, portioner of Galtonsyde, sues Agnes Margit [sic] Freir, servitrix to John Halliewooll called Croce, and Margit Mein his spouse, in respect that 40 days before last Whitsunday the pursuer feed her with her master's consent from Whitsunday last to Martinmas next, for 5 l. of fee, half a peck of lint seed sowing, a pair of shoes worth 10 s., half an ell of 'lyneing' worth 8 s., and an ell of 'harden' worth 6 s. 8 d., notwithstanding whereof she remained in her former service, and the pursuer craves payment of 3 s. [? daily] since Whitsunday last as damages, or else of the fee and bounty. Defender denies, referred to her oath, who refers back to pursuer. Decerns either to enter home or pay the fee and bounty, being 6 l. 9 s. of principal, with 16 s. 8 d. expenses.

Richard Scلائter, portioner of Eildon, sues Margit Slater v. Anderson, wife of James Mein there, for 3 l. as the agreed-on price of a soom of sheep 'sett be him to hir in the West feild of Eildone in sumer present,' of which she promised payment at Whitsunday last. Decerns as confessed because pursuer deponed thereupon.

About Yule last Andrew Smyth, burgess of Lauder, bought from James Caldeleuch in Braidwoodscheills seven ewes at 40 s. the piece, which Thomas Caldeleuch his brother, at his direction, delivered to the pursuer, and there was a verbal condition that James and his brother should pasture them till Whitsunday thereafter; but on the pursuer going then to receive them, the defender refused to deliver them, though the pursuer several times offered the price agreed on and is still willing to pay. He ought therefore to deliver the ewes with their lambs, unclipped, or 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. for the piece overhead.—3 July 1658, pursuer refers to defender's oath, and is to find caution to answer, and defender is to have inspection of the claim.—10 July 1658, in respect defender granted the bargain, pursuer resiles from his oath and offers to prove that he offered the money the morning after the bargain. Thomas Caldeleuch declared the pursuer came with the money. Decerns to deliver the ewes, or 3 l. the piece, with 33 s. 4 d. expenses.

Act, Blainsly
v. Braidwood-scheil.

Complaint by John Pringill, portioner of the Nether-towne of Blainslie, John Sunhous, portioner there, John Darling and John Stirling, portioners there, for themselves and the rest of the feuars and possessors of the said town of Blainslie, against Thomas Caldeleuch in Braidwoodscheill, who unjustly, without any right, and contrary to all order of law, 'pastures, hirs and keipes the number of threttie thrie sowmes of horses, scheip and nolt, upon the infeild of the said Nethertowne of Blainslie, notwithstanding that the rowme of Braidwoodscheill wes and hes bein bot ever in use in all tymes bygane to pasture sex sowmes of scheip and nolt proportionallie upon the said ground of Blainslie and fourteine sowmes of horse, nolt and scheip upon the hill or outfeild, as can be evidentlie provin and notorie maid manifest both by the chartor of Braidwoodscheill and sindrie actis of court and sentences past heir in this judicatorie theranent, as the samen if they wer producit will schow.' Notwithstanding of their remonstrances, the defender continues to pasture in the hill, and they claim 3 l. for each of 13 'oversowmes,' extending to 39 l., and 10 l. of penalty imposed by a former act of this court. The judge ordains the defender 'to pasture twentie sex sowmes quher the nichtbours of Blainslie pastures thairis conforme to the chairtour, with ten pundis for each oversowme to be payit to the baillie.'

Little v.
Turner.

Thomas Little in Allaneschawes sues James Turneor in Nether Langschaw for 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. Scots due by him as cautioner for John Adame, servitor to Andrew Cairncroce, as the balance of 'gresmaill' for bestial pastured by the pursuer to him from Whitsunday 1657 to Whitsunday 1658, whereof he promised payment at St. Bernards day, Whitsunday, and Midsummer, all last bypast. Decerns on pursuer's oath, defender absent; 16 s. 8 d. expenses.

Mertoun and Merser.

John Merser, portioner of Brigend, depones he dreads bodily harm of James Mertoun, tailor in Brigend, who finds George Mertoun cautioner for the safety of the said John, under pain of 100 l.; and he deponing as above, John Merser has to find Thomas Law, portioner of Melros, cautioner in the like penalty for Mertoun's indemnity. '(Sic subscribitur) Tho. Law; I. M.; Geo. Wallace, cls. subserives for the saids James and George Mertounes.'

Marion Hendersone, widow in Longschaw, and Janet Wauch her daughter, sue Patrick Blakie, younger in Calfhill, for 4 l. 10 s. Scots of fee for half a year's service wrought by the said Janet Wauch to him from Whitsunday 1657 to Martinmas 1657. Held for confessed, 2 diet, defender absent; 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

John Scott, weaver in Galtounsyd, sues Richard Lowrie, Lowrie v. Scott.
servitor to George Scheill in Dainyeltoun, and present apprentice to him, because at Whitsunday last he hired himself, with consent of Katherine Bannatyne his mother, to be the pursuer's apprentice for three years thereafter, and promised 26 l. of 'prenteisfie,' and 'ane noltis gres of bounteth, pryce 40 s.' conforme to the indenture; and having accordingly entered to service, he abode 14 days and then causelessly deserted. He ought therefore either to enter home to service for the stipulated time and pay 10 merks 'for the break,' or else pay the prentice fee. Several defences being alleged at divers diets, and answers made by pursuer, the judge admits to pursuer's probation. William Mertoun in Westhouses, 24 years, depones that the defender and his brother came to the pursuer after the desertion and offered himself again in service upon new conditions, but the said John Scott would stand only to the first conditions, so they went away; knows nothing of the first condition. Thomas Bowstoun, younger, same age, depones as above. Pursuer gave his oath de calumnia. Absolves conform to the depositions.

Melrose, 24 July 1658, Gideon Jacksone

Adam Turnebull, mason in Newsteid, sues William Cairncrose in Allaneschawis for 5 l. 10 s. Scots 'for the bigging of his housse in Old Melrois sevin yeirs since or therby,' with 2 stones of cheese of bounty, at 3 l. the stone. Decerns on 3d diet for the money, and modifies 3 l. for the two stones of cheese; principal, 8 l. 10 s., expenses, 16 s. 8 d.

Rae v. Moffat. Robert Moffit, tenant to Sir Patrick Hamiltoun of Pres-toun, complains against Robert Rae, younger, in Threip-wood, who two years ago hired himself to be the pursuer's hind and servant for a year, from Whitsunday 1656 to Whitsunday 1657, with a woman servant with him; for which year's service the pursuer promised him 8 bolls of oats, Lothian measure, at 4 l. the boll, with 3 firlots bear or pease, at 3 l., with two sooms of goods, 'ane of kyne, the uther yewes,' at 4 l. the soom, and a boll of oats sowing and a firlot bear, worth 10 l.; but within 15 days before the term he came to the pursuer to give him over, which he refused, and suffered great loss for want of a hind. Defender deponed he hired himself to pursuer 'provyding his father and his wyfe wald be content,' and then gave over the pursuer. Absolves from the claim.

Henderson.*

Thomas Wright in Kaidislie sues John Hendersone in Blainslie, in respect the pursuer 14 days before Yule last had a grey web belonging to John Dunnant in Thirlestone Mill in weaving, who when it was woven desired him to deliver it to the defender to take to the walker in Galloscheills, Robert Maben, and the defender receiving it took and offered it to the walker 'upon the pand or wadset of sum monie, calling it his awin, quhich he refuist to give him, and thaireftir he went to William Maben and laid it in pand for 3 lib. 11 s. 6 d.' and now John Dinand is 'seiking' the pursuer for the same; yet Hendersone will not redeem the pledge, and thus has betrayed his trust. Defender denies, admitted to probation. William Maben in Galloscheills depones 'he payit xliij s. to George Freir for the defender and that he borrowit twa merk from himself and laid the web in pand to him and desyrit him to put it to Robert Maben to walk.' Robert Maben there depones he received the web 'from his nevoy, and de-claires nyne elnes walkit cloath.' 'Finds this cleirlye provin and decernes conforme, principall by the cloath is 3 lib. 10 s. 8 d. ex. for this onlie' [sic].

On 12th April 1658 a Minute of Contract was made between Thomas Forrester, only lawful son of the deceased Mr. Thomas Forrester, minister at Melrose, on the one part, and Helen Ker in Melros, on the other part, whereby for 350 merks he sold and dispoened to her 'his haille onsteid of houses and yaird within the precinct of Melrois,' her entry to be at Whitsunday last, which contract is in the custody of George Wallace, notary in Melros, and contains 20 merks of penalty. He has performed his part, but the defender refuses to do hers, so he with concurrence of Agnes Kennedie, his mother, desires the deed to be registered. Decerns the defender either to pay the penalty or observe the conditions claimed.

Forrester v.
Ker.

Complaint by John Merse, portioner of Brigend, that James Merton there on Ersiltoun fair day last in presence of famous witnesses 'did calumniat and sclander the persewar in his good name oppinly approving saying and avowing that he quhen he was sojour in England in anno 1643 and 1644 did murder Englishmen.' Defender denies, admits the pursuer's probation. Janet Lyes depones she knows nothing of defender's calumniating John Merse. Helen Bowstoun depones she heard them 'call uther swingeris, and hard ane of them call uther murder,' but knows not who it was. Defender absolved.

Merton v.
Merse.

Melrose, 31st July 1658

William Andersone, portioner of Ridpeth, sues George Merse in Coldstreame, portioner of Dernick, for 14 l. 2 s. Scots as the agreed-on price of the corn and straw of the teind of a husband land in Ridpeth, crop 1647, standing in stack in Ridpeth and intromitted with by the said George, who promised payment when he paid John Porterfeild the valued teind duty. Defender alleged the sum was allowed in an account between James Lythgow and the pursuer. Pursuer deponed it was never allowed in any account. Decerns.

Blakie v.
Cairncross.

John Blakie in Colmesliehill sues William Cairneroce of Allaneschawis for 14 l. Scots as the balance due for five sooms of goods, viz. 3 kine with their followers and a horse, set by pursuer to him and pastured with him a year past at Whitsunday upon the ground of Colmslie. Held as confessed.

Lookup v.
Cairncross.

William Cairneroce of Allanshaws is ordained to pay to James Lookupe in Melrois 48 s. Scots for 15 days' shearing in harvest 1655 at 4 s. per day, extending to 3 l. and whereof he received 12 s. and the balance is resting, conform to pursuer's oath.

Strong v.
sundry.

Mr. James Strong, schoolmaster at Melrois, seeks enforcement of a decret obtained by him, 17 October 1657, against 'the haill elderis of the parochin of Melrois and utheris thairinnamed' for his fees due to him 'out of the townes, rowmes and steids within the said parochie,' 1657. Judge interpones decret.

Drummond v.
Maben.

Thomas Drummond in Dainyeltoun represents that his yard adjoins that of Robert Maben in Dainyeltoun, and there is 'ane hedge of tymber growand upon ane balk pertening to the said Thomas,' but Robert Maben 'hes delled and castin upe the same unto the merche stones one the syde nixt his yaird, thinking to appropriat the same to him.' He desires the judge to cause George Boe in Dainyeltoun, Andrew Eilleis there, Thomas Eilleis there, and John Bichet there, 'pas and sicht the samene and sett doune merche stones betuixt them for schuning of contraversie in tyme comeing.'—24 July 1658, the judge authorises any three of them to set march stones and report to whom the hedge belongs and who is in the wrong.—30 July 1658, compeared upon the yards of Thomas Drummond and Robert Maben Gideon Jacksone, bailie of Melroisland, with Thomas Eilleis, wright in Dainyeltoune, George Boe there, and John Bichet there, who deponed the hedge belonged to Drumond's yard, and the entry at the east end of the said Thomas Drumond's house belongs also to him, and 'wee ordainet him to have the fuillie of the whole gate betuixt the commoun slope and the cist syde of the said entrie, because wee know that it did propperlie pertain to Thomas Drumonds predicssoris.'—31 July 1658, judge decerns conform.

William Cairncroce of Allaneschawes sues Andrew Darling, portioner of Apiltreelives, for 38 l. Scots as the price of a white nag bought from pursuer in oat seed time last. Held as confessed, the officer having personally cited defender to this, the third, diet; four merks of expenses. Darling v.
Cairncross.

Melrose, 14 August 1658, G. Jacksone

Andrew Garland in Clarilaw sues Thomas Gastoun in Lessudden for 10 merks as balance of price of 4 bolls of bear bought from pursuer in 1656 at 7 l. the boll. Defender alleged payment of the whole except 10 s. Scots; to prove. Defender's probation is thus:—At Selkirk, 14th August 1658, compeared judicially James and Peter Watsones, merchants burgesses of the said burgh, who being sworn by William Riddell, bailie there, deponed that Thomas Gaston in Lessudden in the said Peter's house paid to Andrew Garland 14 l. Scots as part of 15 l. 5 s. and also 15 s. Scots, so rests but 10 s. Signed by William Riddell, and Andrew Andisone, clerk. 10 s. paid judicially.—Same day, absolves defender, in respect of these depositions produced from the bailie of Selkirk. Gastoun v.
Garland.

William Henderson in Bentmiln sues Patrick Blakie, younger, in Calfhill, for 5 l. Scots as agreed-on price of half a boll of oat meal bought in March 1657, to be paid on 11th June thereafter. Decerns on pursuer's oath. Henderson v.
Blakie.

Also sues him for 12 l. promised for a year's service wrought by pursuer's son, William, to him from Whitsunday 1657 to Whitsunday 1658, with three ells of 'gray of bounty, at 24 s. the ell, and two ells of plaiding at 7 s. the ell. Decerns on pursuer's oath, modifying 20 s. for the gray and 6 s. for the plaiding; principal, 10[?] l. 5 s., expenses, 26 s. 8 d.

Act, Goodwife of Sorrolesfeild v. Janet Scheill [sic].

Complaint by Isobel Lythgow, goodwife of Sorrowlesfeild, and William Edgar, procurator fiscal, for his interest, against Janet Steinsone in Craixfoord, as follows :—Five weeks past last Sunday the said Janet came to complainer's house in Sorrowlesfeild, when she and her whole family were at Ersiltoun church except one servant woman who kept the house, and took away a full of bear and pease in time of divine service, which she hid in a yard in Craixfoord, 'and wes thairefter found out be Thomas Sclaitter, John Chisholme and John Feirgreive, as indwellaris there, which they maid knowin and divulgite to the persewar, and thaireftir scho tooke the samene from the place quher it wes hidden in into hir awin house; and being ryped be your Lordships order be Alexander Uschar, officer, both for that and uther things the persewar wantit, fand nothing in respect scho had dismissit these except onlie the said full beir, and wes thairefter brocht to thes towne quher it is yit in Thomas Law his house.' She ought therefore to be fined and punished conform to the acts of Parliament and common practice. Further she 'does oppinlie calumniat the persewaris deceist parents, speiking of them such scandalous words and speitches as is not worthie repetitioun.' Defender confesses she reset and brought from Sorrowlesfeild the time libelled a peck of victuall 'quhich was delyverit to hir be the goodwyffes servand woman'; admits last part to pursuer's probation; who passes from the whole; ordains defender to become acted not to trouble the pursuer in time coming by word or deed, under pain of banishment, who willingly enacted accordingly. George Wallace, notary, signs for her.

Melrose, 2d October 1658, Gideon Jacksone

Complaint by Margaret Ker, widow of James Cairncroce of Calfhill, and Anthony Murray now her spouse, against Barbara Cairncroce, wife of Mr. William Duguid, minister, portioner of Apletreleves, as follows:—About seven years ago Margaret Ker sent in to Edinburgh with Marion Fogo in Blainslie the sum of 18 l. Scots, which the said Marion delivered to the said Barbara ‘to have bocht ane pair of good and sufficient new plaids with to the persewar,’ as she had before promised to do and had asked the money to be sent; yet neither are the plaids delivered nor the money returned. Defender confesses receipt of the money, but alleges pursuer owed her a greater sum. Decerns upon her confession, and pursuer to find caution before extracting to answer at defender’s instance; Andrew Cuik in Melros becomes cautioner. Expenses, 40 s.

Ker v. Cairncroce.

Anthony Murray sues Alexander Uscher in Melrois who received from pursuer about 5 or 6 years ago in presence of witnesses 4 rex dollars, value 11 l. 12 s., to account of his feu maills of Ladopemure, for which he promised a discharge, ‘and which sowme wes nowayes allowit be the defender to the persewar duiring the defenders tyme in the service of chamberlanrie,’ and though the pursuer has since paid all bygones, the defender will not restore the said money. Ordains pursuer’s procurator to find caution to answer, and defender to have a copy of the claim to advise with his oath, to which it is referred.

Murray v. Uscher.

Darling v.
Darling.

Complaint by Andrew Darling, portioner of Apiltrieleives, against John, Philip, and Robert Darling, children and executors to the deceased Robert Darling, portioner of Apiltreeleives, and Margaret Darling, his widow, their overseer and administrative, as follows:—The defunct set to him on a five years' lease the third part of the lands of Apiltrieleives 'abone the Bray,' and the pursuer has paid out to Lord Hadintoune's factor for these lands beneath the Bray possessed by the said deceased Robert and his tenants yearly for 1655, 1656, 1657 and 1658 the sum of 7 l. 11 s. 1 d. Scots for the teind and tack duty of the lands 'beneath the Brae,' which the defenders ought to pay, but refuse. Held as confessed.

Also he sues them in respect that the defunct on 31 August 1657 granted receipt of a decret of valuation of the parsonage teinds of the lands of Langhauch given by the commissioners of valuation on 9th and 16th December 1609, and a tack of the vicarage teinds of Apiltreeleives and Longhauch dated . . . , to be redelivered before 31st August 1657, under a penalty of 40 l. ; yet they refuse to deliver the deeds. Continued.

James Mein in Wester Langlie sues Patrick Blakie, younger, who in May last bought from Thomas Elphingston in Galloscheills 3 bolls of bear at 7 l. the boll, and the pursuer became cautioner for the payment at Michaelmas thereafter, now past; and though payment is made, Patrick Blaikie will not relieve him. Decerns on defender's confession, with 26 s. 8 d. expenses.

Mein v.
Blaikie.

James Bowston, portioner of Galtounsyde, sues Thomas Wilson, heir and executor to deceased Patrick Wilson in Galtounsyde, his uncle, for delivery of a feather bolster worth 10 merks, and a covering worth 3 l., lent to defunct about 4 years ago, promised to be given up on demand. Defender granted his intromission and referred the worth to the pursuer's oath. Ordains to deliver back the bolster or 5 l. therefor, with the covering.

Boston v.
Wilson.

John Notman, miller at Longschawmiln, complains that William Bellendain in Ladopemure will not pay to him 8 l. due to pursuer by Mr. Archibald Murray, who gave precept to defender for payment thereof out of what he owed to the said Mr. Archibald. Decerns as confessed, with 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Notman v.
Bellenden.

Richieson and Purves v.
Blaikie.

Thomas Purves in Catpair, whom Barbara Ritchiesone his sister-in-law assigned to the sum, against Patrick Blaikie, younger, who borrowed from her 4 l. in 1645 and promised payment with a 'quarter of wool' for annual rent. Decerns as confessed, the assignation being produced.

Also sues James Barrie in Dykes for 4 l. as balance of price of 9 thrieves of straw bought from said Thomas 5 years ago. Continued.

Hislop v.
Adamson.

Claim by John Hislope, merchant in Jedburgh, against James Adamesone in Blainslie, to relieve him in respect of 9 l. Scots as balance of price of a black mare bought from William Scott, flesher in Jedburgh, who has obtained decret against Hislop as cautioner before the provost and bailies of Jedburgh for the debt and 13 s. 4 d. expenses. Decreet produced, decerns, with 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Hietoun v.

Robert Ridfoord in Dernick sues Andrew Hietoun there for 'thrie half firlottis aitts yeirlie thir sevin yeirs bygane for bounteth of monie,' which he began to pay. Absolves.

Ridfoord v.
Hietoun.

Also 11 s. [? 2 s.] for each of 8 days 'goeing at his pleuch,' and 5 s. for each of 3 days shearing, and 17 s. for a 'scheip bouk.' Decerns on defender's confession for 40 s.

Phaup's admission.

Andrew Phaup was admitted officer 'for good service done and to be done,' who gave his oath de fidei.

Bennet v.
Riddell.

Nicol Bennet in Lessudden sues Andrew Riddell there for a boll and 'ane meikill full' of bear promised at Michaelmas last 'for Patrick Riddell his brothers debt conteinet in ane decreit obtinet be him against him 14 Febuary 1658.' Decerns as confessed, bear at 7 l. 10 s., with 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Melrose, 4 December 1658, G. Jackson

sundry.

Complaint by Archibald Moffit, portioner of Threipwood, against John Lythgow in Newhouses, Alexander Hay, sometime portioner of Threipwode, now in Colmeslie, and James Moffit, portioner of Threipwood, as follows :—On 23 August 1656 and 31 October 1657 Margit Boyd, wife of Adam Darling in Westhouses, obtained two decreets against him for payment of 9 l. 6 s. 8 d. as the balance ‘ of ane sojors hyre in anno 1650,’ which he was to pay for his proportion and theirs, for the lands possessed by them, being for each husband land ; which they will not relieve him of. John Lythgow, for two lands and a half, and Alexander Hoy for one land, and James Moffit for one land, and the complainer for one land, each land stented to 32 s. Scots ; John Lythgow’s expenses 6 s. 8 d., each of the rest 3 s. 4 d.

John Riddell in Newtounne sues James Laidlaw there for 7 l. 10 s. Scots ‘ for land teilling this present cropt and yeir 1658.’ Defender alleged pursuer ‘ had not teilled the fauch.’ Decerns to pay 7 l. 10 s. and the pursuer ‘ to teill the fauch ; modifies 13 s. 4 d. for each yoking.’ Riddell v.
Laidlaw.

Claim by Thomas Bowston in Galtounsyde against Patrick Blakie, younger, in Calfhill, who a month before last Michaelmas sold him 3 bolls of bear at 7 l. the boll, ‘ with a litle full in therto,’ to be delivered at Martinmas thereafter, and he was to carry the bear or pay 6 s. for the carrying of each boll. Decerns for the bear or the sum acclaimed ; expenses, 36 s. Boston.

William Bell in Galtounsyde sues Janet Melros in Melrois for 3 l. and two ‘ scheir dargis ’ or 4 s. for each of them, for the year’s mail of a house in Melrose let by him to her, due at Whitsunday 1658. Ordains to pay 40 s. ‘ in compensatioun of all.’ Bell v. Melrose.

James Rodger in Ridpeth sues James Leithane in Galtounesyde, John Broun in Ridpeth, and Andrew Winter there, for 5 l. 12 s. 8 d. due by Leithane, 36 s. 10 d. by Broun, and 32 s. 4 d. by Winter. Held as confessed. Roger v.
sundry.

Melrose, 25 December 1658, G. Jackson

Caldcleugh v.
Adamson.

Complaint by Thomas Caldcleugh in Blainslie against James Adamesone there, as follows:—Att Whitsunday last James Lythgow of Drygrange set a tack to the pursuer of his 'thrie half lands' in Blainslie with houses and pertinents, 'except ane house and halle and yard formerlie possess be umquhill Issobell Stirling,' for 5 years from Whitsunday last, for yearly payment between Yule and Candlemas of ten bolls victual half meal, half bear, Roxburgh measure, with six kayne fowls yearly; and the defender having as he alleged obtained James Lythgow's consent came thereafter to the pursuer and took the subjects from him in presence of witnesses and has possessed the same since and pastured his beasts thereon, promising either to take assignation of the said tack or obtain a new tack. But James Adamson refuses to do so, and 20 days ago came to the pursuer and surrendered the property, and ought to relieve the pursuer of the year's duty and other conditions of the tack.—16 October 1658, probation, and meantime the bailie grants warrant for arreistment.—30 October 1658, ordains George Walker to see and answer. 13th November 1658, pursuer to reply to defences. Defender compeared and renounced his tack of the lands, to quit at Whitsunday next 'reserveand the cropt.' Follows the defences for James Adamesone in Blainslie against Thomas Caldcleuch in Braidwoodscheill[sic]:—1. No process before the bailie of Melrose, not being judge competent, the claim 'being in valour far above 40 s. sterling monie, and be the lait actis of union and act of grace no barron baillie hes powar and jurisdiction in materis abone the worth of 40 s. sterling.' Second, libel not relevant unless the pursuer referred verity to defender's oath, 'becaus one tak of land or houses is onlie probable be witnesses for one yeir.' 3. defender ought to be assoilzied because any tenant 'tho obleiset by ane tak, if he will mak faith that he is not able to labour the ground and pay the dewtie' (may resile), much more in this case where there is no written tack but a pretended condition or intention to accept a tack, which the defender might resile from any time before the subscribing thereof ; and he hereby resiles, and judicially renounces the lands and houses, and declares he will remove at Whitsunday next, and protests to be free of all dues after that term. The pursuer answers, 1. the bailie is judge competent in respect the payment is not in money but victual, and in regard to the subscribing of the tack. 2. the pursuer may either prove his claim or refer to defender's oath, at his option. 3. there is no such practice as is alleged of a tacksman renouncing his tack because he cannot labour the ground or pay the duty, and if such is the case, the pursuer ought to have inspection thereof ; and as to pretended conditions, the defender has not performed any and declares he will not. Defences repelled, and claim admitted to pursuer's probation.—11 December 1658, ordains to produce his tack.—Judge finds the libel sufficiently instructed by the Tack produced granted by Drygrange to the pursuer, and ordains defender, who confesses possession and inability to fulfil the conditions, either to find caution for payment of the tack duty, crop 1659, and performance of the other conditions, and to remove at Whitsunday next from the houses and grass, and from the arable land 'at the separatioun of the cornes off the ground,' or else to remove presently from all and repossess the pursuer, paying for the pasturage and grass of the defender's goods on the ground since last Whitsunday, the sum of _____, in satisfaction of all conditions and damage and costs the pursuer can claim. Defender confesses 15 sooms of bestial at 5 merks each soom. Caution to be found within four days, after which extracting to follow ; 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Melrose, 8th January 1659 ; G. Jackson

Janet Leyes, wife of Nicol Uschar in Brigend, sues Adam Hislope in Longschaw for 4 l. Scots as the balance of 36 l. for oats bought from her or her husband through George Scott in Greinshills in Gallowatter in 1651, with two years' interest for the full principal sum, being 4 l. 6 s. 8 d. Decerns on pursuer's oath for the 4 l. of interest; absolves for the other 4 l. claimed, as pursuer refused to depone.

Leyes and Usher v.
Hislop.

Drygrange v.
sundry.

James Lythgow of Drygrange complains against 'the haill inhabitants of Galtounsye' for cutting, destroying and removing 'the wood brome and hether' off his grounds and lands of Drygrange; desiring act of court with penalties to prevent future damage and that the 'bourlamen' in Galtounsye may be permitted to poind contraveners as they have been in use to do formerly. The bailie ordained pursuer to prove his claim 'befor the act could be extendit, and in the meantyme he presentlie grantit the desyre of the bill and that under the pain of ten merks Scotts.'

Boston v.
Henderson.

Complaint by Thomas Boustoune in Gattounsie Dry-grainge [sic], assignee of Isobel Boustoune, only lawful sister of deceased John Bowstoune, sometime servitor to deceased Hew Bell of Eister Langlie, and executrix testamentar and intromitter with all his goods and debts as contained in his testament confirmed 27 October 1656, as follows:—Margaret Hendersone, widow of James Mar, portioner of Gattounsie, and Andrew Mar, their eldest lawful son and heir, were addebted to the dec. John Bowstoune 50 merks with a year's interest due at Martinmas 1650, and 100 merks with three years' interest then due, and the annual-rents for the past eight years, extending to 62 l., the whole debt thus being 162 l., which Isobel assigned to Thomas on said 27 October 1656. Pursuer compearing, with John Bunyie his procurator, produced the Testament and Assignation; defenders compearing by Andrew Tunno, notary in Melrose (at least as procurator for Andrew Mar) gave in following defences:—that the Testament makes no mention of the said Andrew Mar as debtor, but only of Margaret Henderson his mother; and he denies either directly or indirectly borrowing sums from the defunct. It is answered, Andrew Mar cannot deny being heir to his father James Mar, as intromitter with his father's goods, so he and his mother ought to pay. It is replied that the answers are not categorical.—The judge finds that pursuer or his cedent can have no action against Andrew Mar because he is not debtor in the Testament produced, and he cannot be sued as heir to his father except the debt were owing by his father either by bond or otherwise acknowledged in his testament and his son confirmed executor to him, which is not instructed, and seeing Margaret Henderson is only executrix she ought to be distressed before the heir can be pursued ; so he absolves Andrew Mar from the pursuit, and decerns Margaret Henderson and James Bowstoune, now her spouse, to pay the principal sums and annualrents contained in John Boston's testament, and no further.

Melrose, 22d January 1659, G. Jackson

Janet Ker in Bowdon sues George Blakie in Melrois for Ker v. Blakie. 7 l. 11 s. Scots as price of two quoys bought from her before last Martinmas, and which he promised in her name to pay to the Earl of Roxburgh's chamberlains for rent owing by her. Defender confesses promising payment to Andrew Plumbur, chamberlain, or Andrew Turneble in his name. Decerns on his oath. ' Nota.—The samene wes arreisted at the instance of Robert Ker of Fadounsye, and the defender declairit the promise wes maid befor the daitt of the arreistment.'

James Rodger in Ridpeth sues James Hunter there and William Hunter there, for 6 l. 4 s. 4 d. and 14 l. 11 s. 2 d. Rodger v. sundry. respectively due by them of borrowed money. Decerns as confessed, defenders absent.

Robert Ker of Fadounsye sues James Wauch in Melrois Fadounsye v. Wauch. for 60 l. Scots borrowed 8 or 9 years ago.—Thomas Lookeupe, wright in Melrose, depones he knows nothing of the debt, ' bot hard the Laird crave James Wauch and that Andro Tunno and Andro Phaube offerit Fadounsyde fourtie merkis in James Wauchs name, bot knowes nothing quhither James Wauch wes content of it or not.' Andrew Tunno in Melrose depones that 'Fadounesyde and James Wauch being in his house both pairteis wes saying they wer auchtand utheris, and that he hard either of them crave uther, but what the certantie of the bissines wes knowes nothing.' James Ker in Melrose depones that about this time twelve month in Andrew Tunno's house he heard as above. Andrew Phaube in Melrose depones 'that at that tyme in Andro Tunno his house efter submissioun be Fadounsyde and James Wauch to Andro Tunno and me wee ordained James Wauch to pay to Fadounsyd fourtie merkis Scottis befor Candlemes thereafter, and that the said James offerit his word for the samene.' Thomas Law in Melrose depones 'he and James Ker wes dayismen in Mungo Donaldsones and hard Fadonsyde crave James Wauch, and that sumtymes 60 lib. and sumtymes 45 lib., and that James Wauch said he had payit 36 lib., bot to take away all contraversie he desyrit Thomas Law to give him a pleuch.' Thomas Lookupe, again examined, depones that 'all bussienes betuixt Robert Ker of Fadounsyde and James Wauch being referrit to Andro Tunno in Melros and Andro Phaup, the said Andro Tunno and Andro Phaube ordained and decerned the said James Wauch to pay and delyver to the said Robert Ker the sowme of fourtie merkis Scotts monie betuixt the day and dait foirsaid and Candlemes nixt thereafter, and that the said James wes willing to give his bond or word for the samen.' (This deposition taken on 21 January 1659 by Andrew Phaup extrajudicially.) The judge finds by the depositions of Lookup and Phaup that defender was ordained to pay 40 merks to pursuer in satisfaction of the claim, and thus the judge decerns, absolving him from the rest.

Mein v.
Blakie.

James Mein in Longlic complains against Patrick Blakie and George M'Callo, tenants in Calphill, whose horses, nolt and sheep have caten and destroyed 'to the persewar in harvest and sumer last in Calfhill the number of bolls aitts and comprysit to the foirsaid skaith be John Hall, Adame Hislope and William Bellendain, at the boll.

'Comprysers present sworne ordanet to give in the skaith

Margaret Chisholme depones she received some cloth, but what was of it knows not. Decerns Hair to pay the same, and the decreet arbitral produced by pursuer to be delivered up to him. Boston v.
Hair.

Stirling v.
Romanus.

Complaint by Bessie Rolmainhous in Blainslie, and the fiscal for his interest, against John Stirling there, who on the day of 1659 'hes teild upe severall merehe stounes betuixt them and not content thairwith quhen scho did reprove him therfor he did stryke hir upon the head with ane hissell rod twa severall tymes.' For this oppression and riot he ought to be fined.—12 February 1659, defender denied claim; fiscal referred it to his oath, who deponed he never struck pursuer or 'teild upe' the marche-stones. Absolves.

Edgar v. Ridpeth.

Decerns Alexander Ridpeth, wright in Melrose, to pay to William Edgar there 30 s. Scots 'for deficiencie of the mentinance in anno 1655 for his proportion of Daniyeltoun.' Decerns as confessed.

Melrose, 26 February 1659, G. Jackson

Purves v.
Darling.

Claim by Margaret Darling, widow in Apiltreeleives, against George Purves her servant, who about 2½ years ago intromitted with and took away 'ane yew hog' belonging to Robert Darling her husband and to her, worth 53 s. 4 d., and he ought to pay it and the interest thereof; also in oatseed time four years ago he 'burstit' a mare, worth 50 l., 'puting and binding three harrowes together for hes sueirnes to lift the ane at the land end.' Defender denied the claim, but granted he bought 3 hogs, and deponed he did not meddle with the hog libelled. Absolves from both points.

Bryden v.
Turnbull.

Robert Brydin, son of James Brydin in Lessudden, sues Andrew Turnebull there for 5 l. Scots of fee, five half firlots of bear of bounty, six loads of peats leading at 6 s. the load, for his bounty, for service wrought to defender from Whitsunday to Martinmas 1658; and he also promised to bring the pursuer's father two loads of peats from Huntliewood at 6 s. the piece, so 12 s. Defender granted the fee and half boll bear and four loads of peats. Ordains to carry two loads, absolves from the rest of the peats 'for want of aucht dayes service'; modifies for the half boll bear, 4 l. 6 s. 8 d. Expenses, 16 s. 8 d.

Barbara Law in Melrois sues Alison Bowstoun, wife of John Halliewooll in Galtounesyde, in respect that about ten years ago the said Alison bought and received from her and her deceased husband 'half [sic] pryce therof thrie pundis Scotts,' who refuses to pay. Defender depones she paid the debt 'at umquhill Johne Wricht the persewars husbands directioun.' Absolves.

Boston v.
Wright.

James Fogo, servitor to George Home in Hespieschaw, sues John Hendersone in Blainslie for 10 l. 7 s. as the agreed-on price of a two-year-old staig bought from pursuer at 'Luikday last,' to be paid at Candlemas. John Henderson's wife grants 9 l. 10 s. Decerns.

Fogo v.
Henryson.

Margaret Eilleis in Melros complains that Andrew Penman there at Martinmas last intromitted with and took away 'ane rig of broome of hers in the wards of Melros' valued at 10 merks, which he ought to pay, besides a fine of 40 s. conform to the act of court. The bailie ordained William Edgar, Thomas Mar, James Wallace, John Wallace, smith, and Adam Lythgow, 'to pas and sicht the ground and report to quhom it belonges with the broome.'—26 February 1659, they declare that 'that rig of broome which Andro Penman did pull does belong to Andro or James Riddells.' Absolves at Margaret Elleis' hands only.

Penman v.
Ellis.

Claim by Agnes Gastoun, widow in Lessudden, against Alison Milne, widow of James Riddell, portioner of Newtowne, and executrix dative to him, which James Riddell at his death in April 1655 was owing to the pursuer 80 l. Scots as the balance of the price of some bear bought from her several crops before. Pursuer compeared with Andrew Gastoun v.

Milne.

Tunno, notary in Melrose, as procurator, and defender compeared with John Bunyie in Newsteid as procurator, and gave in the following defences ('the lybell persewit be Agnes Gastoun in Newtoun [sic] against hir') :—It is granted that defender's husband made several bargains with pursuer and was owing her the sum libelled in 1650, at which time he made his testament, and thereafter five years intervened before his death, during which time he paid up the full debt. The pursuer is mala fide to prosecute, as it is notourly known to the whole regality that she was apprehended and imprisoned 'for ane witche' in 1650, and her oath of calumny cannot be taken nor can the defender refer any matter to her oath. In answer thereto the pursuer 'renders thanks' to defender's prolocutor for the acknowledgment of the debt being due in 1650, and further proof of the debt is needless, and so it is craved that the defender may prove payment by writ since that time, for as the debt is contained in a testament given up by the mouth of the defender's husband so they must take away writ by writ. And whereas the defender says the pursuer is mala fide to prosecute, as having been apprehended for a witch, 'givand and nocht grantand that scho wer a witch it followes not in law scho can or sould be denudit of the law.'—The judge finds the debt was due in 1650, and ordains defender to prove posterior payment either by writ, witnesses, or oath of party. The defender desired the pursuer's oath of calumny, who deponed the cause of pursuit to be just and not of malice ; on witnesses for the defence being examined. James Cochrane in Lessudden, married, 50 years, depones he heard James Riddell 'say he had the money lybellit in his pockit to pay the persewar, bot he saw none delyverit to hir, and that John Coatt and James Riddell went away both from him.' John Coatt, the pursuer's son, depones he knows nothing as to payment of the money, received none from Riddell, and never saw any delivered by him to his mother. Thomas Hunter in Lessudden depones quod nihil novit, and so depones Walter Coat. George Wallace, notary in Melros, depones 'that umquhill James

Riddell not long before his deceis said to the deponer that he had payit Agnes Gastoun the foursoir pundis acclamed and that he was awin hir nothing, and desyrit the deponer to mark it payit in his testament, which he accordinglie did marke, as will appear thairby, and desyrit him to keip the testament in his custodie in respect of sum provision of his childrein begottin of his first wyffe.'—The judge finds by the depositions that the defender has failed to prove payment subsequent to 1650, and ordains her to pay the same to the pursuer, with 8 merks of expenses.

Complaint by John Notman, miller at Longschaw mill, and Patrick Scott of Longschaw, his master, for his interest, against the following persons for abstracting their multure :—John Lythgow in Newhouses, 'ane whole yeirs girst extending to sextein bolls oattis,'; decerns for the multure thereof. John Hendrie in Allaneschawes, a year's grist, 20 bolls of oats; defender alleges he made none but sold all his growing and bought victual for the use of his howse [?], and is willing to bring his grist to the mill after the threshing (except the seed); ordains him to pay multure for 16 bolls. Thomas Caldeleuch in Blainslie, a year's grist, 24 bolls of oats; John Bunyie compeared as his procurator 'and wes content in his name to pay quhat onie uther in Blainslie or John Pringill there payes for his land.' Bessie Darling in Blainslie, for the grist of 20 bolls of oats 'now presentlie in hir custodie, bocht within the townes of Blainslie'; ordained to pay multure for 4 bolls. Nota, each 16 bolls oats, the multure whereof is 3 half firlots and a peck 'schilling' and a firlot meal, crop 1658, being counted to 3 firlots meal, price 9 l. Total, 27 l. of principal; 40 s. of expenses.

of a greater sum, and 4 l. for her servant's fee for shearing to him in harvest last, and a firloft of oatmeal in bounty, price 3 l. 10 s., and 4 merks as the price of 4 ells of 'lyning' bought by him from her about Yule last. Held as confessed, 2d diet; principal sum, 12 l. 8 s.; expenses, 20 s.

Bowar v. Rid-foord.

Isobel Bowar, widow in Melrois, sues Thomas Ridfoord in Melrois, for 10 l. Scots borrowed from her two years past at Lammas; of which he has paid two years' interest, but not the principal sum or the interest since last Lammas. Held as confessed; 10 l. 6 s. of principal, 13 s. 4 d. of expenses.

Merser v.
Turner.

Claim by Alexander Merser in Ersiltoune against James Turneor in Longschaw, in respect that between Yule and Martinmas last 'he' sold to 'him' 7 bolls and a meikle full of bear at the agreed-on price of 10 l. the boll, to be paid at Lammas next, and Isobel Smyth, wife of John Notman, at his desire received the same in his name from the defender [sic], 'and yit notwithstanding efter scho had received the said beir he hes either sauld the samene over again to anc man of Galloscheills or laid in to the malt,' and ought to deliver him as much and as good bear or the amount by which he is damnified through want thereof. Defender compearing by Andrew Tunno his procurator, denies claim; and this day compearing grants the bargain. Decerns to deliver the bear or otherwise two merks for each boll, as damages.

Brown v.
Adamson.

James Adamesone in Blainslie is ordered to pay to Margaret Broun, wife of Patrick Fogo in Phanes, 7 l. Scots for her harvest fee. Held as confessed, 2d diet; 20 s. expenses.

Bowie v. Penman.

Andrew Penman in Melros is ordered to pay to Thomas Bowie, multurer there, 3 l. Scots for the price of meal bought by himself and received by his wife two years ago. Held as confessed, 2d diet; 8 s. expenses.

John Notman, miller at Longshaw miln, and Patrick Scott his master, sue John Moffit called 'the Preist' in Threipwood for abstracting 8 bolls of oats, crop 1658. Decerns for the multure of 3 bolls.

Notman v.
Moffat.

Claim by John Halyday, burgess of Selkirk, against John Merser in Brigend, for 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. Scotts due by him to deceased Thomas Broun in Sunderland and contained in latter's testament confirmed in January 1656, and assigned by his executors to the pursuer. Decerns on production of the testament and assignation; 3d diet; 26 s. 8 d. of expenses.

Halyday v.
Merser.

Melrose, 26 March 1659, G. Jacksone

John Fischer of Westerhousebyre sues George M'Callo in Calfhill for 48 l. Scots as the agreed-on price of 42 lambs bought from pursuer last Midsummer and payment promised at Michaelmas and Martinmas. Decerns as confessed; expenses, 3 l. 6 s. 8 d.

Fisher v.
M'Callo.

Andrew Cairncroce of Wester Langlie desires the judge to interpone his authority to a decret obtained by him on 17th November 1655 against James Thorbrand in Lessudden for 15 l. of principal. Interpones, with 20 s. expenses.

Cairncross v.
Thorbrand.

John Maben in Cobbilhouse complains against Thomas Turneor, servitor to James Lythgow of Drygrange, in respect that at Whitsunday 1658 the defender promised to serve him till Martinmas thereafter, for 10 l. of fee, 6 quarters of 'gray' at 26 s. 8 d. the ell, an ell of white, two pairs of shoes at 12 s. the pair, and he entered to his service and remained till August, and then deserted. He ought to pay the fee and bounty, and also 58 s. borrowed from pursuer and his wife and daughter. Defender alleged pursuer was willing to let him remove at that time; ordained to prove this exception; resiles therefrom, and refers to pursuer's oath.—Defender absent, pursuer de-pones 'he wes nowayes willing to him to remove bot upon these termes that the defender served either in Roxburgh or Forrest, he promittit to serve him or else give him a fie.' Decerns for the fee, viz. 6 l. 12 s. Absolves from the bounty. Decerns for the 56 s. [sic].

Scott v.
Henryson.

Bessie Scott in Galloscheills, and John Saidler, her spouse, sue Margaret Henrysone, wife of James Bowstoun in Galtounsye, for 16 l. 6 s. computed in presence of famous witnesses within the past six weeks. Pursuer present, decerns upon her oath for the said sum, 'and declairit scho received no peis for continuatioun of the sowme acclamed, as the defender allegit, bot that scho received half a peck in part of payment therof.'

Brounley v.
Blakie.

John Brounllyes in Chappell sues Patrick Blakie in Calfhill for 7 l. Scots as the balance of the price of some bear bought 3 years ago. Claim referred to pursuer, who depones for 7 l. less 20 d. Decerns, with 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

James Lithgow of Drygrange v.
John Rodger.

Complaint by James Lythgow of Drygrange against John Rodger, portioner of Ridpeth, as follows:—The said John has 'wrongouslie cuttit intromittit with and away taiken furth and from the said James Lithgow persewer his wood in Ridpeth the number of twentie oak and uther treis pryce and worth of each trie ,' which he ought to pay, with a fine also for cutting greenwood; and the pursuer desired the bailie to direct John Mein, portioner of Newsteid, George Bell, William Andersone, and Andrew Cairneroce, portioners of Ridpeth, to sight the ground and report the number and worth of the trees and what damage the pursuer had suffered.—5 June 1658, ordains the said persons or any three of them to report as above.—They find that 14 oak trees are cut and taken away from that part of the wood in Ridpeth above mentioned which pertained to the deceased Thomas Lythgow and now pertains to the said James Lythgow of Drygrange, his son; report dated at the said wood, 18 June 1658.—

Pursuer compearing by John Bunyie, portioner of Newsteid, his procurator, the defender compearing by Andrew Tunno, notary in Melrose, his procurator, desired the pursuer's oath of calumny before his witnesses be admitted ; pursuer to be present and give his oath before sentence is pronounced.—19 June 1658, Witnesses for pursuer :—George Bell, portioner of Ridpeth, married, 50 years, depones that about 30 years ago the wood was cut by the deceased Thomas Lythgow, and that the trees cut by John Rodger were cut out of the same wood ; ‘ and that it hes bein wed be the said umquhill Thomas and his sone without interruptioun ’ ; knows nothing anent the marches between John Rodger and Drygrange. William Andersone, portioner there, married, 60 years, depones as the preceding ; knows nothing anent the ground and marches. Andrew Cairncroce, portioner there, married, 40 years, depones as above. John Mein, portioner of Newsteid, married, 61 years, depones that about 34 years ago he bought the wood from deceased Thomas Lythgow whence the timber is cut, and declares the trees are cut from the same ground, and that there are about 12 trees cut within the bounds ; knows nothing of the marches. Judge continues sentence till he may advise the process.—30th October 1658, ordains Rodger to be summoned to hear sentence, and pursuer to give his oath of calumny. Defences by John Rodger follow :—Denies cutting any of pursuer's trees, and latter ought to prove the number, quality, worth, and ownership of those alleged to be cut. One witness alleges that the pursuer's father cut the wood 30 years ago, and another witness alleges he bought the same from pursuer's father 34 years ago ; these are conflicting, and the wood could not grow again in four years ; and if they prove anything, it is only the ownership of the land. For clearing the truth, the defender declares that his mother and he set the ground and land whereon the wood grew to the pursuer's father for seven years, during which time the latter cut the wood, to which he had no right, but took advantage of the defender's absence, ‘ who was then dwelling in the Mearnes att Fettercairne, which is distant from the defenders residence now [sic] ane hundreth milles.'—8th January 1659, pursuer gives his oath of calumny; and gives in answers to the defences, as follows:—The witnesses have clearly proved that defender cut about 12 trees from the pursuer's wood, 'quhich hath bein cuttit be his umquhill father and uthers in his name 34 yeirs or therabouts and ever since sen wed and cuttit be them without interruption,' and the worth has been proved, and in all probability the wood and the ground belong thus to the pursuer. As to the second point, there is little discrepancy among the witnesses as to the time of cutting and selling. As to any tack being granted by defender or his mother, neither the pursuer nor his father have ever taken any part of their ground from them, and if such there was, it ought to be exhibited and the pursuer to have inspection thereof.—The judge ordains the defender to produce evidence of his granting a tack of the ground, and also to prove his own right to the land and wood controverted.—22 January 1659, defender's procurator to have a copy of above interlocutor.—26 February 1659, ordains as before, to answer peremptorily.—12 March 1659, avisandum.—26 March 1659, the judge finds that defender has failed to prove setting a tack for 7 years to pursuer's father, and his own right to the ground, and so finds it most probable by the depositions that the ground controverted belonged heritably to pursuer's father and to him as his heir, and finds that defender has done wrong in cutting and removing the trees, and ordains him to pay to pursuer 3 s. Scots for each of 12 trees, and to desist from further cutting of trees on that land under pain of 20 l.; he is also to pay 10 l. to the procurator fiscal for cutting greenwood contrary to the act of Parliament. This being pronounced in presence of parties and procurators, the defender declined the judicatory and appealed, and asked act of court thereupon. This appeal being irrelevant, as it ought to have been done upon the defender's first, second and third citations and before interlocutor and sentence, the bailie refused to admit the same and sustained himself judge and decerned in manner foresaid, and ordained defender to pay to pursuer 5 l. 6 s. 8 d. of expenses of plea.

Claim by Thomas Cochrane, portioner of Newtoun, Cochrane v. Clerk.
against William Clerk in Colmesliehill, in respect that at St. Mungo's day last he bought from the defender a boll of good seed oats and paid him the full price, but he has never delivered them, and ought to pay 10 l. Scots. Decerns for 8 l., with 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

James Hendersone in Calfhill sues John Hendrie in Henderson v. Hendrie.
Allaneschawes for a year's fee due at Whitsunday last, being 16 l. Scots. Defender alleges pursuer was nine weeks absent from his service, 'and alledgit tua sowmes of scheip and ane kow.' Decerns on defender's confession for the fee; expenses, 16 s. 8 d.

James Lythgow of Drygrange, portioner of Ridpeth, Drygrange v. sundry. complains against George Bell, John Mein, smith, Alexander Richardsone, Andrew Winter, John Rodger, Andrew Cairncroce, John Steinsone, William Andersone, James Hunter, William Hunter, Jean Cairncroce, John Andersone, James Rodger, Thomas Turneour, who and their servants and others, inhabitants of Ridpeth, cut, destroy and take away the 'broome, whines, thornes, and bramells' out of his ground; and desires act of court for preventing this in future. Ordains and enacts, under pain of 5 l.

Kirk-session v.
Cairncross.

Complaint by the minister and kirk-session of Melros against Andrew Cairncroce of Wolplaw and Wester Longley, who is owing to them 7 l. Scots 'for a stent of repairing of the kirk of Melros.' Decerns conform to the stent.

Duncan v.
Mein.

William Edgar, procurator fiscal, portioner of Melrose, arraigns John Duncan, cooper in Ridpeth, and John Mein, his brother-in-law, in respect that on Thursday last on their way out of this town at night they fought with and struck and abused one another, and ought to pay the fine required by act of Parliament. Both denied, and it is referred to their oath; deponed they did not strike or touch one another. Absolved.

Melrose, 23d April 1659, G. Jackson

Riddell v.
Law.

'The said day Thomas Law, weivar in Melros, hes undertaiken to weive twentie elnes of sairge to Walter Riddell betuixt and Midsomer nixt.'

Earl of Hadinton v.
Pertus.

James Pertus in Plewlands is decerned to pay to John, Earl of Hadinton, 100 l. for the feu duty of Plewland, Whitsunday and Martinmas 1658, conform to his promise.

Darling v.
Caldeleugh.

Thomas and Edward Darling, portioners of Blainslie, and John Stirling, portioner there, sue Thomas Caldeleuch in Braidwood scheill, who at Candlemas last bought from them 40 threaves of oat straw at 12 s. Scots per threave, and he has received 26 threaves thereof, but refuses the rest and the payment for all. Defender granted promise of payment. Decerns for what is received, at the price claimed.

Davidson v.
Fisher.

William Davidstone, servant to Andrew Tunno, notary in Melros, sues William Fischer, portioner of Darnick, as cautioner for the deceased Andrew Darling called Easter, portioner of Apiltrieleives, for 8 l. 5 s. Scots contained in a decret by pursuer against defunct two years ago, upon which defender became cautioner to pay, and paid 12 s. Scots thereof. Held as confessed, defender absent, 3d diet ; 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Complaint by Helen Wricht, Lady Glediswood, against James Rodger, Andrew and James Cairncroce, John Andersone and William Hunter, portioners of Ridpeth, whose horses, nolt, and sheep daily trespass on the lands of Glediswod, eating and destroying her grass and corn ; and she desires an act of neighbourhood. Defenders absent, except Andrew Cairncroce, who desired the like act in regard to her beasts, pasturing on the ground of Ridpeth (to whom it was answered that they ought to cite her before the judicatory under which she dwells), the bailie enacts and ordains that for every horse or mare found upon the pursuer's ground hereafter shall be paid 16 d. Scots, ' eight ' [probably mistake for each] nolt, 8 d., and each sheep 4 d., as often as they contravene.

William Maben in Galloscheills sues Janet Scott in Melrois for 12 l. as the agreed-on price of two stones of lint bought from him, to be paid last Midsummer ; more for a pair of ' kairds,' 15 s. Pursuer granted receipt of 14 ells ' round cloath ' ; decerns for the rest ; 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

John Mein, elder, portioner of Newsteid, sues Alexander Ridpeth, wright in Melrois, for 58 s. as the balance of the price of some wood bought from pursuer at Martinmas last, growing at Fauchhill Dean. Decerns ; 8 s. expenses.

Claim by John Cruikis and William Maben, bailies in Galloscheills, against Andrew Cairncroce of Wester Langlie, in respect that they bought and paid for ' ane bauk of wood ' from him at the price of 120 l. and they have his discharge (without clause of warrandice or registration), but he will not yield up the contract made between them, to be cancelled ; or have the discharge renewed, with these clauses. Ordains the defender of his own consent to renew the discharge conform to the claim, and pursuers to find caution to answer as law will.

Scott v.
M'Callo.

William Scott, herd in Calfhill, sues George M'Callo there for two bolls of oats promised to pursuer 'for his hird bell' in 1658, to be delivered between Martinmas and Yule last, which he refuses to deliver, or pay 10 l. for each boll; also 3 l. Scots for service wrought by pursuer's son, James Scott, to the defender since St. Mungoisday to this same day. Decerns on pursuer's oath for two bolls oats, modified to 6 l. the boll; the judge of consent of both parties allows 36 s. for the fee; expenses, 26 s. 8 d.

Maccalo v.
Scott.

Claim by said George M'Callo on said William Scott, who pastured on his ground 30 sheep 'of oversoumes' from Whitsunday 1658 to Whitsunday 1659, at 10 merks each soom; whereof he ought to pay at least the just half. Defender denied, and pursuer referred it to his oath; restricts the libel, of pursuer's consent, to 15 sheep. Ordains defender to pay 7 l. 10 s.

Merser v.
Merser.

James Merser in Newsteid sues James Merser in Galtounsyde, who at Yule last sold to pursuer 4 bolls infield oats, which were paid, and to be delivered about Candlemas thereafter; but no delivery is made. Decerns for 28 l. for the whole; expenses, 26 s. 8 d.

Bell v. Maben.

Complaint by William Bell, portioner of Galtounesyde, against John Maben in Cobilhous, 'mentioning that quhairas he having sex buttis of land lyand upon the north syde of the cobilhous, and trew it is that he be his bestiall and uthers strangers bestiall that hants and frequents his house in the comone passe to and from the cobill, hes eatin and distroyit the last cropt 1658 thrie peeks beir and comprysit thairto be James Bowstoun, Andro Mar and James Merser; and the samene being sawin with aits and ry this yeir, he be himselff his awin bestiall and uthers that hants and frequents his hous hes eatin up the whole braird thairof and will by that mean

'Actis xvj d. for each horse, 8 d. for each nolt, and four for the scheip, that sall be apprehendit thairupon in tyme coming.'

William Fischer, portioner of Eister Langley, complains that Jean Hunter, portioner there, and her children and servants, do 'cutt with hooks, break doune, destroy and awaytak the whole unpartit broome betuixt him and hir,' and he desires act of neighbourhood. The bailie ordains that neither party cut or take any 'unp[ar]tit' broom 'equallie belonging to both of them alyke' until the same be first 'set a part and divydit betuixt them,' and after partition each party is to touch only that which belongs to him or her, under pain of 40 s. Scots to be paid by the contravener.

Fisher v.
Hunter.

Melrose, 7th May 1659, G. Jackson

Andrew Gastoun in Lessudden sues James Gastoun, portioner there, indweller in Sanct Boiswells, for 70 l. Scots as the price of some bear bought from complainer 7 or 8 years ago, conform to accounting between them a year after before witnesses, and 4 l. 3 s. of annual rent, being 33 l. 4 s. in eight years, and half a firLOT of pease. Pursuer compearing with John Bunyie his procurator, and defender with Andrew Tunno his procurator, the latter denied any money due to pursuer for bear or any other thing, and granted only the pease. Two terms being assigned to pursuer, and this day being the third and last diet, pursuer produced David Unes in Lessudden as a witness to whom both parties referred the controversy, Gastoun v.

Gastoun.

but he refused to accept, and also refused to depone as a witness till next court day 'wntill Walter Coatt in Cameistoun wer also present there with him to depone, quhom he alledgit knew much moir of the bussienes nor he knew,' whereupon the defender and his procurator took instruments; and as this day was the last term assigned for probation, the bailie holds the pursuer has falied therein and grants absolvitor, reserving to the pursuer his action of reduction as accords of the law.

Cairncross v.
Henry.

Agnes Cairncros in Allaneschawes complains on John Henry there, who at Yule last bought from her a cow and a stirk, 'sche being then with calf,' at 25 l. to be paid on 11th June thereafter, and he was not to remove the beasts off the ground of Allaneschawes till she was paid; yet he has removed them to Litle Catpair, thinking to defraud her of payment, as he is to remove from Allanshaws at Whit. next. She therefore craves security, 'or the kow brocht bak.' He also owes her a rix dollar, borrowed last January. Defender acknowledges purchase and receipt of the cow and stirk, but alleges the price is much less than is claimed; denies the dollar. Referred to his oath, who refuses to depone. Decerns.

Hunter v.
Merser.

Jean Hunter, goodwife of Eister Langlie, sues James Merser there, her tenant, for 23 l. as the balance of last Martinmas rent, and 52 l. 10 s. as the approaching Whitsunday rent, and as he is to remove she desires arrestment upon the action depending; which was granted on the first diet. Defender grants 19 l. 6 s. of the first part; decerns, and also decerns for the last part, suspending execution till 15 days after this Whitsunday; 5 l. 6 s. 8 d. of expenses.

Grierson v.
Bowstoun.

George Greirson in Dernick sues Margaret Bowstoun in Galtonsyde, and James Bowstoun there, her cautioner, for 8 l. Scots, resting for the price of malt bought from him in 1645. Decerns on cautioner's acknowledgment; 13 s. 4 d. of expenses.

William Andersone, merchant in Melros, sues George Aird, herd in Danyeltoun, for 5 l. Scots as the rent of a house and yard in Dainyeltoun set to defender from Whitsunday 1658 to Whitsunday 1659. Decerns for 4 l. 'and to frie the tennent at John Andersone the masters hand.' Paid judicially and discharged. Anderson v. Aird.

Michael Gibsone in Melros sues Thomas Ridfoord there for 3 l. 11 s. Scots for flesh bought from pursuer before last Martinmas. Decerns as confessed, defender absent; 6 s. 8 d. expenses. Gibson v. Ridford.

Complaint by George Pringill of Buckholme, and Alexander Uschar in Melros, his tenant, against the whole inhabitants of Melros and Dainyeltoun, 'who both by day and nicht does frequent and mak comoun gaitts and rodís throw his yairds in Melros quher never non wes maid befor, and dois throw down his dykes of his yairds to his hurt and prejudice,' so he desires an act for preventing this. The bailie fines each contravener 6 s. 8 d. Buckholm v. sundry.

Claim by George M'Callo in Calfhill against Patrick Blackie there, to whom at Lammas last he gave 14 l. Scots to pay the monthly maintenance, but he was forced to pay the same over again, 'thrie trouperis comeing from Jedburgh and quartering upon him sex dayes, and his expenses in Margaret Eilleis in Melros, which comes to sevintene punds,' the whole being 32 l. 12 s. Scots; and the defender will not account. Defender on first diet constituted John Bunyie his procurator; second diet, denied the libel, which is admitted to pursuer's probation; 3d diet, decerns as confessed, defender absent; 26 s. 8 d. of expenses. M'Callo v. Blakie.

Thomas Cranstoun sues William Cairncros of Allanshawes for 11 s. sterling as the balance of a greater sum. Decerns as confessed, 3d diet, defender absent. Cranston v. Carincross.

Claim by Nicol Cairncroce in Threipwood against John Henry. Cairncross v. Henry.

Hendrie in Allaneschawes, who at Whitsunday last received from him 'in gressing and hirling' the number of 65 hogs, and was to keep the same till Whitsunday next, 'whereof he promittit him aither skin or birne conforme to the use of hirling,' and the pursuer promised to pay 4*l.* 10*s.* for each soom; yet by his sloth and negligence in not putting a sufficient herd therewith the defender has lost the whole goods, price of the piece 53*s.* 4*d.* and ought to pay the same, in regard he delivered the pursuer neither 'skin nor birne.' Andrew Aitchiesone in Threipwood, 50 years, depones 'he knowes not how many wes of the hoggis, bot he himselff did smeir them wes of them, and as he hard by the report of utheris thair was lxxv thairrof, and ar all lost by the defender not puting a hird thairto.' Thomas Little in Alaneschawes, unmarried, 25 years, depones 'thair wes thric-scoir and fyve of the hogges at the tyme of the smeiring, and that they had never a constant hird the tyme of the storme, and by that the goods wes lost, and knowes nocht ells.' James Moffit in Threipwood 'depones he knowes the hogges wes smeired be the persewar and taikin upe be him to Allaneschawes, and declaires it is the common custome to give skin and birne or utherwayes they get no gres maill, and knowes no farder.' Decerns defender to pay 60*l.* Scots in full contentation of the claim, and pursuer to deduce therefrom the grass maill or what remains unpaid thereof; 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* expenses.

Melrose, 21st May 1659, G. Jackson

Wallace v.
Lamb.

James Wallace, smith in Bowdone, sues Patrick [Lamb] in Elleistoune, executor to dec. William Lamb, his brother, in Elleistoune, for 5*l.* Scots due by defunct for smith-work, and 40*s.* Scots 'for the gres of one ley rig.'—7th May 1659, first diet, defender denies to be executor; assigns him the next court to depone, pursuer referring the promise to his oath.—21 May 1659, held as confessed; 20*s.* expenses.

Gibson v.
Pringle.

Claim by Michael Gibsone in Melrois against John

Pringill in Blainslie, who ‘upon Monday bygane fourtein dayes’ sold to him a black naig for 30 l. 12 s., whercof the pursuer paid 27 l. 12 s., ‘quhich naig he delyverit to him upon Satterday and uphald the samene frie of crook and cold or onie uther fault, and for that effect grantit him aucht dayes tryell of the said naig, in presence of Thomas Mar in Melros, George Pringill thair, and James Haistie in Blainslie; and the horse being crooked in the hinder legis the persewar send the samene bak to the defender upon Tuysday last thairefter, quhich he received,’ but refuses to pay back the money. Thomas Mar in Melros depones that the defender upheld the naig free of crook and cold, but he heard no time prefixed for trial, ‘bot the defender offerit to tak the naig back in cais he had any fault.’ George Pringill depones that the defender upheld the naig free of crook and cold, ‘and that he offerit the persewar both monie and the naig bak, bot knowes not how long the defender give the persewar to try him in.’ James Haistie depones the defender ‘upheld the naig no longer nor the delyvery, and if onie in Blainslie could say he had either crook or cold that he sould delyver the monie and naig both; and that he naither hard the persewar desyre 8 dayes nor the defender grant.’ Michael Gibsone depones the defender offered to uphold the horse until Saturday, ‘and that he send bak the horse one Tuesday.’ Decerns the defender to receive his horse and deliver back the pursuer’s money.

Complaint by George Alexander in Moshouses against John Notman in Longschawmiln, who at Whit. 1658 borrowed from him ‘thrie half fulls of beir’ and promised to pay the same in bear or money at the common price; also he is owing 36 s. as the price of ‘ane mill half furlott of ry’ bought in March last, Grants the rye. Also he detains from him a new sack which he received from Anthony Murray to give to the pursuer, Anthony having borrowed it two years ago, and it is worth 36 s. Grants the sack. [No decision mentioned.]

Decreet,
Alexander v.
Notman.

Act anent
muirfowl.

Complaint against William Tuntar, fowler and indweller in Ancrum, and King, fowler, indweller in , who daily frequent the mosses of Threipwood and Blainslie with their setting dogs and nets, and the whole muirs about Moshouses, Colmesliehill, Blainslies, Threipwod, Newhouses, Allaneschawes, Threipwood rig and all other muirs lying within the lordship of Melrois where muirfowl 'uses to hant, and with thair saids nettis and setting doggis doeth destroy and take all the murecockis, murehens that is sitting upon thair eggis, and wilduckes which are sitting lykewayes, which comes in thair way, so that therby they doe not onlie destroy the old foullis contrair to many good actis of Parliament maid thairanent, but by killing of them the whole eggis and young puittis of the hennes and duikis so taiken be them are lykewayes destroyed therby.' Therefore the bailie ordains and enacts that no person within the lordship of Melrose shall reset any of these fowlers or others hereafter in their houses by night or day, without the Earl of Haddington's warrant in writing, under penalty of 10 merks for the first fault, 20 merks for the second, and 40 merks for the third, and imprisonment besides for 48 hours for each fault, the penalties to be uplifted without defalcation, and half given to the informer and half to be used as the bailie depute shall direct. And if any of the fowlers be found hereafter with setting dogs or nets ranging the muirs without written permission, they shall be liable in the same penalties, half to go to the apprehender and half as the bailie shall order, and their dogs shall be hanged, and the nets taken from them, and themselves imprisoned for 48 hours. 'And because thair is mair hirds and uther idle persones within the foirsaidis bounds in the sumer tyme that uses to sett girnes and catch the murehennes and wyld duiks that are sitting upon eggis, quhilk not onlie destroyeth the old foulls bot lykewayes the young as said is,' it is therefore enacted that no person shall hereafter set 'girnes' upon any of the mosses or muirs within the lordship of Melrose for taking of muirhens or wild ducks off their eggis, under the penalty of 5 l. for the first fault, 10 l. for the second, and 20 merks for the third, to be applied as aforesaid, and imprisonment besides for 48 hours for each fault. Ordains Alexander Uschar to make public intimation hereof at the market cross of Melrose; which was done the same day, in presence of James Ker, elder in Melros, William Anderson, merchant there, and Andrew Kennedie, portioner of Dernick.

Melrose, 4th June 1659

John Bowar, Wester, depones he dreads bodily harm of John Bowar, Eister, portioner of Eildon, who is ordained to find lawborrows in 100 l. and he finds Andrew Penman, portioner of Melrois, cautioner for that effect; witnesses, Alexander Uschar, and Thomas Law, portioner of Melrose.

Bowar v.
Bowar.

Claim by John and Richard Bowstoun, cordiners in Dernick, against William Hoy, portioner of Galtounsye, called 'East Coatt,' who about 7 years ago was copartner with them 'of ane bargane of wood bark and baich' bought by them from James Lythgow of Drygrange and then growing upon 'Tweid hewch,' and he promised them 4 rix dollars to quit the bargain, whereupon they gave over the whole bargain to him; but he has never yet paid the money. Defender grants he promised the dollars in Drygrange's name. Pursuers deponc they made no new paction with Drygrange after the condition made with Hoy and the foresaid promise. [No decision stated.]

Decreet,
Bowstoun v.
Hoy.

William Edgar, portioner of Melrose, in name of the minister and elders of the parish of Melrose, sues Thomas Law, weaver in Melrose, for 11 l. 13 s. 4 d. Scots as the balance of 100 merks due by him. Granted the debt. Decerns; 13 s. 4 d. of expenses.

Kirk-session
v. Law.

Complaint by William Edgar, portioner of Melrose, against Adam Lythgow, weaver, portioner there, whose parts of ground lie contiguous with the pursuer's upon

Act among the portioners of Waids in Melrose.

Scotts bray, and the said Adam contrary to the whole neighbours of the town and order of neighbourhood and in prejudice of the pursuer and remanent possessors in the Wairds of Melrose has both this year and last year tilled and sown his part of outfield ground in Scottisbray and the other brae be-east it called Tumbleingbray, 'and the persewaris partis and the rest of the townes all lyand ley round about him, swa that therby he impeids and stoppis them in the pastureage of thair horses and utheris bestiall ; and nochtwithstanding of all this the said Adame pastures hirds feides and keipes his four nolt daylie upon the Wairds and upon the persewar and the rest of the nichtbouris thair ground, albeit he hes his part of the ground teild and sawin, as said is, and therby does michtilie pre-judge and wrong the towne and the persewar lykewayes.' An act is desired that no man should till and sow any outfield ground in the Wairds in time coming except when the whole town condescends to till all together, and that no nolt pasture upon the Wairds in the summer time without consent foresaid. The bailie enacts accordingly under a penalty of 10 merks for each contravention.

Lithgow v.
Bell.

Claim by Thomas Lythgow, writer in Edinburgh, against George Bell, portioner of Ridpeth, for 48 s. Scots disbursed by pursuer 'for the defender's use and the rest of his nichtboris, and by his misive letter promittit him payment.' Decerns on pursuer's oath.

Michael Gibsone in Melrois sues Mr. John Currie, portioner of Newtoun, for 8 l. 10 s. for flesh. Held as confessed ; 12 s. expenses.

Halliwel v.
Heckford and Merser.

Complaint by Margaret Eckfoord, wife of James Merser, in Galtounesyde, and him for his interest, against Isobel Halliewooll, widow of Quentin Mertoun there, as follows :— There was a contract of wadset between the said Isobel Halliewooll and the said [sic] deceased Robert Mein, the pursuer's umquhile spouse, whereby she with consent of Thomas Mertoun her eldest lawful son, did wadset to the said Robert Mein two acres of land in Galtonside, off which the said Isobel has detained from them 'ane rige lyand in the Gootter' for the past 20 years, which rig 'wald have sawin yeirlic ane furlott of beir,' so that the pursuer and her spouse are damnified yearly for the past 20 years in four firlots of bear with the fodder as the increase and profit of the said rig; which ought therefore to be paid, and they to be put in possession of the rig for the future. Pursuers compearing with Andrew Tunno, notary in Melrose, as procurator, and defender compearing with Thomas Law in Melrose, her procurator, the latter gave in defences as follows:—It is denied that the defender has any such rig pertaining to the two acres of land wadset, and the pursuer's first husband received the whole land contained in the contract. Secondly, the pursuers ought to instruct their title to the two acres of land and grant sight thereof to the defender before any process. The pursuers answer that for instructing their title the contract of wadset is produced, with an obligation by the defender to Margaret Eckford herself; and 'it is great impudencie to the defender to deny the deteining of the said rig from the persewar, who will find it bitternes in the end for deteining the said rig,' and they offer to prove her detention thereof by writing and otherwise. In reply, the defender alleges as formerly, and also points out that no production will be helpful to the pursuers, as neither the pursuers nor their predecessors had ever the said rig in possession, nor is it 'bund be way of contract to the said persewar nor hir umquhill husband be the said defender, bot sayes that the persewar is obleidget to hald it frie at the superiors hands be vertew of the said contract.' As to an obligation, defender grants the same but will prove the sum therein contained to be already paid and so the bond to be null; and also desires the pursuer's oath of calumny, 'in respect the defender had all that is bund be way of contract in hir awin possessioun, and the persewar forcit the defender to pay yeirlic annualrent conforme to ten of the hundreth exceptand onlie within this twa or thrie yeires space last, and the persewar did intromet with that pendicle land at his awin hand aucht weiks befor the terme without ordor of law,' and so they ought to repair the loss she has suffered, and the defender should be absolved from such an unlawful pursuit 'in seiking yeirlic profite for the ground that is nowayes bund to them bot be way of obligatioun, which sowme conteinet therin as all payit to Robert Halliewooll in foirend of his tocher gud with Margit Eckfoord persewar hir dochter now spous to the said Robert Halliewooll.'—The judge ordains the defender Isobel Halliewooll to prove the pursuer's possession of the two acres of land lying in the Coatyairds, which two acres alone are wadset and not the Gootter rig, and to prove the payment of the 22 l. contained in her bond to the pursuer in 1637.—21 May 1659, the defender's witnesses depone as follows :—James Bowstoun in Galtounesyde, married, 50 years, depones 'that the Gootter rig is no pairt of the twa aikeris of land lybellit, and that Issobell Halliewooll defender hes good sufficient undoubtit right to posses the same and hes still bein in peiceable possessioun therof since the samene wes lowsit from the deponer himselff, and that the persewaris had never the Gootter rig in possession'; knows nothing of the payment of the 22 l. John Halliewooll there, 'depones that the Gootter rig is no part of the twa aikeris of land and that it payes 13 s. 4 d. of few dewtie, and that it does not belong to the twa aikeris of land and that it wes old Westhousses rig and exchainget be him with the defenders father with ane peice of land of his that lyes in the Chamberyaird in Westhousses or Raidhauch.' William Hoy there, depones as above anent the rig, and declares that the 22 l. was paid by defender about Martinmas last to Robert Halliewooll, pursuer's son-in-law, 'in tocher with hir dochter, at hir direction, and that Robert Mein and John Halliewooll are cawtioners for the dischaarge.' John Halliewooll, Croce, depones 'to his best knowledge and as he heirs the rig does not pertain to the twa aikeris of land, and that he did sie the xxij lib. payit to his brother about Mertymest last, and that he and Robert Mein is cawtioners for the dischaarge.' Thomas Bowstoun, Eistcoat, depones 'the rig does not belong to the twa aikers of land, and that the persewaris ar in possessioun of all that ever Robert Mein possest, and that thair wes nevir moir for twa aikeris nor they posses.'—The judge assoilzies the defender from the whole claim, and finds the libel 'to be most unjustlie, unlawfullie, falslie, fogettlie, and feinzieddie persewit, to put the defender to unnecessar chairges and expensses.'

Thomas Bowie in Melros sues Andrew Kennedie in Dernick for 3 l. 5 s. Scots due for meal bought about 3 years ago from the complainer. 'Decernes ut supra' [sic]

Bowie v.
Kennedy.

Melrose, 25th June 1659, Gideon Jackson of Loch-houses

Complaint by William Patersone in Stow against Thomas Fairgrieve in Colmeslie, as follows:—In 1644 the deceased Alexander Patersone, son of the said William, 'went forth sojour for the said Thomas Fairgrieve in that expeditioun to England wnder the command of Hew Scott of Galloscheills,' and Fairgrieve then promised him 100 merks of fee, to be paid to the said William Paterson within six days thereafter; but payment is not yet forthcoming. The pursuer compearing at first personally and then by Nathaniel Weild, notary public, his procurator, and the defender compearing personally with Andrew Phaupe, notary in Melrose, his procurator, the defender denies the debt resting and offers to prove it fully paid, and desires the pursuer to find caution to answer. Pursuer craves commission for examining witnesses in the respective jurisdictions where they reside, and offers to find caution if the defender give his oath of calumny.—The judge admits to the defender's probation as to payment of the debt. John Notman in Longschawmiln, 48 years, depones he saw Fairgrieve deliver the whole sum to William Paterson in deponent's own house 'at his awin boord,' except four dollars, which was the pursuer's son's own proportion in that levy. Isobel Smyth, wife of the said John, depones the same. Andrew Cairncroce Fairgrieve v.

Paterson.

of Wester Langlie, unmarried, 36 years, depones the pursuer acknowledged receipt of all the money except four dollars, which was his son's proportion. Defender assolizied.

Trotter v.
Merser.

John Trotter of Eisterhousebyre complains on Thomas Merser in Eisterlonglie, who at Whitsunday a year past intromitted with and took away out of the Eister Langlie 'ane toope hog of his and clipped and keild the samene,' and retains the same, and in Midsummer fair, 1658, he promised to satisfy therefor, and also at Moshouses Wester, price 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. Defender confessed the intromission upon negligence, and alleged the hog to be upon the Housebyre ground in the pursuer's possession. Decerns to pay 4 s. sterling ; 6 s. 8 d. expenses.

Chisholm v.
Scott.

William Scott, herd in Allaneschawes, is ordained to pay to Andrew Chisholme in Birkenasyde 5 l. 'beat' [i.e. less] 2 s. He desires act of court, and penalties to be attached.

Melrose, 9th July 1659, G. Jackson

Complaint by George Alexander in Mosehouses against ^{Alexander v. Notman.} Thomas Notman there, and James Hastie for his interest, in respect of an action at pursuer's instance against said James Haistie in Blainslie for payment of a certain sum of money, upon dependence whereof he obtained an arreistment and by virtue thereof John Phenneik, officer, on 27 June 1659 arrested in the hands of said Thomas Notman 14 l. due by him to James Haistie, in security to pursuer of 11 l. 10 s. Scots due to him, but this he refuses to make forthcoimng, unless compelled. Decerns on defender's confession for 12 l. 10 s.

Alexander v.
Haistie.

Complaint by George Alexander, lawful son and only executor to deceased, Richard Alexander in Moshouses, against James Haistie, son and heir of deceased, Alexander Haistie in Hespieschaw, in respect that on 18 February 1657 pursuer's father obtained decret against defender's father before the Commissary of Lawder for 10 l. of principal and 30 s. of expenses; and defender refuses to pay. Decerns as confessed, with 20 s. expenses.

Henryson v.
Blake.

William Hendersone in Bentmiln sues Robert Blakie in Halkburne for 7 l. 16 s. as agreed-on price of five half firlots of oatmeal received from pursuer a year past at Yule, and payment promised at St. Bernimonisday thereafter. Decerns as confessed, with 16 s. 8 d. of expenses.

Jerdon v.
sundry.

Claim by Andrew Jerdon, burgess of Jedburgh, against Robert Laidlaw, indweller in Williamlaw, and his 'joyners,' who owe him seven threaves of straw at 18 s. Scots per threave 'quhich they wer lyable to pay to the troupers that lay in Jedburgh upon Merche, Aprill and May last, 1659'; and against William Cairncroce of Allanschawes and John Henrie, his tenant, for six threaves of straw in like manner. Decerns; expenses of either party, 12 s.

Frater v.
Frater.

John Frater, younger, in Langhauch, sues John Frater, elder, there, for payment yearly for the years 1655, 1656, 1657, and 1658 of a boll of bear 'with viij s. per annum dew and payable be the defender to the persewar for these lands, housses, fruitt yairds, in Longhauch possest be him and haldin be the defender of him in rentall richt ; mair of viccarage xxvj s. yeirlie thir twa yeirs bygane ; item, mair payit out for him thir four yeirs bygane, xxiiij s. yeirlie ' ; which bear or price thereof, rent, vicarage and ' monethlie assesse ' he refuses to pay. Decerns on defender's confession.

Complaint by Adam Lythgow, weaver, portioner of Melros, against William Edgar, portioner there, ' who be his kyne and horse in July and August 1658 eat and destroyit to him ane furlott and twa copfulls aitts, pryce thairof lvj s., and his goodis being apprehendit be him upone the cornes, he causit James and John Wallaces and Thomas Mar in Melros compryse the samene to the foirsaid skaith and that upon the third day of August the said yeir, quherof the said William Edgar promittit him payment and delyverance schortlie thereafter and yit refuissis.'—4th June, both parties submit to decision of the comprisers ; who on 3d July 1659 declare that they ordain William Edgar to pay to Adam Lythgow 3 s. sterling presently in composition, or failing this to deliver the oats or price.—9th July, the judge interpones his decret and decerns conform. Lithgow v. Edgar.

Claim by John Frater, younger, portioner of Long-hauche, against George Bell, portioner of Ridpeth, who received from the pursuer 13 l. 6 s. 8 d. Scots for the monthly maintenance paid out before March 1659, and if it were less he promised to redeliver what remained, and this is 6 l. 13 s. 4 d., which he refuses to pay.—25th June 1659, ordains defender to have a copy of the claim and give in defences, ' which are thus :—Adheres to the act and ordinance lastlie insert upon the end of the lybell, 17 August 1655, quheras it is said avisandum with thir witnesses depositiones the nixt court day, and desyred the samene be obeyed.' Alexander Uschar depones he knows perfectly that John Frater did pay to George Bell 20 merks or thereby ' in satisfieing of ane decreitt, and that he wrait the discharge therof ; bot to his best knowledge he being comeing Bell v. Frater.

to and from them he knowes nothing annent the within-writtin promeis.' Andrew Cooke depones he knows that John Frater delivered some money to George Bell, but knows nothing anent the promise of payment.—9th July 1659, pursuer renounced further probation. Assoilzies defender.

Bower v. Mar. Robert Marr, weaver in Melros, sues Isobel Bowar there, for 23 s. 4 d., 3 capfuls of oatmeal and a half, for the working of 14 ells of linen cloth. Absolves, as pursuer refuses to depone.

Clerk v. Thomson. Complaint by John Thomesone, in Galtonsyde, son and heir of deceased Patrick Thomesone in Galtounesyde, against Robert Clerk in Galtounesyde, eldest lawful son of deceased Robert Clerk there, as follows :—Conform to contract dated 21st November 1617 the said deceased ' Andro ' Clerk his father wadset to the complainer's father two acres of land in Galtounesyde, with teindsheaves and pertinents, a rood and a half of which two acres was in possession of Robert Maben there and wadset to him by Andrew Clerk for 22 l. ; but the defender redeemed the same from Robert Maben 12 years ago, while the pursuer was in Holland, and retained the land, and the pursuer has been forced ' to pay out the masters mail and carrages thairfor and sielyke maintenance and ces duiring the space of 24 yeires,' and the defender will not relieve him in respect of the three half roods or receive at his hands the 22 l. and give him possession, but has disposed the said rood and a half heritably, to the pursuer's prejudice. Pursuer compearing with Andrew Phaupe his procurator, and defender with Thomas Law in Melrose, his procurator, the latter gave in defences as follows :—First, craves pursuer's oath of calumny. Secondly, as to the rood and a half, by the terms of the contract the pursuer was assigned to the reversion and might redeem the same from Robert Maben for 22 l., and the defender was entitled to redeem it at every year's end on paying the said sum to the pursuer if the latter had taken possession ; but seeing the pursuer never did so, the defender did it himself. Thirdly, whereas the pursuer alleges he has paid rent, carriages, cess and maintenance, he has done well in so doing, for by the terms of the contract he is obliged to pay for the whole two acres, during non-redemption, and the defender is thereby obliged to pay nothing to the master for the rood and a half except a peck of 'cuntrie mett beir' yearly to the master and landlord. He ought therefore to be absolved from this unjust pursuit, which the complainer has maliciously raised against him not only at this time but before several other bailies of this regality 'this long tyme bygane,' and ought to pay expenses. The pursuer in his answers offers to prove the redemption of the rood and a half from Robert Maben and the possession thereof for 5 or 6 years, 'as also offeris him to prove the payment of the cess and maintenance thairfor ever since his intromissioun with the said twa aikers of land, and denies his intromissioun with one dovat earth except in the wadset; as also denies any peckis of beir receaved be him from the said Robert Clerk except twa or thrie.' The judge ordains pursuer to prove redemption and possession of the rood and half, and the defender's intrusion thereafter. Robert Myldes, elder, in Galtonside, 70 years, depones 'the thrie half ruids of land is a part of the twa aikeris of land wodsett, and to his memorie that umquhill Patrick Thomesone or his sone Johne redeimet the thrie half ruids of land fra Robert Maben, and that Johne Thomesones wyfe set the same to him three yeirs quhen hir husband wes abroade in Holland; bot how Robert Clerk payit the sowme of 22 li. to John Thomesone or his wyfe, or how Clerk gatt possession therof, he knowes not; and depounes that Robert Clerk hes payit all the beir since his entrie except this yeir.' Thomas Bowstoun, elder, Eister Coatt there, depones 'the roods is a part of the lands wodset, and that Robert Clerk lowsit the thrie ruids [sic] from Robert Maben, and that Robert Clerk payit all the beir yeirlie to John Thomesone except this yeir, and that a long tyme since Thomesone and Clerk did quyt uther befor Drygrange, William Hoy and James Bowstoun, and that Drygrange cast Thomesones pappers away to him.' James Bowstoun depones he knows nothing anent the pursuer or his father being in possession of the land, but that Robert Clerk and his father had the possession thereof, and he knows nothing as to redemption thereof from Robert Maben, but knows that Robert Clerk pays a peck of bear yearly 'and that it is all payit upon Stoupies wyffes acknowledging.' Richard Wricht depones he knows nothing.—Nota, the first two witnesses deponed 4th June 1659, James Bowstoun on 25th, and Richard Wright on 9th July. The judge absolves the defender from the whole claim, and declares the rood and half to be to him conform to the wadset for yearly payment of the peck 'countrie mett beir' and maintenance pro tanto.

Thomson.

Complaint by Robert Clerk in Galtounesyde against John Thomesone there, as follows :—On 21st November 1617 the deceased Andrew Clerk his father wadset to deceased Patrick Thomesone in Galtounsye for 120 l. two acres of land, teindsheaves included, 'with haill mose muire wood and unwood gress pastureage and pertinents (except onlie the dovatt earth of the saidis lands and also except onlie ane ruid and half ane ruid of the said twa aikeris of land, wodsett to umquhill Robert Maben for the sowme of twentie twa pundis).' The pursuer redeemed the rood and half, and by the provision in the contract his deceased father was to redeem the same before the two acres, and pay a peck of country mett bear yearly to the master and landlord ; which accordingly has been paid, since the redemption of the rood and half about 30 years ago, to the said 'Johne Thomesone Stoupie,' but he has never yet received any discharges therefor, and the defender refuses to grant the same to him. Likewise the defender keeps in his possession 'the haill dovatt earth' of the said two acres, these 30 years past, though excepted to the pursuer by the contract, the worth whereof is 20 s. Scots yearly, and he refuses to put the complainer in possession. Defender grants receipt of some bear, and denied the meddling ('melling') with the dovatt earth. Pursuer to prove delivery of the bear. Charles Clerk depones 'he knowes nothing thairanent bot that quhen William Wricht, elder, had imployed him to cast 2000 dovatts Stoupie came to him and said thair wes two hundreth of them cast upon his part two yeirs since.' William Wricht in Galtounesyde depones 'he knowes the beir wes all delyverit be the persewar to John Thomesone, and Robert Clerk payes the cess for the thrie half ruids of land, and knowes nothing annent the dovats bot that Robert Clerk cast none this long tyme bygane.' John Dinant 'knowes nothing annent the payment of the beir nor dovatts bot that Johne Thomesone cast dovats upon the turff earth part.' Robert Myles 'knowes the beir is payit and that Johne Thomesone hes no ground to cast dovatts one but the twa aiker land's part, and that Johne Thomesone cast dovatts the last yeir.' Decerns the pursuer to have the dovats earth conform to the right, and the defender to give him a discharge for the bear; absolves Stoupie for casting bygone dovats and ordains him to desist from further intromission therewith.

Melrose, 16th July 1659, G. Jackson

Richard Dick in Ersiltoune sues William Davidstone in Allaneschawes for 10 l. Scots as balance of a greater sum for certain bear bought from pursuer 18 years ago. Defender denies all but 3 l. 10 s. and declares upon oath he bought three bolls of bear at 12 l. the boll and paid 32 l. 10 s. Decerns for 3 l. 10 s. with 13 s. 4 d. expenses, and absolves from the rest. Dick v.

his cautioner, for 10 l. 13 s. 4 d. as the price of a boll of malt bought from him at Martinmas last, and payment promised within eight days. Decerns on Darling's confession ; 16 s. 8 d. expenses.

Tullie v.
Darling.

Claim by James Tuillie in Ersiltoun on Margaret Darling, widow in Apiltrieleives, for 28 l. Scots promised by her to him 'for his awin, his brother George and sister Margaret Tullies thair fies for scheiring to hir in harvest last,' and she promised to deliver him oats at 6 l. 6 s. 8 d. the boll till the sum was paid, but refuses. Held as confessed, defender absent, 3d. diet ; 40 s. expenses.

Bulman v.
Bryden.

Complaint by Mr. Andrew Duncanson, minister at Maxtoun, and Patrick Bulman, his tenant in Maxpople, against John Bryden in Lessudden, collector of the monthly assessment in the last collection, who on Friday 15 days past 'did lay one upon the said Patrick Bulmane twa Englishes for the monethlie asses dew by my Lord Cardrois out of Lessudden parochie, quherin the saids compleaners wer never in use of payment to the said Lord Cardrois bot payes the samene to the minister, naither wer they ever in use to pay any ces therfor, which trouperis poyndit ane web of lynyng cloath and delyverit it to the said Johne Brydene, who deteines and keipes the same as yit in his custodie for xxv s. Scottis for the said deficiencie and for the trouperis ther awin paines.' This cloth he ought to deliver up, and be punished for such unjust dealing.—9 July 1659, assigns defender next day to instruct his warrand for distressing these lands.—16 July 1659. decerns to deliver the cloth, or 16 s. for each ell, 'in respect of the not instructioun conforme to the last act.' Patrick Bulman depones the whole teind is payable to the minister and no surplus thereof to Lord Cardrois. George Haistie depones that John Ker draws the teind and pays the minister.

Likewise James Stoddert in Cammeistoun sues John Bryden for 50 s. Scots exacted similarly from his tenants, William Sweitt, Andrew and Patrick Stoddert, and a covering poulded therefor. Decerns to deliver back the covering or 6 l.

‘ And siclyk compleines George Haistie in Moxpople as the uther bill of Patrick Bulman his nichtbour. Decernes ’ ; 6 s. expenses.

Complaint by John Bowar, Wester, portioner of Eildone, against John Bowar, Eister, portioner there, who within the last week ‘ hes intrudit himselff in the persewaris ground betuixt his barne and peill thair, and hes biggit ane dyke of stounes and phaill thairupone,’ wherefore he ought to be fined and the pursuer’s right restored.—4 June 1659, the bailie ordains Richard Selaitter in Eildon, Andrew Selaiter in Newsteid, Robert Mein there, ‘ to pas and sicht the contraversie, and report the nixt court day.’—24 June 1659, they find the dyke built as stated between the peel and barn, and also another dyke of stone between John Bower, Easter, his kill and John Bower, Wester, his barn, also built on the latter’s ground.—Decerns conform to the report, and meantime the committee to compear and depone.—16 July 1659, the whole three who visited the controverted ground declare ‘ it appeares to be Johnne Bowar, Westeris.’—Pursuer referred the claim to defender’s oath, who refused and referred back to pursuer, who deponed that the ground whereon the dyke is built is his own heritage. Ordains defender to cast down the dyke and build it up within his own bounds (and if he fail, the pursuer is to cast it down and empty his ground of the stones), within 15 days under a penalty of 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. ; and fines the defender in 10 l. for his intrusion.

Complaint by William Bell, portioner of Galtounsyde, William Hoy, portioner there, George Bertane there, and Robert Halliewooll there, for themselves and in name of the remanent possessors and feuars of Galtonsyde, against Mr. James Daes of Craixiffoord, John Kyll, portioner there, James Lythgow of Drygrange, Isobel Lythgow of Sorrowlesfeild, James Eilleis of Huntliewood, portioner of Dainyeltoune, Mungo Donaldsone there, and Thomas

sundry.

Lookeupe there, for themselves ‘and the remanent possessoris,’ as follows :—In 1651 the complainers furnished out to the English that lay in Halliedain a feather bed, a bolster, two ‘codis with cod wairds,’ a pair of sheets, a pair of blankets, and a covering, all comprised by the comprisers in Galtonside to 50 merks, whereof the ‘foir-named persones aucht to pay ane proportionall part conforme to thair rent and James Lythgow and James Eilleis thair promeis in name of the rest theranent.’ Third diet, held as confessed, each one to be stented conform to their proportion and free rent. ‘This is the just stent subservit be Thomas Law then comissioner as he callis himselff of Melros paroche : Galtounesyde and West-houses, 9 lib. 12 s. ; Cleckmac, 6 lib. 8 [?]s. ; Sorrowlesfeild, 5 li. 7 s. ; Craixiffoord, 2 li. 13 s. 4 d. ; Drygrange, 8 li. 2 s. 4 d. ; Dainyeltoun, 1 li. 4 s. ; Summa, 33 lib. 6 s. 8 d. Sic subscribitur, Tho. Law.’ 20 s. expenses.

Currie.

Complaint by John Miln, elder, in Newtoun, against Mr. John Currie, portioner there, who most unjustly detains from him the minute of a heritable Disposition of his houses, yards, and others in Newtoun, disposed by the defender to him, also a former Wadset thereof by him to pursuer ; also he owes to the pursuer a bill of 7 l. 11 s. 4 d. Pursuer produced the Disposition following upon the said minute, with Instrument of Sasine given by the defender’s own hands to him, and duly registered under the hand of Andrew Crombie, sheriff clerk of Roxburgh, keeper of the sasines ; also the copy of the Contract of Wadset granted by defender to the pursuer and Isobel Moffit his spouse, and instruments of possession following thereupon ; also the defender’s ticket for the sum of money claimed. Defender compearing by Andrew Tunno, notary in Melrose, his procurator, gave in the following defences :—First, as to the detention of the Minute, the pursuer has no right thereto, ‘because he hes consentit that the bargane maid be Mr. John Currie, defender, salbe null incais he keip bargane with Thomas Wair to whome the saids houses wer first disponit, as is evidentlie knowin to the said judge.’

Second, the pursuer has a subscribed contract of wadset, and defender cannot be obliged to give him that copy which pertains to himself. Third, as to the debt, the defender 'had the said sevin punds 11 s. allowit to him of what the persewar promised him for the heretabill richt of the houses and yairds specifeit in the clame.' The pursuer answers with regard to the annulling of the bargain that given such a condition the bargain 'aucht and sould have bein declairit to have bein null befor ane ordinar judge and the persewar lawfully summond to have defendit therintill,' and besides, the defender when subscribing the pursuer's evident faithfully promised and 'protested many severall tymes' never thereafter to subscribe any other securities to the said Thomas Vair to the prejudice of the pursuer, and promised to deliver up the minute upon demand, which the pursuer refers to defender's oath, as also the delivery of the first Contract of Wadset upon demand; and as to the debt, he produces the defender's ticket therefor, 'which he wald not have had to schow incais the samene had bein allowit in the foirend of the pryce of the howsses.' The judge finds the answers relevant, and ordains defender to give his oath, and repels the defences. The defender replies to the first answer, that the pursuer has ipso facto declared the bargain void, by the subscription of George Wallace, notary, who subscribed the Minute for him whereby he declared that the bargain would be null if the defender kept bargain with Thomas Vair; and he craves inspection of the ticket. Judge repels the replies and ordains defender to depone, who refuses, whereupon he is decerned to deliver the Minute and Wadset to the pursuer to be cancelled and destroyed, and to pay to him 7 l. 10 s. contained in the ticket produced. Against this decerniture Mr. John Currie protested in writing and asked act of court and instruments, 'which protestatioun the said baillie deput refuist to admitt in respect of the irrelevantie therof.' Expenses, 4 l.

against William Bulman, portioner of Newtowne, and Andrew Hietoun there, for his interest, as follows:—Hietoun owed 100 l. Scots to the complainer conform to his bond; and he wadset to the deceased Stephen Bulman, father of the said William, a husbandland in Newtowne, when Stephen promised to pay Hietoun's debt to the complainer, which Hietoun allowed Stephen in the fore end of the price of the husbandland. The said Stephen and William, or Bessie Coatt in their name, delivered to the pursuer 5 bolls of victual, being 4 bolls of oats with the fodder and one boll of pease with the fodder, which made up 100 merks of the claim, and about 5 or 6 years ago the complainer sued the said Stephen Bulman before the sheriff of Roxburgh for the 50 merks outstanding, and they submitted it to Thomas Wricht in Caldsheills (for Stephen's part) and John Greirsone in Midlam (for complainer's part) and Bailie Moscrope in Jedburgh to be oversman, and Stephen delivered to the complainer in part payment 4 l. Scots and promised the balance shortly thereafter, whereupon the complainer subscribed a discharge to him and left the same in Bailie Moscrope's hand. William Bulman has since obtained possession of this discharge, but in what way Bailie Moscrope knows not, as his testificate bears; and Bulman refuses to pay the balance of 50 merks less 4 l. —4 June 1659, defender acknowledged the debt but alleged the same paid; ordains him to prove payment.—23 June 1659, John Swanstoun is ordained to produce Thomas Wricht and John Greirsone.—9 July 1659, John Greirsone in Midlame depones 'that Johne Swanstoun acclaimed fiftie merkis of Stephane Bulman, bot whither Stephane wes dew the samene he knowes not, and that he wes daysman for the persewar Johne Swanstoun, and Thomas Wricht for the uther, Stein Bulman, and that Stephane Bulman wald stand to nothing, bot delyverit foure pundis Scottis, which wes left in Baillie Moscrope's hand, and as he hard the said John Swanstoun received the four pundis upon the morrow and knowes not upon quhat accompt, bot as he hard Johne Swanstoun say there wes no moir payit of the fiftie merkis acclaimed bot that iiij lib., and that it wes upon Baillie Moscrope his urgencie that the said Johne subscryvit the dischairge and not upon satisfacioun of the partie, and declaires that Baillie Moscrope did put up the discharge against the persewaris will.' Thomas Wricht depones 'that he hard John Swanstoun clame 50 merkis, bot declairit Stein wald give no moir with good will, and that the four pundis wes left in the Baillie Moscropes, and that he hard John Swanstoun had received the iiij lib. bot knowes not upon quhat accompt, and that the dischairge wes left with Baillie Moscrope, and knowes nothing upon quhat accompt the defender William Bulman received the samene from him.'—16 July 1659, John Swanstoun, present, deponed there is 27 l. resting and that the 16 l. is for annualrent. Decerns therefor; 48 s. expenses.

Complaint by William Heriot in Uxstoun against John Pringill and James Rolmainhous in Blainslie, 'that quheras about Pasche 1658 yeires they having than wanting and raked or stollin a yeir befor twa horses and heiring that they wanted the Laird of Hunthill being at the compleinaris house askitt at him who they wer that wanted the horse and he wald speir them, and the compleinar coming to Lawder and acquainting Johne Pringill he than in presence of sindrie famous witnesses promittit to him twa rex dolloris and carry his chairges incais the compleinar wald undertake and goe alongis to Hunthill with him, and incais it sould happen the horse to be thairis they both then promittit to delyver him each ane boll of aittis in seidtyme last; and the compleinar than haveing undertaiken to goe with them, and did goe with them, and the horse proveing thairs they received thair horse schortlie thereafter,' yet they refuse to pay the two dollars and the oats or 9 l. as the price thereof, with 48 s. of expenses disbursed by the complainer for himself and them.—9 July 1659, deny claim; admitted to pursuer's probation.—16 July 1659, Robert Hendersone, burgess of Lawder, depones 'the defenders promittit incais the persewar could speir the horse to give him twa rex dollors, and farder incais the horse wes gottin againe thair wes something conditioned bot he cannot be speciall theranent.' William Hall in Blainslie depones 'provyding the persewar speired the horse and went with them and did lett them sie the horse, the defenders sould have gevin him twa dolloris and twa bollis aittis at seid tyme, and that incais he speired not the horse and goe alongs with them and lett them sie them, he offerit and promittit to quyt all except his charges, and that he naither speiret the horse nor went any farder with them nor Jedburgh or Hunthill. Absolves defenders from all the claim except 48 s. Scots; which was judiciously paid to pursuer.

Pringle and Rolmainhous.

Threipwood.

Complaint by Archibald Moffitt, portioner of Threipwood, James Moffit, portioner there, William Moffit, portioner there, and Robert Rae there, against James Stoddert there, John Hall there, Robert Knycht there, who are guilty of the breach of an act of neighbourhood formerly ratified by the bailies of this judicatory 'anent the keeping of oversowme's upon the ground of Threipwood,' and other acts of neighbourhood therein mentioned, and ought to pay the fines therein contained.—9 July 1659, probation.—16 July 1659, the bailie interpones his decreet and authority to the old act, and ordains James Moffit to instruct what oversooms are pastured on the ground, 'and ordaines to stent upon the twelff day of Junii [sic], and als that no horse be pasturit upon the ground of Threipwood bot 14 horse.'

Maben v.
Merser.

Complaint by John Mabene in Cobilhous against Thomas Merser in Langlie, who in the fore end of May last borrowed from him a mare for 'ane yocking,' which he detained and wrought five days, though he promised at borrowing to deliver it back the same day; 'which meir he did put into ane punfauld efter he had wrocht hir, and thaireftir he put hir into ane hous of his awin and keiped hir thair twa dayes and twa, nichtis without meat, thereafter put hir forth, and sensyne sho is dead, pryce and worth therof xxiiij lib.'; and this he ought to pay, and 8 s. per day since, as damage sustained by the complainer in want of the mare. Defender denied, pursuer offered to prove. George Cowpar depones 'he hard by report of the towne the beast wes 48 houris in the house and that wes the occasioun of the death of the meir.' Adam Darling depones 'he hard by report of the towne the beast wes 24 houris and by uthers 48 houris keiped in the hous and as he hard sho came never by the heidles croce dyke efter the comeing out of the house.' John Leirmouth depones 'the persewar lent the meir, but how scho came home, he knowes not, and that he poyndit the meir and kept hir 48 houris in the house and that sho eat litle or none thereafter.' The judge 'finds this cleirlye provin and decernes conforme,' but 'thinking that he cannott modifie the pryce of the beast lybellit becaus he knowes not the aige, abilitie and worth thairof, does thairfor ordaine William Bell, William Hoy, Robert Freir and James Bowstoun or onie twa of them to modifie the pryce of the meir according to thair knowledge, and report in writt under thair hands. Sic sub., G. v. Riddell.

Complaint by John Thin in Blainslie against John Notman, miller at Longschaw, and Isobel Smyth his spouse, in respect that ‘ at Lambes last the compleinar having certane schilling grinding at the said miln of Longschaw and payit the whole multor knaveschip and uther dewtie therfor, trew it is that the said Issobel Smyth causit hir millar to tak thrie half furlotts of schilling for the alledgit multor of nyne bolls of aitts sauld be him at Mertymes 1658 to pay the lairds teind,’ the three half firlots extending to a half boll of meal, worth 11 l., which she and her husband ought to pay. Defenders grant the claim ; ordained to produce the Laird’s warrant.—21 January 1660, ordains pursuer to depone that the oats were sold to pay the Laird’s teind, and that the Laird received the same money. Both parties refer this absolutely to the bailie, at whose decision they will abide. The bailie absolves the defender. Notman v.
Thin

Haitlie and Tait v. Blakie.

George Haitlie in Huntliewood sues Thomas Blakie in Longlie for 44 s. for a stack of peats; and Thomas Tait sues him for 45 s. for a stack of peats. Decerns for both; 12 s. expenses.

Sunhous v.
Notman.

James Sunhous in Blainslie complains against John Notman in Longschaw and Isobel Smyth his spouse, in respect the said Isobel at her own hand pointed and keeps up from him a boll of oatmeal and a firlof of 'schilling,' and will not allow him to take away the same from the mill; although he has paid the multure. Ordains to deliver the victual, and the pursuer [sic] to pursue for any abstracted multure.

Bowie v.
Olipher.

Thomas Bowie, multurer in Melros, sues Andrew Olipher, cordiner in Dernick, who bought from him a year past on Martinmas 'four barkit oxin and kyne hydis' at 24 l. Scots and still owes thereof 6 l. 10 s. Defender grants the balance, but alleges he delivered a pair of shoes worth 24 s., children's shoes worth 40 s., and a pair of 'schoes bordering,' worth 16 s., and depones all is paid but 50 s. Decerns for that, and absolves from the rest.

Henderson v.
Turner.

Marion Hendersone in Longschaw sues James Turner there for half a firlof of 'bounteth aittmeill' for shearing in harvest last, price 50 s. 'Mair he sett to me ane haill house and deteinet fra me the half therof,' for which he should pay 5 merks or allow the same. Modifies 40 s. for the meal and 20 s. for the house.

Davidson v.
Gray.

John Gray in Selkirk sues Robert Davidsons in Blainslie for 5 l. Scots of fee and a meikle full of bear as bounty, for shearing in harvest last. Defender denies, and being put on oath depones he promised neither fee nor bounty, 'but that he enterit to try himselff twa half dayes.' Absolves.

Turner v.
Henderson.

James Turner in Longschaw sues Marion Henderson there for 4 l. 1 s. for a firlof of oatmeal bought before Lammas last, and 20 s. for work. Decerns for the meal ;

' the rest quatt.'

Anthony Murray, brother german of William Murray Murray v. Duigwid. of Newtowne, sues Mr. William Duiguid, minister of the gospel, portioner of Apiltrieleives, for 12 l. Scots, payable at Lammas 1659 conform to his ticket dated 14 March 1659. Decerns, with 20 s. of expenses.

William Andersone, merchant in Melros, complains that Fisher v. Anderson.
John Fischer of Westerhousebyre, in whose hands the sum of 8 l. of borrowed money due to complainer by Walter Hall, Fisher's servant, was arrested, will not make the same forthcoming, Fisher being due the same to his servant for fees. Fisher desires pursuer's oath of calumny and that the debt is due. Pursuer depones ; and the defender depones he was owing nothing at the time of the arrest-ment. Absolves.

John Notman, miller at Longschaw, sues John Thin in Thin v. Notman.
Blainslie for the multure, etc., of 13 bolls of oats, crop 1658, diverted from the mill. Absolves defender on his oath.

Melrose, 4th February 1660, G. Jackson to God.' Absolves.

Melrose, 25 February 1660, Gideon Jackson

Complaint by Andrew Smyth, burgess of Lawder, against Thomas Caldeleugh in Blainslie, who about Martinmas last sold to him six bolls of good and sufficient 'inland aittis,' Blainslie measure, counting 5 meikle fulls to the boll, to be delivered about Yule thereafter, but he delivered only three bolls, and refuses the rest, though the first three are fully paid and he received 9 l. 14 s. in the fore end of payment of the other three. He ought to deliver the bolls of oats or 11 l. for each boll. Defender compearing personally, and pursuer compearing by William Smyth, his son, the claim found relevant and admitted to pursuer's probation. George Alexander in Moshouses, married, 23 years of age, depones 'he wes in companie with the persewar and defender at Lauder quhair they wer speiking about the selling and buying of sex bollis aittis, but they

 cleugh.*

made no bargane at that tyme in his presence, and that twa or thrie yeirs [but seems altered to daeis] thereafter Thomas Caldeleuche being comeing from Galloscheills the depouner askit at him gif he had maid the bargane with Andro Smyth and that he said he had maid it and that the pryce of the boll of aitts wes vj li. vj s. 8 d., bot did not tell him whither he had receaved the monie or not.' James Caldeleuch, brother of the defender, unmarried, 50 years, depones 'he hard his brother say that he had sauld sex bolls of aitts to compleit the sowme conteinet in ane band grantit be him to the persewar, and knowes nocht ells.' The bailie granted commission on 25 February to the bailies of Lawder to take the deposition of Andrew Smyth, burgess of Lauder, whose inability to travel hither was represented by his son, anent what was paid by him and what is undelivered. Court held at Lauder, in the tolbooth, last of February 1660, by Thomas Wood and John Maitland, bailies of the said burgh, Andrew Smyth deponed he gave to Caldeleugh in part payment of the oats yet undelivered 9 l. 14 s. Scots. Written by John Murray, town clerk.—The bailie ordains the defender to deliver the rest of the oats to the pursuer, the latter always paying the balance of the price agreed on; expenses, 40 s.

Melrose, 10th March 1660, G. Jackson

Freir v.
Duguid.

Robert Freir in Galloscheills sues Mr. William Duguid, minister, portioner of Apiltrieleives, for 11 l. 15 s. for flesh bought by him and his wife in 1659, to be paid at Handselmonday last. Held as confessed, defender absent; 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Wright v.
Vair.

Thomas Wricht in Coldscheills sues Thomas Vair, smith in Newtowne, for 10 l. 6 s. as balance of price of a 'naig' bought from complainer last Whitsunday. Pursuer grants receipt of 3 l. 6 s. Decerns for the rest; 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

James Wallace, portioner of Melros, sues Mr. John Currie there, for 14 l. Scots conform to his ticket, for sundry necessities furnished by complainer to him. Decerns ; 20 s. expenses. Wallace v. Currie.

Thomas Lookeupe, wright, portioner of Melrose, having power and commission from Robert Wauch, heritor of these houses and yards within the precinct of Melrose, complains against James Wauch there, his brother-in-law, 'who dois most maisterfullie and violentlie posses ane house and the half of the yaird pertening therto and will onnawayes flitt and remove himselff furth thair of albeit he hes severall tymes desyrit him to doe the samene conforme to the commissioun grantit to him be the said Robert Wauch for setting of the same and removeing of the said James Wauch,' dated 9th May 1656, produced. Also he has wrongfully intromitted with and taken away 'ane schood kairt' worth 10 merks, 'ane caldron cruik' worth 40 s.. 'ane plenished bed with fedderis, bolsteris, codis, scheitts, blanketts, coverings, mads, courtings, and utheris belonging to a plenished bed,' worth 20 l.—10th March 1660, ordains James Wauch 'to satle and tak the houses from Thomas Lookeupe betuixt and this day xx dayes, quherin give he faillie to provyde for himselff at Witsunday nixt'; and ordains pursuer to prove the last part of the claim. Lookup v. Wauch.

James Turner in Burlands sues Thomas Redfoord in Melros for 25 l. 3 s. Scots as the agreed-on price of a load of oats and three firlots of bear bought from the complainer in March 1659, to be paid at Whitsunday thereafter. Decerns on defender's confession ; 24 s. expenses. Turner v. Ridfoord.

William Fischer, third lawful son of deceased Alexander Fischer of Sorrowlesfeild, sues James Bowstoun, portioner of Galtounesyde, and William Hoy, portioner there, his cautioner, for 77 l. Scots as the balance of a greater sum contained in their bond, with 2½ years' interest at Whitsunday next, conform to precept raised on the bond on 8th August Fisher v. Bowstoun and Hoy.

1654, registered in the sheriff books of Roxburgh, and of which sum Isobel Lythgow, his mother, tutrix and administratrix, has often asked payment. Decerns on production of the bond, defender absent ; and judge interpones authority to the precept for payment of principal and the interest bygone and to come.

Bowie v.
Welsh.

Thomas Bowie, multurer of Melrois mills, sues Thomas Vailsh in Newsteid, for 4 l. 10 s. as the price of a firloft of oatmeal, payable at Martinmas 1658. Held as confessed ; 10 s. expenses.

Decreet, Stobo
v. Leyes.

John Stobo in Symington sues John Leyes in Whitlee for 3 l. as balance of fees due to him for service wrought three years ago. Expenses, 10 s.

Pringle v.
Currie.

John Pringill of Williamlaw sues Mr. John Currie, portioner of Newtoun, for 40 merks as a year's rent and duty of the houses, yards, and others set in tack to him by the tutors of Mr. Michael and Helen Wallace, lawful children of deceased William Wallace, notary in Melrose, lying in the town of Melrois, and set back again by him to the said Mr. John from Whitsunday 1658 to Whitsunday 1659, conform to Letter of Tack dated 29th March 1658, which tack duty was payable at Martinmas and Whitsunday now long bypast. Decerns as confessed ; 40 s. expenses.

Brodie v.
Laidlaw.

Complaint by John Notman, miller in Langshaw, against Thomas Laidlaw in Williamlaw, for abstracting the multure, etc., of 8 bolls of oats, last crop ; William Laidlaw for the same (who grants 8 bolls ' both for his father and him) ; John Leyes in Whitlee the multure, etc., of 15 bolls of oats and ' thrie yeirs umell corne ' (held as confessed). Decerns the first two, for 8 bolls, estimated to 1 firloft $\frac{1}{2}$ peck of ' schilling ' and meal at 14 l. the boll, is 3 l. 18 s., and 10 s. expenses ; John Leyes for 12 bolls, estimated to three half firlofts and a peck, is 6 l. 1 s., and 3 bolls ' umell corne ' estimated to 3 pecks 1 cupful, at 8 li. the boll, is 1 l. 12 s., with 16 s. 8 d. expenses.

Melrose, 10th March 1660

Andrew Cairnerose, portioner of Reidpeth, and Margaret Meine his spouse produced in presence of the bailie-depute a Contract of Wadset dated 5th March inst. between them and John Dinant, servitor to Alexander Halliburthouse of Coltheanknowes, granting to him two husband lands pertaining to them in the town of Reidpeth in Berwickshire, under reversion for 1000 l. advanced by him to them; and in terms of a Clause in the Contract Margaret Mein made faith judicially that she was not coerced hereto; whereupon John Rodger, Dinant's procurator, took instruments. Done in the tolbooth of Melrose in face of court, about 1 P.M.; witnesses, Alexander Uschar and John Fennick, officers of court.

Melrose, 10th March 1660

Complaint by John Anderson, portioner of Ridpeth, against James Mein, lawful son of deceased John Mein, portioner of Newsteid, Mary and Isobel Mein, his daughters, and only executors testamentar, as follows:—By contract of marriage, dated at Ridpeth, 20th May 1643, between said deceased John Mein therein designated indweller in Coldounknowes byres, on the one part, and Isobel Andersone, widow of Alexander Anderson, portioner of Ridpeth, on the other part, he promised to infest her or provide to her in liferent six bolls sufficient bear, Newsteid measure, 5 meikle fulls to the boll, yearly to be uplifted from his lands of Newsteid and Annay of Melrois or any part thereof 'most poyndable,' and so warrand the same free of all burdens and bygone debts and taxations; and for certain sums paid by the pursuer to the said Isobel Anderson, his mother, she sold and disposed to him her six bolls of bear of the last crop, 1659, and by her assignation, dated at Ridpeth 3d January inst., she for his further security assigned to him the said contract of marriage, only to the extent of the obligation. The victual is still unpaid to the said Isobel, and the executors, defenders, refuse to pay the same to Anderson v.

Mein.

the pursuer. Pursuer compears with John Rodger, procurator, and exhibits the Contract and Assignment, and James Mein, defender, compears for the rest, and gives in the following defences:—First, no process till pursuer binds himself to insist throughout the whole process; second, no process till pursuer gives his oath of calumny; third, no process till he produce alleged Contract of marriage, to be inspected by defenders; fourth, till Isobel Anderson's infestment be produced and delivered; fifth, though these be produced and delivered for inspection, yet the ferme acclaimed does nowise pertain to pursuer, but by the law of the realm belongs to the executors as movable goods and gear pertaining to the defunct. It is replied that in the Contract of marriage John Mein was obliged with all convenient diligence to infest his spouse in the annuity (etc. as in the principal libel), and as to first of the defences, a pursuer is master of his own proces and may insist or desist at his option, and meantime he is daily authorising the court to prosecute by libelling, summoning, calling and continuing in his Lordship's name and by his authority. Having submitted documentary evidence, the process should be summary and not require his oath of calumny. As to the executors' claim on the victual the annuity was granted in the Contract to the said Isobel herself in lieu of tierce or third of land or other heritage or movables she could claim.—The judge on March 10th 1660, in regard the said John Mein died about Lammas 1659 and the fermes of that crop were not payable till between Yule and Candlemas thereafter, ordains the said James Mein and other executors to pay to the pursuer, as assignee foresaid, the half of the bear acclaimed, and absolves them from the other half as having right thereto themselves, without prejudice to Isobel Anderson's right to the whole annuity in time coming while she lives.

Anderson and Mein v. Bell and Cairn-
cross.

Complaint by Isobel Andersone, widow of Alexander Andersone, portioner of Ridpeth, against George Bell and Andrew Cairncroce, portioners of Ridpeth, who are due to her 8 bolls of bear, Melrose measure, at 5 fulls to the boll, as the ferme of the lands in Ridpeth pertaining to her in liferent (by her Contract of Marriage dated 17th August 1635) and possessed by the defenders equally between them, crop 1659.—21st January 1660, she compeared by John Anderson her son, and defenders compearing granted the debt and were willing to pay to those having best right, deducting the cess. The bailie ordained a copy of the claim to be given to James Mein in Newsteid, executor to the deceased John Mein, who proponed the same defences against this as against the last claim, and received like replies.—11th February 1660, Andrew Cairncroce, one of the defenders, alleged the land was set by deceased John Mein for 6 bolls 3 fulls of bear; referred to his oath, who took avisandum.—25 February 1660, said Andrew depones they took the land from deceased John Mein for 6 bolls 5 half firlots bear, and that John Mein promised ‘to quyte him half ane furlott of his part.’—10th March 1660, the judge ordains defenders to pay to pursuer the half of the bear abovementioned for crop 1659, ‘in regaird that John Mein hir husband did expyre a litle befor the cropt wes schorne,’ and to pay the other half to John Mein’s executors, the cess being deducted from the first end thereof; without prejudice to Isobel Anderson of her liferent right to the whole farm of the said husband land in time coming. Nota, George Bell’s part, 3 bolls 1½ firlots; Andrew Cairncroce’s part, 3 bolls 1 firlot.

31st March 1660, G. Jackson

John Notman, millar at Longschaw mill, sues Thomas Caldeleuch in Blainslie, who has abstracted from the mill his whole ‘girst’ of last crop, being 8 bolls of oats. Held as confessed, being 3 l. 18 s., with 10 s. expenses. Brodsey v.
Caldeleuch.

Complaint by James Mein, son of deceased John Mein, portioner of Newsteid, and executor to him, against William Anderson, portioner of Ridpeth, against whom Isobel Anderson, wife of said John Mein, and he for his interest, obtained decret on 13th March 1658 for delivery to them Mein v.
Anderson.

of 5 bolls 1 firloft of bear, Melrose measure, being 5 meikle fulls to the boll, as the ferme and duty of certain lands in Ridpeth liferented by said Isobel and set by said John Mein to defender, crop 1657, or for payment of 6 l. per boll, extending to 31 l. 10 s., with 4 merks of expenses; which he still neglects to fulfil to the executors. John Rodger, procurator for defender, alleges in defence that the pursuer produces no title clearing himself as executor confirmed to his father; to which it is answered that the pursuer is only executor nominated in his father's testament, and has undoubted right to sue, but he cannot obtain himself confirmed 'because of the troubles now common and recent in the land'; but for the defender's security he is content to give him a discharge, with a cautioner, bearing warrandice at all hands whatsoever, and renew the same until the defender finds himself sufficiently discharged; and he is content to find caution to confirm himself executor as soon as there is a commissary appointed for confirmation of testaments; otherwise, the defender ought to find caution to make the bear forthcoming to the executor. —The judge finds that pursuer cannot have action against defender for payment of the bear or price thereof until he is confirmed executor, which cannot be done at present in respect of the troubles of the time, but ordains William Anderson to compare next court day and produce a cautioner, to enact themselves to make forthcoming to such as are found having right to the bear or prices, after confirmation can be had, with certification if he compare not or fail to produce a cautioner, decret will be given against him in terms of the libel, and the pursuer will then be held to grant discharge with caution and warrandice conform to his offer. —17th March 1660, the interlocutor being read, John Rodger offered to find a sufficient cautioner; but this day being called and failing to find the said caution, the bailie ordains as in the certification; expenses, 4 merks.

Act, William-law v. his tenants.

Complaint by John Pringill of Williamlaw against Thomas and Robert Laidlaw in Williamlaw, 'that quheras within this fourtie dayes or therby at the persewar and defenders agriment in Alexander Uschars befor your Lordship and Torsonce they than promittitt to keip there yewes upon the yew fene, the yeild seheip upon thair fene, and the nolt quher they wer formerlie uset to pasture; and trew it is that they being to remove at Witsonday they out of thair malice and hatred, to mak the ground unproffiteable, does suffer the nolt to pasture upon the yew fence without hirling of them, quhich wilbe the occasioun of roting of the whole goods that sall pasture therupon thairefter; and than promittit to saw beir and aittis according to there fall, and als trew it is that they have sawin aittis quher they sould have sawin beir, to the complainers great prejudiee and damenage.' Therefore he craved an act, and also compensation for the damage. The bailie ordains the tenants to pasture their ewes, yield sheep and nolt where they were formerly wont to pasture, and keep the nolt off the ewe fence, under pain of 40 s. for each offence; 'and ordainet to intimate the samene and to chairge them to fulfill it under the penaltie foirsaid (bot not to poynd unles there be ane approvin breache in ane new proces to be intentit thairfore).'

James Smith in Calfhill sues George Dewar in Longlie as cautioner for Patrick Blaikie in Calfhill, for 20 l. due by the said Patrick and promised by the cautioner about Pasch 1659. Defender denied cautionry for anything but a boll of bear; referred to his oath, who referred back to pursuer, who deponed he was cautioner for the 20 l. Deerns, with 30 s. expenses.

Smith v.
Dewar.

Complaint by Thomas Caldecleuch in Blainslie against George M'Callo in Braidwoodscheill who at Yule 1658 borrowed from him a boll of bear, Melrose measure, 'milfrie,' and did then grind the same, and promised to deliver back to pursuer a boll as good and suffieient in bear-seed time, but for want of fulfilment the pursuer had to buy bear for sowing, at 20 merks, which the defender ought to pay, with a full of oats borrowed also at that

sundry.

Complaint by Thomas Caldcleuch in Blainslie against Thomas Notman in Blainslie and James Haistie there, who owe to him 17 bolls of victual, half meal, half bear, Roxburgh measure, being 5 meikle fulls to the boll, as the ferme and duty of three husband lands in Blainslie pertaining to Mr. William Wallace and set by him in tack to the complainer and by the latter to them in subtack, crop and year 1659, with the parsonage teinds due by them to the teindmaster, and the vicarage, the parsonage extending to 50 l. and the vicarage to 4 merks ; also said Thomas Notman owes him 5 l. 'for ley teilling' and 40 s. 'for barne maill,' and said James Haistie owes 5 l. 'for ley teilling.'—25 February 1660, decerns against James Haistie for last part of the claim, being absent ; 10 s. expenses.—31st March 1660, 'defender Notman present, persewar absent, depounet he is awin nothing of the last acclame, bot hes satisfiet the persewar be payment of ane house maill.'

Caldcleuch v.
Haistie and Notman.

Waddell v.
Dewar.

Complaint by Thomas Waddell, burges of Lawder, against George Dewar in Eister Langlie, who became cautioner for Patrick Blakie, younger, in Calfhill, to William Kyle in Peppermilne for 33 l. 6 s. 8 d., being 12 l. of borrowed money and 21 l. for three bolls of bear ; which sum was assigned by Kyle to the complainer on 31 December 1657. The defender has paid about 20 l. thereof, but refuses the rest, with a year's interest of the whole ; also he owes the pursuer a ewe lamb promised two years ago.—10th March 1660, defender to have a copy for defences. Alleges the claim is for more than is due, and desires discharge for what is already paid.—31st March 1660, defender grants 31 l. 12 s. 'of dew debt.' Depones he delivered 18 s. to the said William Kyle in Galloscheills on Midsummer day, and two bolls and 4 meikle fulls of bear. Decerns for 8 l. 16 s. yet remaining ; 20 s. expenses.

Braidwoodscheill v. Caldcleugh.

Complaint by Thomas Caldeleuche in Braidwoodscheill 'at leist in Blainslie' against Margaret Collingwoode, widow of William Huntar in Braidwoodscheill, and James Mure, now her spouse, for his interest, as follows :—There was a contract between her and the complainer at Lauder, 5 May 165 , whereby for 200 merks, payable at Martinmas and Whitsunday yearly, she set in tack to him the lands of Braidwoodscheill, with houses, yards, crofts, meadows, mosses, 'pasturage of sowmes extending to threttie sex, in and out,' and the teinds, parsonage, and vicarage as then possessed by Fogo and James Fogo, her tenants in the parish of Melrose, with that hauch of land called Malieshauch lying beside the lands of Braidwoodscheill, with the parsonage teinds of the said hauch, all for three years and crops from his entry 'which wes and began as followes, to the fairsaids houses, yairds, meadowes, mosse, moores, pastureage of sowmes, and viccarage teinds, at Witsunday nixt thairefter in the said yeir of God 1651 yeires, and to the arrable and corne feild land at Mertymes nixt thereafter or lesser at the seperatioun of the cornes therfrom, and to the personeage teinds of the saids lands of Malieshauch at Lambes or therby the yeir of God 1652,' and he was to pay the yearly feu-duty of Braidwoodscheill, provided the same extended not above 20 s. Scots, and to pay yearly for the parsonage teinds of Braidwoodscheill to Lord Elibank or his order 16 l. Scots, and for the parsonage teinds of Malieshauch yearly 10 merks ; while she was to relieve him of all monthly maintenance, cess, local quarterings, outrigging of troop horses, and arms, present, bygone and to come, and all burdens to be imposed on the said lands ‘ (except transcient quarterings and outputting of foote) ; ’ with 10 l. of penalty to the contravener, besides fulfilment ; and she granted absolute warrandice. Nevertheless, ‘ the said rowme of Braidwodscheill hes bein in use in altyme bygane to pasture thairupon conforme to the rest of the lands of Blainslie the number of twentie sex sowme throw the lands and ground of Blainslie, and that the fewaris of Blainslie stentit and restrictit him thairto and wald not suffer nor permitt him to hald nor pasture any moe thairupon,’ whereby he wanted the pasture of 10 sooms of bestial yearly for the said three years, at 5 merks each soom, extending in all to 100 l., with 20 l. of profit ; and he also paid to the lairds of Quhitslaid 2 merks yearly for the lands of Malieshauch, and two loads of peats at 20 s., extending to 9 l. more than is contained in the tack ; of which super expenses and losses the defenders should give him satisfaction, in terms of the warrandice. Pursuer present, and also defender’s husband ; the pursuer produced his witnesses, as follows :—James Murray in Blainslie, 66 years, unmarried, depones ‘ he knowes perfytlie that the persewar pasturett during the tyme of the wholl tak twentie twa sowmes of scheip and nolt, twa horse and ane staig, quhich pasturet throw the hail moores of Blainslie and Broadwoodscheill ; and knowes nothing neither abowtt the det nor mailles.’ John Greive in Lawder, 30 years, depones ‘ that the persewar pasturet the sowmes forsaid the first and second yeires of the tack, bott knowes nott whither he pasturet them the last yeir, in respect he wes nott upon the grownd ; and knowes nothing anent the det and Malieshawgh.’ Edward Darling in Blainslie, married, 60 years, depones ‘ that he newer told the persewares sowmes, bott onely he heard be the report of his neighbowres that he had his haill sowmes and ower, and knowes the persewar payit the three pownds to his best knowledge, bot qwithir he or shooe was lyabill to pay it knowes nott.' James Donaldsone, married, 40 years, depones as Edward Darling for the sooms, 'and knowes nott quhider he payit owt the three pownd or nott, and iff it be payit it wes efterwards allowit, and that he hes payit nothing for the hawgh, and efter compt and reckining in Broadwoodseheill all clages and clames wes quyt be Thomas Caldelewch to Broadwoodseheill, wherupon scho gave ane discharge and ane acompt of the rest what Thomas Caldelewch wes dew to him [sic] upon the end therof, which dischairge John Swinhows hes deposet in his hands with consent of both parties.' John Pringill depones 'the persewar had fourtie sowmes the first year, and that the towne easit him putt some of them away, and that the persewar wes newer within thirtie sowmes, and knowes nowght else.' The judge 'finds the lybell anent the sowmes cleirly prowyn against the persewar, and absolves the defender of thes sowmes.'

Melrose, 14th April 1660, Gideon Jackson

Welsh v. Hay. Complaint by Thomas Vailsh in Newsteid against Helen Hay, goodwife of Drygrange, as follows :—About six years ago the said Helen hired him 'to work to hir twa yockings of ane pleuch and four dayes harrowing with twa horse in task work, pryce of each dayes, xx s. Seotts,' extending to 6 l. Seotts, which she ought to pay. Decerns on defender's oath for 4 merks only, in compensation for all, conform to account produced.

Merser v.
Rodger.

Alexander Merser in Erssiltowne sues John Rodger, portioner of Ridpeth, for 11 l. Seotts as balance of price of a 'naig' bought from complainer in bear seed time last, payable 8 or 10 days thereafter under pain of duplication. Decerns on defender's confession ; 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Robert Ridfoord in Dernick sues Mark Blaikie for 48 s. 4 d. as balance of price of six sheep bought from complainer a year past last Martinmas to be paid at Candlemas. Pursuer deponed the debt is owing. Ridfoord v. Blake.

Margaret Holieweill in Gatonsyd and Robert Mein her spouse sue Thomas Bowstone called 'Dukdub' for 6 l. as balance of price of a mare bought from her last Michaelmas, to be paid at Martinmas. 'Persewar present, grantit the debt dew. Decernes; ex[penses of] ex[tracting] vj s. 8 d.' Halliewell and Mein v. Bowstone.

William Speiding (Speidein), smith in Gallowseheids apparently¹ obtained decret against one James Merseer for payment of 28 l. Scots, and arreisted 80 merks in the hands of William Wright, smith in Gatonsyd, who refuses to make forthcoming unless compelled. Defender granted the debt due the time of the arrestment. Decerns. Speiding v. Wright.

Andrew Fischer in Old Melrois complains against Nicol Cairncros in Alainshowes, who on 13th June 1659 bought from him 10 ewes and some lambs at 46 l., and is still owing 6 l. but refuses to pay. Defender granted 5 l., denies the xx s. 'Ex. ex. 13 s. 4 d.' Decreet, Fisher v. Cairncross.

James Eileis, portioner of Melrose, sues Alexander Wischer there, in respect that in 1651 he received from the complainer a boll of good seed oats worth 12 l. which he promised to allow in the fore end of the rent then due to the Earl of Haddington, but he has neither done so nor paid the price. Also he promised 12 s. to him 'for ryding with him to Hoome Castell'; and 20 s. 'for carieing away ane load off aill from this towne to Lawder garison at his directione.' Claim referred to pursuer's oath, who depones the oats were received by the defender's servant woman. Decerns therefor, 10 l. and for the carriages 20 s., with 13 s. 4 d. of expenses. Ellis v. Usher.

Fenik v.
Blaikie.

John Fenweik, one of the regality officers, sues Patrick Blaikie in Calflhill for 30 s. Scots as the price of 12 lb. weight of iron bought by Patrick from William Denholme in Ersiltone, assigned by Denholm to the complainer. Decerns for all, defender refusing to swear; 6 s. 8 d. expenses.

Fisher v.
sundry.

William Fischer, portioner of Easter Longlye, sues James Moffit and George Dewar in Eister Longly for the price of six firlots of oats with the fodder, at 9 l. the boll, eaten and destroyed by their beasts last harvest, and comprised by James Bowston and William Hay, portioners of Galton-syd, and Robert Freir there, as their note attests. 'Modifies 6 lib. the boll, the goodwyfes men to pay 4 lib. ten, the said William his awin herd als much'; expenses, 13 s. 4 d.

Wallace v.
Law.

George Wallace, notary in Melrose, sues Thomas Law, weaver there, for 20 l. Scots borrowed in 1651, and the interest for 8 years. Also in January 1660 he borrowed 6 l. Scots and promised a boll of seed oats therefor, conform to his ticket. Decerns on his confession, 'dedusing sewin small fules of oats, at 9 lib. a boll'; also decerns for the annualrent of the 20 l. since the receipt thereof at Yule 1651. Expenses, 33 s. 4 d.

Wallace v.
Currie and Donaldson.

Mr. Michael Wallace, portioner of Melrose, sues Mr. John Curie, portioner of Newtowne, for 40 merks as the rent of his houses, yards, and others in Melrois from Whitsunday 1659 to Whitsunday 1660; also against Mungo Donaldson there, for 4 l. 6 s. for the rent of Lobsmeidow resting due after accounting. 'Decernes againes Mr. John Curie; ex. ex. s. [sic]; decernes as confest, ex. ex. 10 [? 20] s.'

Baine v.
Turner.

James Bane in Dryburgh sues James Turner in Nether Longshow for 3 l. 10 s. Scots as the balance of the price of a 'naig' bought by Turner in summer last. Expenses, 10 s.

James Bruntoun in Calhill sues Patrick Blakie there for 30 l. Scots for a cow's price bought by him from the complainer about 9 years ago. Defender grants 24 l. Decerns therefor; the rest to be proved. Expenses, 26 s. 8 d.

Bruntoun v.
Blakie.

Melrose, 28th April 1660, Gideon Jackson

Complaint by James Bruntoun in Calhill against Patrick Blakie there, who at Whitsunday last promised to deliver him 10 pecks of pease 'of this measour' for the bounty of 'ten oxines gres of John Fischers of Westerhousebyre in sumer last,' with 20 s. as the balance of the 'gres maill.' Defender denies all. They refer the difference to Andrew Tunno. 'Absolves from the peis; grants the xx s.'

Blakie v.
Bruntoun.

Complaint by Isobel Dickson in Hemphauch against James Bowstoun, portioner of Galtounesyde, who owed 42 l. to the deceased Janet Bowstoun there, who bequeathed the same to the complainer, her sister-in-law, for the use and maintaining of Janet Dickson her daughter, in 1650 on her deathbed in presence of witnesses. He paid 5 or 6 years' interest, but the rest is owing. Defender desires the pursuer's oath of calumny, and to see the testament, and desires the pursuer to instruct her title to any goods belonging to the defunct by way of confirmation of the testament; and as no 'testament good' pays annual-rent he should be absolved from that part of the claim; and he craves that the pursuer may be held to make reckoning for what she had uplifted, 'for the defender is greatlie feared that it be put to ane wrong purse and he be maid lyable to pay the samene over againe to the richt owner.' In place of answers the pursuer offers to the defender's oath to say whether or not, when he delivered her two bolls of oats for bygone annual, he promised his bond for the 40 l. claimed; and refers the defunct's latter will to the declaration of William Bell, portioner of Galtounesyde, who was present at the decease of Janet Bowstoun.

Dickson v.
Bowstoun.

She denies receiving either principal or interest, except as above, and declares there is 2 years' annualrent due at Martinmas 1659.—The judge ordains pursuer to prove the debt to be owing by James Bowstoun to the deceased Janet Bowstoun, and to instruct her own right thereto.—31st March 1660, William Bell depones 'he was present quhen he tooke upe ane note of 40 li. and that the deceist Jennet Bowston left it to the persewar for the upebring-ing of the child, and knowes not quhider thair be onie payit or not.'—14 April 1660, William Bell, again sworn, depones 'that efter compt and reckoning maid betuixt James Bowstoun and the persewar about four yeirs since, James Bowstoun grantit him to be awin the fourtie pundis ac-clamed, and that thair was xxiiij lib. remayneing and 17 lib. payit.' Robert Broun in Hemphauch depones as above relative to the accounting.—The parties submit to the said William Bell and Robert Brown, with the bailie as oversman.—28 April 1660, decerns for 23 l., and the pursuer is content to accept of 10 merks before St. Boswells day and the rest before Michaelmas. Expenses, 33 s. 4 d.

Ker v. Cairn-
cross.

Complaint by John Ker of Prestoun against Nicol Cairncroce of Allaneschawes, as cautioner for Robert Laidlaw, now in Williamlaw; as follows:—In 1650 the said Robert Laidlaw was 'put out sojour to him and enterit to carry armes,' and Nicol Cairncroce dealt with the complainer to relieve him, which he did, and then faithfully promised 'to delyver to him alsmuch money and uther things as any uther gave him for the lyke,' and others used to give him 100 merks, but the said cautioner refuses to pay this.—25 February 1660, Cairncroce 'grantit he borrowit aff the principall.' Defender to have a copy and give in defences. Denies claim and pursuer's title; and pursuer ought to produce his commission from the committee of the shire for the year claimed 'ordaineing the said defender [sic] to be shojoir and for what partt or localetie and proportion thereof'; thirdly, the pursuer must produce 'the King and his Parliament and ther Generall order and comand to receive moneyes for men in the expedition defence of the King country and religion againes ane comone enemie the said yeir clamed, wtherwayes the said alegance awght to be takin of as a thing destinktive to the kingdome and airmie therof as dowbtfull experience doeth produce.' Fourthly, 'as to the continor [sic, probably cautioner] partie denyes that ewer he wes desyred be the defender to borrow him off fra the persewar as ane sowldier the yeir clamed butt only he hes compeired ex officione prejudices off him in connivance with the persewar and aledgit petitioner therwith which may be cleirly sein in his compeirance.' The pursuer answers that the defences by Robert Laidlaw merit no reply, as the complaint is not against him but his cautioner, who gave promise as above and it can be referred to his oath. The judge finds that the pursuer insists only against the cautioner and not against the principal, therefore repels the defences, and as the cautioner adduces nothing for his own defence admits to pursuer's probation, and he is to produce his commission as Captain and to prove that Robert Laidlaw was enrolled and put forth by him as a soldier that year by James Lythgow of Drygraing, who had the charge of putting out all the soldiers in this parish at the time, and that he carried arms and passed muster in his company as a soldier.—14 April, 'producit in judgement, the partie defender present heir-ing the same, and summoned apud acta.'—28 April 1660, defender granted 'he wes cawtioner for Robert Laidlaw, and becam debtor to the persewar ayther for money or man, and that he borrowit him aff.' Judge modifies 50 l.

William Belindain in Alainshowes sues Nicol Cairncros there for 44 s. Scots for the half year's fee due to John Belindain, his son, and 6 d. lent by complainer to Margaret Scot, Nicol's wife, and 8 s. Scots received by the said Nicol from the English at Ersilton for the complainer's proportion of corn and straw; more 'for four yokings of ane plowch exept tuo mailles of meit to the plowch meir and onely ane copfull of oats to the hors; mor, one of my beasts two yokings in the harrowes; mor, fowr weikes meit for the hird quihich the said Nicoll putt away from ane moneth befor the terme, quich he awght to have gewin the said compleiner ; mor, ane hors two dayes leiding of hay and the compleiner himself leiding with his awin beast and his sone biging off the said hay one day ; mor, ane chopin of ber, three shilling 6 d. ; mor, fowr shilling Scotts for ane dog quich he promittit to his sone.' Defender confesses 40 s., denies the rest. ' Probatione.'

Mein v. Mein.

Complaint by John Mein, son of Robert Mein, elder, mason in Newsteid, against James Mein, son of the deceased John Mein, portioner there, in whose hands the ferme bear was arrested, and John Andersone, portioner of Ridpeth, for his interest, in respect of a bond by the latter dated 13th May 1659 to the complainer and others for 21 l. 6 s. 8 d. of borrowed money, to be repaid at Michaelmas 1659, with 40 s. of expenses, and the due annualrent, which bond being registered the pursuer obtained warrant for arresting 3 bolls of bear in James Mein's hands, due by him of crop 1659 to the debtor. Decerns on production of the bond and execution ; modifies bear or 9 l. ; total with expenses and interest, 24 l.

Vair v. Bulman.

James Wair in Newtowne sues William Bulman there for 7 l. 13 s. as balance of price of bear bought from complainer at Whitsunday last, to be paid at St. Boswells day. Decerns on pursuer's oath ; ' ordaines to compt for this ' ; expenses, 13 s.

Pringle v. Darling.

John Pringill in Longhawgh sues Margaret Darling, widow in Apletreeleives, for 6 l. as the agreed-on price of half a boll of oatmeal bought from him in 1657. Decerns, held as confessed ; expenses, 10 s. 8 d.

Thomson v. Merse.

John Thomsone, younger, in Galtonsyd, sues Thomas Merse in Longlye for 3 l. 8 s. for half a year's fee for service wrought three years ago. Decerns.

Blakie v. Brunton.

Patrick Blaikie in Calthill sues James Brunton there for the ' gres mail off thirtie scoir of hoges for a weik with bed and boarding off his herd dureing the said space'; item, for 'fodering fowr nolt twa winters last bypast pryce awght pownds; item, three fules off oats received be him and his wyf from the compleiner in seid tyme gone ane yeir; item, awghtein shilling I seik for expences in careing of his sone and woll of his in sumer last to Edinburgh.' Modifies 8 l. for the week's pasturage, with consent of both parties, 6 l. for the nolt; deponed on oath for the oats, modifies 10 merks; wool, 12 s.

Melrose, 12th May 1660, Gideon Jackson

John Bowar, Easter, portioner of Eildon, sues John Bowar, Wester, portioner there, who about 15 days ago 'did cutt ane esche trie growand upon the middest of the compleineris yaird dyke,' worth 4 l. Scots, which he ought to pay or deliver the tree, and be fined 10 l. for cutting greenwood. Also he 'be his scheip since Candlemes last viz. his hoggis hes pasturit daylie in his kaill yaird and hes catin and destroyit the haill grein kaill plants and gres,' to the extent of 6 l. Absolves the defender, in respect the pursuer refused to swear.

Bowar v.
Bowar.

Margaret Hanna complains against Bessie Scheill and James Wauch, for his interest, in respect that the complainer gave her in keeping 44 s. Scots and 5 cupfuls of oats, worth in all 55 s., but she refuses to deliver them up. Defender depones she received 24 s. and the pursuer 'gittit it for the use and bed in the house.' Absolves.

Scheill v.
Hanna.

Complaint by Robert Ridfoord in Dernick against Andrew Kennedie there, George Moodie there, and George Eilles, wright there, who are owing as follows:—Kennedy 30 s. due at Lammas last, with 4 pecks of oats 'and ane half of lot twa yeirs since'; Elleis, 33 s. 4 d. confessed before Andrew Phaup for helping him in his trade, and pointed by Phaup on the said confession, which point the said George 'hes most masterfullie reft and tain away from him without ordour of law'; Moodie, 12 s. for 3

Decerns John Stirling in Blainslie to pay to James Wallace, portioner of Melrois, 48 s. of borrowed money.

Torwoodlie v.
Blakie.

Complaint by George Pringill of Torwodlie, son and heir of deceased James Pringill of Torwodlie, against Patrick Blakie, then in Fadounsyde, now in Calfhill, who granted bond dated at Selkirk, 27 October 1655, to the said James for 142 l. Scots of borrowed money, to be repaid by 15 November thereafter, which bond was registered 24 November 1657; and whereas he has entered in payment to the pursuer and paid 80 l. to him and 22 l. to Mr. Robert Tod, ne is still owing 40 l. with the interest. Pursuer compeared by John Bunzie his procurator, who produced the bond; defender denies so much resting as is claimed. Judge ordains him to pay 35 l., with 10 merks modified in lieu of 10 l. of expenses contained in the bond and decreet, which with interest extends to 51 l. 13 s. 4 d.

Melrose, 26 May 1660, Gideon Jackson

Forsane.

Complaint by Malie Willsons, widow of Robert Forsane, miller at Newsteidmill, against Robert Forsan, her eldest son, in respect of a Minute of Contract between them with consent of Rachel Duncan his spouse, dated at Melrose 6th October 1657, whereby pursuer renounced her liferent right in the onstead and yard then possessed by her and her said son (excepting one-third of the yard, she having free ish and entry during her lifetime), and 4 acres of land lying runrig there, with the teind sheaves, in favour of her said son and his spouse, and he and his wife undertook to pay her an annuity of 5 firlots of meal, half oatmeal and half 'humell corne,' from Martinmas 1657 and so forth at two terms. They owe her for Whitsunday and Martinmas 1659, and will not pay unless compelled.—28 April 1660, probation.—13 May 1660, 'continues upon hope of agreement.'—26 May 1660, held as confessed.

Patrick Loukup in Melrose sues Margaret Boustoune, Loukup v. Boston.
 widow in Gattonsyde, for 8 l. Scots as the agreed-on price of some oatmeal bought from pursuer 9 years ago.—

 26 May 1660, held as confessed.

Melrose, 9th June 1660, Gidcon Jackson

Complaint by Nicol Cairncrose in Allenschawis against Cairncross v. sundry.
 William Bellanden and John Bellanden there, his son, to whom at Whitsunday last the complainer delivered 'his haile yeild yewes,' which they undertook to keep till Michaelmas, but by their sloth and negligence they have lost three worth 5 merks a picce, whereof he received 'neither skine nor birne.' He also claims 5 l. 'for ane sowme of secheips grasse pastured be him upon the complinars part [sic].'
 Granted the sum of 4 l. 13 s. 4 d. Decerns. Also sues Adam Darleing in Westhouses for 4 l. Scots which the pursuer delivered to him last Martinmas to give to Bessie Wood in Jedburgh, from whom the pursuer had borrowed it, but he did not deliver it to her, and the complainer had to pay the sum over again to Andrew Kennedie, her assignee. Decerns conform.

Complaint by Patriek Scott of Langschaw, titular of Scott v. sundry.
 the parsonage and vicarage teinds of the towns and lands

Melrose, 23d June 1660, Gideon Jackson

Boston v.
Wright.

Isobel Boustoune, wife of William Wright, portioner of Galtounside, sues Richard Wright there, who owes her 5 l. 3 s. for necessaries furnished to him about half a year ago, conform to account. Decerns on defendant's confession.

Scott v.
Boston.

Bessie Scott, wife of William Barrie, and he for his interest, sue Margaret Bowstoune, widow in Gatounsaid, for 24 l. Scots borrowed from pursuer 15 years ago, with the interest promised.—9th June 1660, probation.—23d June, decerns on defender's confession for the 24 l. Ordains to prove the annualrent.

Vair v. Young.

Complaint by John Vair, portioner of Eildoune, against Margaret Younge in Lessuden, in respect that at Martinmas 1659 the complainer hired her son to be his servant for a year, and he promised her 7 l. Scots and a peck of bear 'with ane old coat and a new serke and tuo paires of schoes,' but she took him away at Whitsunday last, and ought to reenter him or pay a fee. 'Ordains to enter home the servand upon Monday nixt.'

Penman v.
Walker.

Andrew Penman, portioner of Melrose, sues Bertle Walker there for 3 l. 6 s. Scots as balance of price of half a boll 'mats,' payable last Yule.—12 May 1660, probation.—9 June 1660, continued.—23 June 1660, denies claim, and referred by pursuer to his oath, who refers back to pursuer, who depones he is adebted in 3 l. 6 s. Decerns.

Walker v.
Penman.

Bartholomew Walker in Melrose sues Andrew Penman there for 3 merks 'for makeing of thrie bolles malt to him beffor Candlmes last'; and 44 s. Scots for making 5½ bolls of malt before Pasch last.—26 May, to warn pro confesso.—9 June 1660, refers to pursuer's oath; avisandum.—23 June 1660, pursuer depones the sum is due. Decerns.

James Lythgow of Drygrange complains that several Drygrange. persons in Melrose and Gattounsids daily and nightly frequent his ground, moor and lands of Drygrainges and pull, houk and cut down the heather, broom, wood and other fuel, and will not cease; so he craves an act of court. The judge ordains each offender to pay 13 s. 4 d., half to the bailie and half to the party; to be published at the market cross.

Thomas Loukup, wright in Melrose, sues Mark Blackie Lookup v. Blackie. there for 8 l. as balance of price of 3 bolls of bear bought from complainer 5 years ago; also the 'rentall dutie' of two acres of land in Danielthouse pertaining to pursuer and possessed by defender, crop 1650, 'and allowit be the maister to the rentallers for extraordinarie assesse and quarterings.' Defender acknowledges first claim, 'and hes continuit the defender till Michalmis.' The bailie ordains the same to be paid at Candlemas. 'Alexander Uschar is to seik owt the rentall for clearcing the last article of the clame.'

Melrose, 30th June 1660, Gideon Jackson

Complaint by William Fischer, third lawful son of deceased Alexander Fischer, and Isobel Lythgow, goodwife of Halliewool v. Fischer. Sorrowlesfeild, his mother, tutrix and administratrix to him, against John Halliwooll called of the Croce, portioner of Gattounsids, and James Boustoune, portioner of Gattounsids, and William Hoy his cautioner, for their interest, as follows:—The said James Bowstoune and his cautioner granted a bond dated at Melrose, 12 May 1653, to the complainer for 200 merks of money borrowed from him, with 20 l. of penalty in case of failure, and the interest due from Whitsunday 1653, which bond is registered in the Sheriff books of Roxburgh, 8 August 1654; and the complainer obtained decret of transferring on 10th March 1660 for 72 l. still resting of the said sum and for two years' annual rent due at Martinmas 1659, whereupon Alexander Uschar, officer, on 23d March 1660 arrested in the said John Halliwooll's hands 100 l. Scots due by him to the said James Boustoun, who will not, however, make the same forthcoming.—14 April 1660, defender desired inspection.—26 April 1660, gives in following defences:—First, denies being addebted to James Boustoun, in 100 l. or any other sum, 'and for cleareing of the same, he is only to redeem tuo aikers of land quhilk was then woodsett be umquhill Archbald Freir in Gattounsaid and the deceist Issobell Freir his dochter, quhilk tuo aikers of land belongs to Robert Boustoun, sone and aire to the said Robert Freir, which will be proven be ane woodsett tacke made be umquhill John Halliwall, father to the defender, and umquhill Archbald and Issobell Freirs and thair aires, and for farther cleareing thair is ane contract of mariag to be producit be James Boustoun maid betuixt him and the said umquhill Issobell Freir makand mention that quatever sowld happen to be conquest betuixt them sould fall to the aires maile or female procreat or to be procreat betuixt them, and the said John Halliwooll being narrest of kin to the said Robert Boustoun one the mothers sid will take the land and take upon them the hazerd of the break betuixt Robert Boustoun and John Halliwooll, therfor he aucht to be absolved in respect he never made any condition with James Boustoun.' The pursuer in his replies refers the first allegation as to non-indebtedness to the defender's oath, whether or not he made bargain with James Boustoun or promised to pay him the said sum in his child's name, or was owing the same or other sums at the time of arrestment. Secondly, 'its ansuerit be the said persewar that the defender John Halliwooll being interrogat upon his oath quhither or not he made the bargane with James Boustoun or with Robert Boustoun his sone of sex yeires old, so non may mak bargane with a minor without the fathers advice and consent who is allwayes lyable for his soncs estaite and granting of his soncs richt and causing of his sone ratifie at perfect age.' Desires inspection of the alleged contract of marriage. Judge appoints pursuer to see the contract of marriage and the contract of wadset. —Interlocutor; finds by the contracts of marriage and wadset that pursuers can have no action against John Halliwall to make the sum forthcoming 'in regaird that be the contract of woodsett the defender is na wayes obleist to James Boustoune for payment of the sowme contained therein bot onlie to the aires of the deceist Issobell Freir,' and repels the answers, and absolves the defender; 'bot in respect that Boustoune is minor wha is son to the said James Boustoune begotte betuixt him and the said Issobell Freir wha hes onlie richt to the sowme contained in the contract of woodsett, and seeing the defender John Halliwall is to redeem fra him the tua aikers of land contained in the said contract' the bailie ordains Halliwall either to retain the whole sum and find caution in the regality books to make forthcoming at majority, or to give bond with caution to him for payment thereof and consign the same in the hand of some responsible man within the parish of Melrose.

Complaint by William Ker, portioner of Newtoun, against Thomas Stenhous there, who detains from him 'ane woorttroch' wrongfully intromitted with by Thomas Stenhous his father about 30 years ago; also he owes him 48 s. Scots 'promitted for the use of his kill for dryeing of four kilfulls of malt four yeirs since.' Defender denies the trough, and refers to pursuer, who depones. Decerns. Defender grants 42 s. Decerns therefor. Ker v. Stenhous.

George Thorbrand in Smealholme sues Andrew Slater, tailor in Newsteid, for 4 l. 1 s. as balance of price of a firloot of oatmeal bought from pursuer a year ago.—23 June, refers to defender's oath.—30 June 1660, depones he paid the price of the meal in 'Gallascheills geat,' viz. a dollar and 2 s. 'and receaved nothing of it bake.' Slater v. Thorburn.

Andrew Phaup in Melrose sues James Burne there for Phaup v. Burne.

3 l. 4 s. Scots as balance of house rent due for a house set to defender from Whitsunday 1659 to Whitsunday 1660, and 4 s. Scots as the price of a cupful of meal, and 4 s. for a 'bed of plants.'—Decerns, defender absent; 6 s. 8 d. expenses.

Lithgow v.
Phaup.

Complaint by Andrew Phaup in Melrose against Adam Lythgow there, who received a long time ago from the pursuer a new grey cloak in pledge 'for lousing the persewars beists quhill some corn wer comprysed alledgit eatin,' but though the corn is comprised he refuses to return the cloak.—23 June, probation.—30 June 1660, ordains Andrew Phaup to satisfy the defender's comprising, and the defender to give back the cloak. Comprised by James Wallace and John Wallace to a firloft oats and a peck of bear eaten by Andrew Phaup's kine; the oats pertain to Adam Lythgow and the bear to George Blakie.—30 June 1660, modifies 10 merks for the boll of oats, so 16 s. 8 d., and bear 7 l. Ordains Andrew Phaup to satisfy this.

Melrose, 10th July 1660, Gideon Jackson

Hunter v. Bell.

John Hunter, eldest lawful son of James Hunter in Newtoun, sues George Bell, portioner of Reidpeth, for 14 l. 3 s. 4 d. as a year's fee wrought for by him a year ago, and six quarters of 'gray' with 2 ells of 'whyt.' Defender alleges he paid the fee and bounty to the pursuer's father, who made the condition with him. Absolves from 13 l. 2 s., and decerns for 4 l. 1 s. 4 d.

Merser v.
Forsane.

Janet Merser, widow in Newsteid, sues Robert Forsan, miller in Newsteid, for 5 l. Scots of fee and a firloft of oatmeal and a pair of shoes (worth 12 s.) of bounty, for her harvest fee for shearing and working to him in and after harvest last.—Denies claim; referred to his oath, who grants half a firloft of meal and 5 l. but alleges she deserted the service. Decerns for the 5 l. Absolves from the meal and shoes.

Walter Donaldsone in Melrose sues Thomas Eilleis in Danielstoune for 3 l. 4 s. Scots due by him to deceased Grizel Andersone, pursuer's mother, for ale and other necessities, and bequeathed verbally by her to pursuer, and acknowledged due by defender.—9 June 1660, probation.—10 July 1660, decerns, defender absent ; 6 s. 8 d. of expenses.

Complaint by George Boe in Dainyeltoune against James Eilleis, portioner there, to whom about 5 years ago the pursuer sold 4 acres of land, with houses, yards, and pertinents, reserving his liferent of the houses and yard, and the defender promised to uphold the onstead of houses in timber, masonry and divots at his own charges and to give the complainer a ridge of land in the Quarrell holes 'to lay his fuile upone yeirle' ; but though sundry times required to uphold 'the said hous quhich is now lyklye to fall upon the complinar and smoar him and his bestiall,' and give him the rig, he refuses. Also he is damnified by want of the crop of the said ridge for 5 years, being 3 firlots of bear. Also the defender owes him 50 merks and half a boll of meal of bounty, with 6 s. paid by the complainer to Andrew Patersone 'of annualrent which the defender sould have payed for the persuer.' Also he keeps up the minute of the contract made between them, which will clear the conditions. Also James Wallace in Melrose in the defender's name promised 20 merks to the pursuer, which he refuses to pay. Admits to probation.—Andrew Tunno depones he knows nothing anent the business, 'bot James Eilleis was content to uphald the hous, leid out his muck, and give him a dale in the quarrell holes, and teile his yairde.' Alexander Uscher 'depones ut supra, and to leid, and that James Eilleis sould teile the dale and harrow it with the yaird.' George Wallace 'depones ut supra, and that George Boe referrit the 50 merks and meill in James Eilleis his will.'—10th July 1660, ordains James Eilleis 'to put up and uphald the house conforme to the dispositioun, under the paine of 40 markes.'

Donaldson v.
Ellis.

Boe v. Ellis.

Wallace v.
Blackie.

Complaint by Robert Wallace, son of James Wallace in Melrose, against Patrick Blackie in Uplaw, who in 1657 sold to the complainer six sheep at 40 s. apiece, being 4 ewes and 2 wethers, 'and promitted to grasse the samyn and herd them on his own proper charges anc yeire, and if any sould happen to die to give the persewar another als good. The prices of the said scheep and grasse maile and herding he received, and trew it is that the persewar never received any of the said scheep excep on wether, so that the defender detaines four ewes and a wether,' which he refuses to deliver unless compelled. The defender 'grants hc hes four to the fore. Decernes to deliver the scheip.' Also James Wallace foresaid complains that whereas about a year ago he bought and paid for 4 wethers, he only received three, and the said Patrick detains one; and he desires a sufficient wether or the price thereof. [No decerniture].

'The humble supplicatioune of the minister and elders of the sessione of Melrose to Gideon Jackson of Lochhouses, ballie deput of the regalitie of Melrose.

'Seeing it heath pleased God not onlie to work a worke off reformatione throwhout the whole land bot even in this corner of the cuntrie wherin ther are many gentlemen who are paterns of piety and holiness to uthers in the paroches quherin they leave, the santificatioune of the Lords Day, and that the lyk reformatione is not wrocht in this paroch its our great croce and greif, wee humblie therfor desire that yow quho are the magistrat of this place, quho are appointed by God to be the keeper of both tables, to see to the honour of God in the first place, remembring that they that honor God God will honowr them, to enact in your court that quhatsoever persone of quhat ranke and conditione soever duelling within this paroch be found drinking within any house on the Lords Day wher wyne or aile is sold, efter fyve a cloak att night, be fyned, and lykwayes these that are the sellers of the drinke may be fyned, that so God may be honored amongst us and the Sabbath santified, and this is our earnest desire, as is witnessed be our subscriptione att Melrose, July the 10th, 1660. Sic subscribitur, Mr. DAVID FLETCHER, minister at Melrose; Wl. EDGAR, elder; JOHN MYLNE, elder; ADAM LYTHGOW, elder.'

'The said ballie deput haveing considerd the above written supplicatione and for remeid quherof and for the mor strict observing and keeping the Sabbath day, does heirby strictlie prohibit and discharge all ostlers and change keepers within this paroch from selling within thair awn houses on the Sabbath day efter 5 a klok on the efternoon aither wyne, aile or beire to any persones quhatsoever duelland within the paroch except to strangers, sick people, or their neighbours in the rowmes quher they leave, for the use of their own privat families, and that under the paine of xx s. toties quoties for ilk tyme they sall be fund sua doeing; and if any persone or persones of whatsomever degree or qualitie being residerenter within this paroch sall happen to be found att any tyme thereafter drinking and keeping companie in ane aile house att aither wyne, aile or beare efter fyve a klok as said is, they and ilk ane of them sallbe lyable in payment of the lik fyne for ilk tyme they sallbe taken in the said act; and if aither the drinkers themselves or the sellers therof sall be deprehended therein by the minister or any ane or mae of the elders of the kirk sessione who is to take tryall heiroy, they are to give notice therof to the ballie, who efter the probatioun of the factis done aither be the drinkers or the sellers therof is to give order to any of his officers to poynd the persones man or woman who is found guiltie in the breach heiroy, and to bring in the fynes to the kirk box for the use of the poore of this paroch, to be distirbut amongst them as the minister and kirk sessione sall think fitt; and ordaines the clerk of court to give ane extract heiroy under his hand to the minister and elders, and Alexander Uschar, officer, is to make intimatioun heirof att the mercat croce, to the effect nane may pretend ignorance hirof. Sic subscribitur, G. JACKSON.'

'Act annent drinking on the Sabbath day.'

Melrose, 21st July 1660, Gideon Jackson

Blackie v.
Smith.

Complaint by Patrick Blackie in Calfhill against James Smith, herd there, who in harvest time last 'did with the beasts he had a keeping eat and destroy to the persewar throw his sloath and neglect the number and quantitie of ten furlots of oats, comprysed be William Scott in Allenschawis and Thomas Heitounne in Westhouses.' Also he sues for 'ane half sowmes gresse of nolt grassed be the persewar to him in summer gone a yeire,' and a soom of sheep grassed to him last summer. The following defences are made:—First, denies whole claim as conceived; secondly, 'giveand bot not grantand that the bestiall that James Smith did keep was found eateing of the corne lybellit, he aught in law to purge himself of his awin bestialls both of his horsse, nolt and scheipe, as he cannot doe, as can be clearlie instructed the contrair as followis, In the first the haill town had somtyme calfs lyeing and eateing both night and day upon the corne lybellit'; secondly, the pursuer 'did keep and tether ane meire and ane foale both night and day besid the said schot of corne, and brake louse theron and wald scairce been fast ane houre in 24 bot eate allwayes theron, as can be made cleare be the haile neighbours in the towne.' Thirdly, 'the haile nolt in Calfhill did eat on the corne lybellit the space of ane hour and ane half, as can be clearlie proven be William Fischer in Colmsliehill, he being att Eister Langlie and coming to his own house at Colmsliehill did see the said horse upon the said corn the space forsaid and did come to Calfhill and caused turne them off the corne.' Fourthly, 'its known be the haill neighbours about that they had ane hirsell of ewes haveing no herd therto bot some bairnes of thair own and by that sloath and negligence did let them verie often eat upon the corne lybellit, and was taken off both by the persewar himself and the neighbours in Calfhill.' The complaint is therefore out of malice, of intent to cast the blame on him. As for the second claim, denies it, because he had no sooms 'bot thes quhom he had as ther agreement wes so many,' but however refers it to pursuer's probation, but not to his oath. The pursuer in reply refers the claim 'to the honest men to quhom the lybellit skaith wes submitted, viz. George Alexander in Mosshouses and George Dewar in Eister Langlie, att quhich tyme the defender offered three furlots of oats, and within schort tyme thereafter anc uthre half furlot of oats att Gallascheills; and as for the denyall of the 2d pairt of the lybell' refers it to defender's oath. The judge ordains the comprisers to be produced, and as for the soom's grass ordains defender to depone whether it was given him by condition at his feeing or if he kept these sooms 'besides his conditione.'—George Alexander depones that the pursuer and defender submitted to him and George Dewar 'upon this conditione that if they could not agrie the ballie to decyde therin,' and they ordained the defender to pay 'fyve half fulls of his oats in compensatioun of the haille.' George Dewar depones 'George Alexander offerit fyve little fulls of oats and he wold have had 9 and to have fred him at M'Calo hand quho had the half of the corne.' The bailie 'decernes to pay anc Lothean boll of oats to the persewar or els 4 lib. Scots and the persewar to frie the defender att M'Callo hand. Decernes in xx s. for the stirke.'

James Scheill, portioner of Ersiltoune, sues James Archbald in Lessudden and Janet Brotherstanes his spouse, 'who is justlie awand to the persewar' 18 l. Scots as balance of price of 3 bolls of malt bought and received 'be him fra the persewar about Whitsonday gon a yeire, wherof they now refusse to make payment' unless compelled. Defender grants 16 l. 'and for the 40 s. questionable,' and refers to pursuer's oath. 'Extracted, expenses xx s.'

Decreet,
Scheill v.
Brotherstane and Archibald.

Complaint by Robert Laidlaw in Williamlaw against George Pringill of Buckholme, Mr. William Duguid, Margaret Darling, Andrew Pringle of Haukburne, Robert and John Lees in Whitlaw, James Meine in Wester Langlie, and James Moffit in Eister Langlie, 'and the lands of Williamlaw being appointed for furnishing of ane horse,' in respect that at Beltane a year past Andrew Jerdon in Jedburgh obtained decreet against him for 7 threaves of straw at 18 s. the threave, with 12 s. of expenses, 'furnished owt be him to the Inglisches att Jedburgh att the Constable his directione,' and the defenders ought to bear equal burden with the complainer conform to their rent. 'Ordaines to cast upon the rent and lay on every ones equall proportione of the strae lybellit; passes from Andro Pringill and Whitlae.'

Melrose, 28th July 1660, Gideon Jackson

Watson v.
Darling.

Thomas Watson in Galloscheills sues Andrew Darling, portioner of Appelltrileives, for 11 l. Scot for a boll of bear bought from complainer two years past last Midsummer, to be paid at Michaelmas thereafter. Decerns, and the pursuer to find caution to answer as law will, who found James Donaldsone.

Torwoodlie v.
Blackie.

Complaint by Patrick Blackie in Calfhill against John Mylne, portioner of Newtoun, 'as cawtioner to ansuer as law will for George Pringle off Torwoodlie, son and aire to the deceist James Pringle of Torwoodlie,' as follows:—The said deceased James Pringle 'had in gressing with the complinar in Maggiltpotts about sex yeirs since or thairby fyttein hoggis and thrie oxen, the hoggis pastured to him a whole yeire, the oxen half a yeire,' for which he promised 20 l. Also the pursuer and other tenants of Blindlie paid out for the said lands to the Collector of the Forest 17 l. 10 s. 8 d. for May's assessment, 1659, as appears by the collector's discharge dated 25th May 1659, but of this the said deceased James Pringle made no payment to the complainer; and George Pringle and his cautioner refuse to pay except they are compelled.—26th May 1660, cautioner to have a copy for defences.—9 June 1660, pursuer compearing with Andrew Phaup, notary in Melrose, his procurator, and defenders compearing by John Bunyie, portioner of Newsteid, as their procurator, the latter argued that the pursuer should instruct his process and give a sight of the productions to the defenders. The pursuer declares his claim is just, and is content to give his oath of calumny. Among additional defences, the defender declares that the sums claimed were all allowed in the fore end of the pursuer's bond which was posterior to the bargain between the defunct and him; and craves pursuer's oath of calumny. This the pursuer craves leave to give. The judge ordains the cautioner to produce Torwoodlie to give his oath or otherwise his written declaration as to what he knows in the matter, in regard it is not the defender's own proper fact and deed. Torwoodlie by his missive letter, 27th July 1660, to the bailie declares that to the best of his knowledge 'any scheip or oxen my father had in gressing with Patrick Blackie whil he was in Magiltpotts or any assessment payet be the said Patrick wase allowed him in ane accompt made betuixt my father and him att Kilknow att the Mertymes efter his removall from the said grund, at which tyme the said Patrick gave a band to my deceist father of the sowme of seven scoir tuo pundis and entred in payment befor my fathers removall without alledging any such thing as he now clames. For further cleareing of the matter I am surelie informed that my deceist father upon ane heavie complaint maid to him be the said Patrick of the stres he wase lyke to be put to by his master Blindlie efter my father and he had satled and he put in possession of his awin lands did advance the said Patrick for payment of his maille to his master the sowme of thrie hundred markes, for which the said Patrick did onlie give band for seven score and tuo pundis, so that it is evident what was more of the thrie hundreth markes was allowit in compts which was betuixt them.' This being read in court, the pursuer and his procurator alleged it could not be received, but George Pringle ought to appear personally and give his oath. The bailie admits and accepts the declaration, and assoilzies Torwoodlee and his cautioner.

Alexander.

obligation in Grainge, against George Alexander, only lawful son of the deceased Richard Alexander in Mosshouses, and executor dative to him, in respect that John Taite, bailie in East Gordone, and John Hoome in Howlaws, granted Bond dated at Lauder, 21st July 1655, to the complainer for 120 l. Scots, and the said deceased Richard Alexander became cautioner to pay before Martinmas 1655, or 10 l. of penalty besides the debt; and the bond being registered, and execution following, there is yet 22 l. of the debt with 10 l. of penalty still due.—Defender desires pursuer to depone what is received from the principal debtors; who declares he has got 100 l. from them ‘in presence of the said George Alexander, he being present att the last delivery att Gordon three yeirs since or therby, and he gave them ane ressait therof.’ Decerns for 20 l. yet resting, and 5 merks of modified expenses.

Turner v.
Blackie.

Claim by James Turnor in Over Langschaw, executor to John Turnor his brother, against Patrick Blackie, younger, in Calhill, who granted Bond dated 28 October 1649 to the complainer’s brother for 76 l. Scots as the price of some sheep, which was to be paid by 11th June 1650, called Sant Bernards day, or 10 l. of penalty; which bond was registered and decreet interponed on 9th April 1658; but the defender paid nothing thereof to the complainer’s brother ‘at na tyme beffor his goeing out of the cuntrie to France in anno j^m vj^c fittie aucht’ except 8 l. of annualrent, contained in the factory granted to the pursuer, and he has paid 48 l. to the complainer for the price of two oxen ‘taken up be him from him in the forend of the principall and annualrent,’ so there remains nine years’ interest extending to 41 l. with 10 l. of expenses, and extending with the principal to 127 l. whereof is paid 48 l., so rests 79 l.—Defender craves a diet to produce his discharges; next court day assigned. Compeared defender, with John Bunyie his procurator, and in defence declares there should be no process till pursuer produces a testificate of his brother’s death and confirms himself excecutor to him, and then finds caution to keep defender scatheless at his brother's hands 'in caice he be on lyfe and turn bak to this natione.' The pursuer in reply produces the assignation by his brother to him of all debts owing to him by whomsoever in Scotland, and will find caution to warrant at all hands and especially those of the cedent. The judge finds the claim instructed by the Bond and Assignation, and ordains defender to pay 20 l. resting of the principal, and the bygone annualrents for six years amounting to 27 l. 12 s. ; but pursuer is to find caution to make the same forthcoming to his brother if he should return, and to give a discharge to the defender whercin both principal and cautioner shall be obliged to warrant the defender and his heirs from any further payment at all hands 'and specialle att the hands of his brethren and sisters mentionat in the said assignatione.' Total, 47 l. 12 s. with 4 l. of expenses of plea to the pursuer.

Complaint by William Bullman in Newtoun against Andrew Heitoun there, who wrongfully detains from him the houses, yards and pertinents of half a husband land in Newtoun disponed by him to the pursuer's deceased father and him conform to their contract of wadset, and has withheld the same for 12 years past, without making satisfaction ; also he keeps up all the old charters and writs belonging to that husbandland. He is also due 7 l. Scots 'for ten scheips grasse and tuo nolts' ; and 22 l. 4 s. paid out by the complainer for him at Martinmas 1658 'for a pairt of his entrie monie to my Lord Haddingtoun' ; and 100 merks of penalty contained in the Contract of wadset, seeing he requisitioned for redemption of the land before notary and witnesses ; also a certain sum which he and his father paid out for the defender 'of monethlie mentinence, troupers wages, kirk stents and other depursements thes twelve yeires bygone which he wes obleist be way of contract to repay' ; also 10 l. 7 s. 'of the reamaine of certaine corne and strae' which he bought from pursuer's father in 1653 ; also 20 s. Scots 'for the lid of ane mickle kist quhich he sould have made new to the per-sewar' or paid the price; also 4 l. for part of 3 years' teind, crops 1653, 1654, and 1655, conform to the bailie's discharges thereupon. In his defences Heitoun asserts he wadset no houses 'bot onlie single half land,' and he will deliver any old charters he has if the pursuer find security to redeliver them at redemption of the said half land. He 'sett ten scheips grasse att the persewers directione to pay the monethlie assessments; denyes the nолts grasse.' Denies 22 l. of entry money, as the pursuer promised to pay the same for him without any compensation; which he refers to his oath. Denies breaking the contract at the alleged making of requisition, and so not liable in 100 merks. As to public burdens, the wadsetter should pay, not the heritor, as the former reaps the benefit. He paid the pursuer's father what was due for corn and straw, and refers this to his oath. As to three years' annualrent preceding Whitsunday 1659 he paid 40 s. to pursuer before John Mylne in full satisfaction. As to the chest lid, the pursuer received a dale therefor. The pursuer in answer states that by the contract he ought to have the houses and pertinents, and 'ther is not another half land in Newtoun that wants housses yairds and pertinents bot onlie the persewers own.' He will certainly give receipt for writs and obligation to redeliver. For the 10 sheep's grass and two nолts he can prove the same 'by the takers therof' for the monthly maintenance, and the defender's word ought not to be trusted unless he prove the same 'by the punder oath who collected it or a sub-scryvit compt witnessed by 2 or 3 honest men in the Newtoun.' As to the entry money, 'the persuer promised to pay no such thing, neither neids he to give his oath for the samyn, in respect he had the defender taken with horn-ing and captione because he wald not willinglie enter, and being so taken with captione he desired the defender [sic] to becom cawtioner to the ballie for a pairt of his entrie money, quherupon the persewer becam cawtione and was forcit to pay the 22 l. 4 s. be vertew of a registrat band.' The penalty for breach of contract is due because 'he forcet the defender [sic] to registrat the said contract and put the samen to executione becaus he wold perfynt no pairt of his conditione.' The defender is obliged to repay the public burdens, etc., paid out, 'be vertew of contract in respect ther is more money on the said houses and land nor the worth thereof.' As for 10 l. due for corn and straw, the pursuer has an account signed by John Mylne and Thomas Stenhouse to prove the same; 'if that will not doe it, its reffered to the defender's oath.' As for the chest lid, 'the defender gave no dale bot onlie some peaces of old rotten boordes for no use, which the persewer hes to shaw.' The judge by interlocutor ordains pursuer to prove 'that ther was at the tyme of the woodsett and formerlie allwayes houses bigging yairds and pertinents belonging to that half husband land sometime possest be Thomas Mylds, quihich is woodsett to him be the defender,' and that these are withheld; also to produce the first contract of wadset between him and his deceased father and the defender. In additional defences Heiton declares 'that ther is na housses nor yairds disponed be the defender since his fathers deceis who had the said half land disponed to him and promitted to him to deliver him three bolles of bear to renew the contract from his fathers name to defraud the rest of his brethren and sisters from their dew portiones of the sowme of money therin contained as executors to him, quihich fair promeis made the persewar to renew the last contract in his awn name, and albeit he then fathfullie promitted to deliver the defender the said three bolles of bear and the first contract, quihich he awght to be decerned to deliver for clearing of the premises, and if so be that the first and last doe not agree in every poynt and clause of the samyn, its most unjustlie and fraudfullie kept'; and accounts were cleared before John Mylne and Thomas Stenhouse, portioners of Newtoun, 'quihich compts the said William Bullman hes most fraudfullie augmente since the tyme forsaid, quihilk the defender offers to prove and is willing to submitt himself to the whole neighbours in Newtoun.'—John Mylne, portioner of Newtoun, depones he was present with William Bullman and Andrew Heitoun at accounting, and 'all difer-ences wer cutt away betuixt them except the entrie monie acclaimed, and for the teynd acclaimed he hard them speak of it bot knowes not quhether William Bullman was content to quyt it, and for the scheips gres clamed it was refered to William Ker, punder, quhether or not it was payed be Andro Heitoun for William Bullman for the ces of the 1655 yeire of God.' Thomas Stenhous depones ut supra in omnibus, 'and that all claggess and clames and annualrents was all payed preceeding Whitsonday last, and that he hard William Bullman nawayes promitt to pay ane entrie.' William Ker, 'punder, suorne deponed he knew nothing bot that he received the gres maile fra Andro Heitoun to pay Bullmans cesse.' The judge in his interlocutor finds by the depositions that all claims are settled except 22 l. claimed of entry money, and absolves Andrew Heitoun from all except that, which he has referred to pursuer's oath; pursuer to depone whether or not he promised to relieve the defender of any part thereof at the hands of the Earl of Haddington.—28th July 1660, absolves conform to interlocutor, except 22 l. and decerns therefor upon the pursuer's oath. 'Ext. exp. 24 s.'

Rolmainhous
v. Sounhous.

James Sownhous in Blainslie complains against Edward Rolmainhous, portioner there, who about six years ago last Pasch received in the pursuer's name from Helen Rollmainhouse, wife of James Donaldsone, the sum of 23 l. Scots, and that for payment making to Patrick Scott of Langschaw of the pursuer's teind duty to him in Blainslie which the said Edward has not paid as yet nor will redeliver the same to the pursuer or else Scott's discharge. Also the said Edward 'yesterday tuik up a trie and offerit to fell the complinar therewith and did cast it at him for that effect.' Absolves defender in regard he produces Scott's discharge, dated 3d August 1660.

Cairncross v.
Blackie.

William Cairncrose of Calfhill, and John Ker of Prestone, his principal curator, sue Patrick Blackie sometime in Calfhill, his tenant, now in Uplaw, for 62 l. Scots as the balance of Whitsunday's rent of the one-third part of the room and lands of Calfhill possessed by him from Martinmas 1659 to Whitsunday 1660. Decerns, defender absent.

Isobel Hall, lawful daughter of John Hall, portioner of Threepwood, sues Margaret Darling, widow of Robert Darleing, portioner of Appelltrileives, for 20 l. Absolvitor, Merser v.
Darling.

Complaint by Andrew Phaup, officer in Melrose, and Adam Darleing in Westhouses, and William Edgar, procurator fiscal, against James Merser, portioner of Gattounsid, as follows :—The defender by his ticket dated at Edinburgh, 27th September 1656, granted him owing to Barbara Bennet, widow in Edinburgh, 8 l. Scots, to be paid on demand under pain of doubling. She assigned on 23d July 1657 to the said Adam Darling, who raised action and obtained decree interponed for payment dated 17th October 1657, whereupon James Boustoun, officer, on 29 October charged Merser to pay the 8 l. with a year's interest and 10 s. of expenses of plea, within 15 days ; which charge being anew intimated by Andrew Phaup on 14 April 1660, and at Gallascheills on Michaelmas day last, the said Andrew on 2d October instant came to Merser's house to poind, whereupon the defender 'defferrit and stoppit the persewer from poynding of som quheit of his efter the persewer had comprised ane example therof.' For this deforcement he ought to be fined and punished conform to act of Parliament. Compeared the defender 'and produced ane discharge daited 7 or 8 moneths since the assignation, maid faith and deponed he payed the debt to the principall debtor Barbara Bennet.'

Chisholm and
Bouston, etc.

Complaint by John Drumond, James Symesone, John Bowstoun, portioners of Dernick, against Andrew Chis-

holme, John Mosse, younger, portioners there, for themselves and the rest of the portioners of Darnick interested, as follows :—The pursuers, their predecessors and authors, have been past memory of man in use to pasture ‘upon the grund of the said land of Darnick each on of them ane horse or meire conforme to their richt and possessiones of their landis and heritages’; but, after the ‘birlawmen’ had refused to poind them, the said Andrew Chisholm and John Mos ‘instigat the whole neighbours of the toun to come and poynd them for pasturing of thes horses deu to be pasturit and keepit be them as ther predecessors have bein in use to pasture and keep for working and labouring of their grund, and spolizet and away took furth of each on of their houses their fyre vessell beffor Lambes last and still keeps and detaines the same from them to their gret prejudice and skaith,’ thinking by this oppression to prejudge their right. They crave redress, punishment of the intruders, and to be defended in their possession. Defenders compearing denied the claim and ‘granted and confest that they and the haill neighbours of the town (except the persewers) in their birlaw court hes unanimouslie condescended that each sex aikers of land sall keep ane horse or meire, and hes stentit the same sex aikers of land to keep and pasture therupon ane horse or meire in all tyme cuming, and the saids complinars are to keep conforme to the said stent and according to their possessiones and na farder.’ The bailie absolves the defenders, and interpones his decreet to the said condescendence and stent agreed on in the said birlaw court; whereupon the said John Boustoune asked act of court and instruments.

Melrose, 13th October 1660, Gideon Jackson

John Greive in Blainslie asks the judge to interpone his authority to a decreet obtained 12 August 1653 before the Sheriff of Roxburgh against Marion Fogo in Blainslie for 6 l. Scots with 20 s. of expenses of plea. Decerns upon production of the decreet; 13 s. 4 d. expenses.

Also against George Elleis there for 4 l. 4 s. as balance of price of a firloft of oatmeal bought as above. Decerns conform.

Merser v.
Anderson.

Complaint by Alexander Merser in Ersiltoun as follows:—William Anderson, portioner of Reidpath, granted bond on 19th April 1658 at Ersiltoun to the pursuer for 91 l., and paid part thereof, and in corroboration of the balance (seeing pursuer at his desire stayed execution till the separation of the present crop) he disposed to the said Alexander his corn growing on that part of the lands of Craighouse possessed by him, and as much of his corn growing in Summersyde of Ridpeth as will complete the sum due conform to market prices as they are between Michaelmas and Martinmas this year, and obliged himself 'to scheire, bund, stack, leid home to the towne, build, stack and cover the said cornes in barne yaird within the towne that the said Alexander Merser or his forsaid sould pleis make choose of,' and accord with the pursuer for the price and deliver the victual, and if not completely paid, to make up the deficiency out of the readiest of his other corn, under a penalty of 10 l. This bond is registerd in the commissary books of Berwick, 14 December 165 ; but there is 61 l. still due, with two years' interest at Whitsunday next. Registered bond produced; decerns for the principal sum, rebating 30 l., which pursuer deponed was paid by five bolls of oats at 6 l. the boll about two years ago; expenses, 8 l.; principal, interest, and expenses, 79 l. 16 s.

Complaint by Margaret Eckfoord, widow of Robert Meine, portioner of Gattounsids, and James Merse, now her spouse, as follows:—Thomas Eckfoord, smith in Innerleithan, by deed dated at Melrose 11 November 1642, assigned to her 800 merks due by deceased William Wright ‘called the Nether Smyth in Gattounsids’ and his cautioners to the deceased Bernard Meine, lawful son of deceased Robert Meine, portioner of Gattounsids, with 4 l. of expenses, and the bond itself, containing clause of relief whereby the said William Wright obliged himself to warrant and relieve the said Thomas Eckford, his father-in-law, of the interest of the said 800 merks during the said Margaret Eckford’s lifetime; but the said interest is due to the complainer these past six years at Martinmas last, and extends to 192 l. and William Wright, son and heir of the said William, will make no payment thereof unless compelled. The defender, William Wright, in Gattounsids, alleges that the cedent had no right and so the pursuers are not competent to pursue, and any interest addebtid will belong to the deceased Bernard Mein to whom bond was granted; and the passive titles must be instructed and the defender allowed further defences. It is answered that the production of the bond is sufficient, made by defender’s father to deceased Thomas Eckfoord, the pursuer’s father, for 800 merks, to be paid ‘to the aires of umquhill Robert Meine, which umquhill Robert Meine was son-in-law to the said deceist Thomas Eckfoord and husband to the persuer, and the annualrent be the obligatione is appointed to be payed be the deceist William Wright to Margaret Eckfoord the persewar all the dayes of hir lyftime,’ and also the principal and interest are both assigned by Thomas Eckford to her and her husband, which assignation is also produced. In additional defences it is alleged that the sums libelled are satisfied in respect that parties met in Gattonside in persence of neighbours and at Candlemas 1659 agreed for William Wright's paying to the pursuer 90 l. Scots in satisfaction of all byrun interest then due, which sum was paid by him to the said James Merser. In reply the pursuer declares 'that ineaice there had such ane agreement been made at Candlmes 1659, the defender ought not onlie to pay the sowme of 192 lib. but also ought to pay the sowme of 33 lib. 6 s. 8 d. for the penaltie of the breake of the faithfull condition made befor sundrie famous witnesses,' who can prove 'that the defender is not onlie to pay the sowme off fiftie merkes of penaltie bot sieklyk every on of them to be in thair own place as formerlie and that condition to be null and of no availe,' and desires the judge to consider 'the persuers estait and condition quhilk is clearlie known be the hail neighbours that the persewers haile familie hes been lyke to sterve sundrie and divers tymes for breake of the conditione made be the defender and hes forced the persewer to promeis pennies for on for thair lyvlichkeit and intertainment of thair bodie,' and so desires sentence in favour of the pursuer 'in regard the poor woman cannot be wronged nor her husband for his intres of the annualrent.' Alexander Uschar, married, 33 years, depones 'he knowes that James Merser in Gattounsaid as principall and Thomas Merser his sone as cawtioner wase resting to William Speiding in Gallasehells a certane sowme of money contained in a registrat band and decreit obtained be the said William against him, and heiring that William Wright in Gatounsaid was resting to the said James Merser he caused the said Alexander arreist be vertew of the said decreit 40 punds les or mair in his hands, quherof the said William Speding obtained decreit against the said William Wricht, and the said Alexander deponit he saw William Wricht pay William Speiding in presence of James Mersers self ten punds and William Speiding gave William Wricht Mertymes 1660 to pay the uther 20, quhiech makes up in all 30 lib.' John Halliwool, weaver, deponed, that William Wright delivered and is to deliver to him 24 l. 'for James Merser sones prenteis fie of the sowme acclaimed.' Robert Mein, mason in Gattounsaid, married, 28 years, depones he was present with the parties, who submitted to Robert Freir, John Halliwoole, James Boustoune, and John Halliwoole 'Croce,' and the deponer as oversman, 'quho entred upon and could not agree them, but att that same tyme James Boustoune and Robert Freir did agrie the parties for 90 lib. Scots in compensatioun of the bygone annualrents preceeding Candlmes 1659, 50 merkes quherof wes appointed to be payed att Whitsonday 1659 and the rest and remnant at Candlmes 1660, and in caice it wes not dylie satisfied att thes termes preceislie, James Merseir was ordained to be in his awin place for quhat he acclames, and in caice the sowmes wes not fulfillit att Candlmes the first 50 merks to be quyt be William Wricht.' John Halliwoole, called of the Croce, there, married, 36 years, deponed ut alter in omnibus 'except that part quher James Merseir was to be in his awin place, and the certification of the losse of the 50 merkes, bot that there wes 30 pundis of penaltie or 50 merkes, who was not content with the agrement or did break to uther.' James Boustoun, married, 50 years, depones 'Robert Freir and he agreed the parties, and declares at Candlmes 1659 Robert Freir and he did setle the persewer and defender for the sowme of 90 lib. in full satisfaction for all bygon annualrents preceeding that tyme, quherof 50 merkes wes to be payed att Mertymes 1659 and the rest att Candlmes 1660 under the paine of 30 lib. Scots to have been payed be the partie failzer or quho wes not content or did rew, and knawes nothing annent the payment of the 90 lib. bot that it wes compted and reckond betuixt the parties that the whole sowme was satisfied be William Wricht to James Merseir and his creditors. Robert Freir there, married, 46 years, depones he and James Boustoune agreed the parties, etc., as above.—The judge finds it proven that there was an agreement for 90 l. in full satisfaction of bygone interest, and that the defender has paid 70 l. thereof to Merseir and his creditors, and 20 l. is paid or to be paid to William Speiding, one of the said creditors, so he absolves him from the annualrents acclaimed, reserving action to the pursuer for the annualrent after Candlemas 1659.

Melrose, 1st December 1660

Ellis v. Gray. John Gray in Selkirk sues Thomas Eilleis, wright in Danieltowne, for 4 l. Scots 'for the persewers wricht worke wrocht be him to the defenders at the Countess saite in Selkirk kirk in anno 1656.' Defender denies the claim 'that he imployed him, bot that he wrocht voluntarlie and wold uplift his vadges from the Tutors,' as he referred to his oath. Defender referred back to pursuer's oath, who refused to depone. Absolves.

Langshaw v. sundry. Patrick Scott of Langshaw, titular of the parsonage and vicarage teinds of Blainslie, sues John Sownhous, for teind of two husband lands, 34 l. 9 s. and for the pendicle 6 l. 2 s., inde 40 l. 11 s. Scots, crop 1659; Thomas Caldeleugh, 53 l. 12 s. 11 d. for crops 1659 and preceding; Robert Davidsone, 25 l. 15 s. 2 d. said crop. 'Decerns reservand modificatioun, except [? extract] against Caldeleuch'; expenses 20 s.

Boston v. Boston. Thomas Bowstoun in Gattounsids sues Thomas Boustoun there, called Duik Dube, for 18 l. Scots borrowed from pursuer a year past last Whitsunday, with the annualrents since. Held as confessed; annualrents, 24 s., expenses of extracting, 24 s.

Ellis v. Wallace. Complaint by James Eilleis, Over, in Melrose, against George Wallace, notary, who refuses to deliver up a disposition and resignation, charter and sasine pertaining to the deceased Walter Scott, goodsir to Walter Scott, portioner of Melrose, of a tenement there, most part of which tenement is disposed by the deceased John Scott, son of the former and father of the latter, in favour of the pursuer, in which disposition he obliged himself to deliver the writs upon receipt and promise to make forthcoming. Defender granted having the writs; pursuer produced this disposition by John Scott to him obliging himself to deliver the writs upon inventory. Decerns ; expenses, 1 l. 4 s.

George Cairncroce in Reidpeth sues John Anderson, Cairncross v. Anderson. portioner there, for 30 s. 4 d. Scots as balance of his fee and a pair of ‘double soled shoes’ or 36 s. for the same. Held as confessed ; modifies for the shoes 24 s.

Thomas Cochran, portioner of Mertoun, sues Andrew Riddell, portioner of Lessudden, for 7 l. 4 s. Scots as price of six small fulls of bear bought in May. Held as confessed. Cochrane v. Riddell.

Robert Mylds in Gattounsids sues Robert Mylds there for 7 l. 14 s. Scots for three ‘mickel fulls’ good and sufficient seed bear bought from complainer last May, payable at Michaelmas. Held as confessed, 2d diet. Myldes v. Myldes.

John Meine in Gatounsids sues James Merse in Brigend, who owes to ‘ane Duike Dube in Gatounsids’ 7 l. and Duikdub owes the pursuer the same for oats, which oats the officer arrested for Duikdub’s rent, and Merse promised payment to Dukedube at St. Peters day. Decerns conform to the libel ; 20 s. expenses. Mein v. Merse.

James Tait in Blindlie sues Robert Rae, younger in Threipwood, for 5 l. as the price of 8 lambs bought by defender at Ersiltoun fair on 18th June last, to be paid at Michaelmas ; also John Laidlaw in Colmsliehill owes 8 l. ‘for his sones fie for ane yeire’s service wrocht be him to the defender.’ Decerns as confessed, 2d diet, defenders absent. Tait v. sundry.

Andrew Penman in Melrose sues Alexander Reidpeth, portioner there, for 9 l. as price of a boll of seed oats bought at seed time, to be paid at Lambas last ; also 12 s. for ‘three raikes of his horse to the Faughhill this tyme tuo yeire or therabout.’ Held as confessed, 2d diet, absent ; expenses, 13 s. 4 d. Penman v. Redpath.

Williamson.

Janet Dickson, widow in Gallascheills, deponed 'that the cloake that Adam Darleing is persewing Thomas Williamson for wes umquhill David Pringill her husbands cloake, and that sche disponit the same to Thomas Williamsone.'

Melrose, 8th December 1660, Gideon Jackson

Wright v.
Merser.

Complaint by William Wricht, smith in Gatounsaid, against James Merser there and Margaret Eckfoord his spouse, as follows:—The complainer by his officer and precept 40 days before Whitsunday last warned the defenders to remove from a dwelling-house and yard of his possessed by them in the town of Gatounsaid, but they still retain possession and ought to pay the violent rent and profits, which mail and duty is 10 l. Also although he has paid to them 90 l. Scots due by his bond, they refuse to discharge the same. Pursuer compearing, with John Rodger his procurator, and defenders with John Bunyie, their procurator, defences are given in as follows:—First, they took the house and yard from Janet Eckford, pursuer's mother, and so pursuer ought to serve heir first to his father [sic] 'and nixt entred to my lord as superiour of the grund'; secondly, craves that pursuer may prove the debt of 90 l. paid to them or any others in their name. It is answered that as to the first, the pursuer's mother is concurring and ready to concur in the process if need be, but it is offered to be proved that the subjects were taken even from the pursuer himself; and 'it is most noture and weell known to the judge and neighbours about that the fewars and possessors of Gatounsaid (albeit the most part of them be not infett) are undoubted fewars kyndlie tennants and possessors of the houses and pertinents for payment of the few dewtie, and it is absurd to say that notwithstanding they may not sett ane house and yaird of the maile and dutie of ten pund nor call for removing therfra without infettment.' But the defenders must remove, because they, pretending right to the annual-rent of 800 merks due by pursuer and his deceased father to them, have possessed the said house and yard with certain arable land therefor these many years past till Whitsunday 1659, when any interest due was paid and then they removed from the arable land, house and yard, and took again from the pursuer the house and yard alone for a year, which expired at Whitsunday last, for 10 l. of rent. And it is iniquitous to compel him to produce titles to a cothouse and yard of 10 l. Scots, for he has possessed the same, at least they by his tolerance, unquestionably these 15 or 16 years past since his father's death. The judge finds the libel instructed by production of the warning and executions, and the pursuer's father's infeftment in the house and yard acclaimed, and the pursuer is most willing to enter heir to his father therein and has given bond to the Earl of Haddingtoun superior, for his composition ; and decerns defenders to remove ; and finds relevant and admits to pursuer's probation the claim anent house mail.

Complaint by Andrew Selater, portioner of Newsteid, Slater v. Mein. against Andrew Meine there 'callit Wester Androw,' as follows :—Pursuer raised process against him to remove from his house and yard in Newsteid, and thereafter both parties submitted to Andrew Tunno, notary in Melrose, to agree them and decide what the defender should pay to pursuer. The arbiter in presenee of John Meine, son of Robert Meine, Robert himself, Thomas Bowie, and James Meine, smith, ordained defender to pay 16 l. at Midsummer last, 'and then did writ anc disposition be the said perssewer to the said defender,' subscribed in their presence on 13th February 1660 ; but the defender will neither accept the heritable disposition and pay the sum decerned, nor remove from the subjects. Denied ; admits to pursuer's probation.—John Meine, son of Robert Meine in Newsteid, depones the facts as above. James Mein depones that Andrew Tunno ordained Mein to pay 16 l. to Andrew Selater 'and nocht els.' Thomas Bowie in Melrose depones 'he wes witnes to the dispositione, and ut alter in omnibus.' The judge finds complaint proved and ordains

Mein to pay the 16 l. and Slater to give him the disposition.

Thomson v.
Fairbairn.

John Thomson, weaver, portioner of Lessudden, sues John Fairbairn there for 14 l. 13 s. 4 d. as price of two bolls of oats bought from pursuer about Martinmas 1658. Grants 14 l. ; decerns ; 20 s. expenses.

Cochrane v.
Thornburn.

Thomas Cochran, portioner of Newtoun, obtained decret on 1 December inst. against Andrew Riddell [undesigned] for 7 l. 4 s. Scots and 13 s. of expenses, whereupon the said [sic] David Unes arrested in the hands of James Thurburnt in Lessudden so much ferme bear (due, I suppose, to Riddell), which he refuses to make forthcoming. Decerns, defender absent.

Unes v.
Bryden.

David Unes in Lessudden sues James Bryden there for 6 l. Scots as balance due for wheat bought about 10 years ago. Held as confessed, 2d diet ; expenses, 6 s. 8 d.

Maxwell v.
Redford.

Complaint by William Edgar, procurator fiscal of the regality of Melrose, and Thomas Reidfoord, portioner 'there,' against John Maxwell, portioner there, to whom Reidford sold eight 'esch and elme trees' in 1657, but he came to the pursuer's croft and cut and took away ten trees, the two additional ones being worth 5 merks apiece, which he ought to pay, besides the fine contained in the acts of Parliament 'anent incroching upon mens heritage and cutters of green wood.' Defender grants he cut nine trees, and denied the tenth ; avisandum to next court.—Deponed he cut no trees but those he bought. Absolvitor.

Mein and Hastie v.
Lowrie and Blackie.

Complaint by John Meine, mason in Newsteid, and Alexander Heastie in Newtoun, against Mark Blackie, portioner of Melrose, who became cautioner for James Lowrie, portioner of Coldscheilles, to satisfy Mein for nine days' work at his mason trade, at 8 s. Scots a day, and Hastie for 30 s. Scots for service done to Lowrie. Decerns conform ; expenses, 10 s. 8 d.

John Thin in Blainslie sues Robert Blaikie in Hagburn Thin v. Blackie. for 50 s. Scots for a firlof of oatmeal bought from pursuer in Gallascheills market at Lambas 'bygone a yeire.'
 Decerns as confessed ; 6 s. 8 d. expenses.

James Darling in Sorrowlesfeild sues Margaret Darleing, Darling v. Darling. widow and executrix to Robert Darleing, portioner of Appelltrileives, for 25 l. of fee for service wrought by pursuer to him and her ; also 8 l. of the balance of fees.
 Refers to pursuer's probation. Pursuer deponed Edward Darleing and Thomas Darleing ordaned her to pay 27 l.
 Decerns for 27 l. ; 26 s. 8 d. of expenses.

Andrew Heitoune, portioner of Newtoun, complains that Heitoune v. Bullman.
 William Bullman, portioner there, detains a Contract of wadset between him and deceased John Heitoune his brother on the one part and deceased Stephen Bullman, defender's father, on the other part, dated as 'therin contained,' whereby for 340 merks paid by Stephen to David Dobsone in Lessudden (in their name) for redemption of 'that single half land in Newtoun' formerly wadset by said David Dobsone they [but it does not say what they did]. Also he detains another Contract of Wadset between same parties dated whereby for 530 merks they wadset to Stephen another half husband land with the onstead and yard belonging thereto. The pursuer has at the earnest desire of the said William Bullman renewed both these securities in his own name since his father Stephen's death, yet he detains all, whereas the old securities in his father's name ought to be delivered up to be cancelled. Also he detains from the pursuer a Bond granted 'be him to him' for 13 l., albeit the debt is paid.
 Likewise he promised to deliver or allow to the pursuer in the fore end of his ferme due to him 3 bolls of bear, crop 1653, for the renewal of the said securities. Moreover, he keeps the letters of horning denouncing the pursuer for non-entry to the wadset lands, raised caption and apprehended and warded him, and now the pursuer being entered ought to have the letters, with a sufficient discharge, in order to his relaxation. Bullman is also addebted to the said Andrew Heitoune in two fulls of wheat bought at Martinmas a year past, for 8 l. the boll, inde 32 s., and this year 3 small fulls, at 12 l. the boll, inde 3 l. 12 s.; and 3 small fulls received by his wife at seed time last, at 9 l. the boll, inde 3 l. Pursuer deponed the defender promised to pay the bear. Decerns. [Nothing else about the case.]

Bell and Lidderdane v.
Pringle.

Complaint by George Bell, portioner of Reidpeth, and James Lidderdane, portioner there, against John Pringill of Williamlaw, as follows:—James Anderson, portioner of Reidpeth, by his Disposition, dated at Ersiltoun, 15 April 1656, sold heritably to the complainers equally between them his two husband lands in Reidpeth ‘with the sixth part of lands in Craighous lyand within the toune of Reidpeth,’ wherein they have infeftment and have right to all writs and securities concerning the same. A tack thereof was set by the said James Andersone ‘with consent of the said John Pringill to quhom he had given full power of the saids lands’ to the said George Bell on 13th January 1655, for payment of 11 bolls of vietual to Anderson or Pringle between Yule and Candlemas, the first payment to be between Yule 1656 and Candlemas 1657; but the lands being disponed as above, Pringle is denuded of his right to the property and tack duty, and ought to deliver up the Tack; yet he will not exhibit the same unless compelled. Pursuers compearing, with John Rodger their procurator, and Pringle also compearing, with George Walker his procurator, defences were given in as follows:—First, pursuers to give their oath of ealumny; secondly, to produce the Disposition and infeftment upon which they found, and whereby the tack duty is said to be discharged; thirdly, he ought not to exhibit the Tack, being by way of obligation, and he can prove that the bond containing tack is registered [23 June 1660] and extracted by him as his own evident for recovering the tack duty, and the pursuers may extract it from the register at their own expense, and whenever Pringle raises action for the bear contained in the bond or tack the said George Bell will be heard to answer, and Pringle to reply. In answer, pursuers require defender's oath of calumny whether he has just reason to withhold the Tack, register the same and pursue for the duty; and the disposition and ineffectment are in the hands of the clerk of court, to whom defender may apply for inspection. It is offered to be proved that Williamlaw denuded himself of the right he had from Anderson, and promised to deliver all writs and securities which he had of the subjects, and indeed did deliver to James Lidderane [sic], one of the pursuers, fourteen deeds, but has kept up this Tack 'whereby to truble the persewer and not advantage himself.' In additional defences covering much the same ground the defender denies promising delivery of writs, especially the Tack, and inasmuch as he has caused register the same and charged George Bell, one of the pursuers, for the tack duty, he ought to have further execution and letters of poinding against him. The pursuers in replying produce the Disposition by the last heritor containing an ample discharge of the tack granted by him to Pringle; and the tack being only granted by Anderson with defender's consent, and payable to either of them; and as it would appear by Anderson's granting the said discharge that the tacksmen had chosen to pay to him, so the Tack is now the pursuer's evident as heritor, 'and any obleisment conceived in Williamlaw his favors ceisses, for George Bell and James Lidderdane cannot be both heritor and tennant.' Williamlaw's right and interest is only as a naked consenter, and no more in law at the best than a factory or commission to uplift the duty in Anderson's name; and though James Anderson were the defender, he would have to deliver up the Tack as being extinguished and consolidated with the property of the lands in the person of George Bell, tacksmen, and James Lidderdane; 'and albeit (which makes the bussines like midday) Williamlaw had been constitut assigney to the tacke, as he is not bot ane naked consenter and factor whose factorie and mandate morte mandatoris tollitur, yet he could never get the dutie of George Bell, he haveing satisfied the same to his cedent

bot of necessitie wald be forced to seek his releif of warrandice of James Andersone'; and 'since as said is the taksmen and proprietar are now one persone yet sic debitum et creditum confunduntur and he must pay himself.' As to the last point, the pursuers protest that no execution can be taken against them till the fiars be liquidated and they heard to answer.—The judge ordains the pursuer to produce the infestment, and the defender to produce the tack.—10th November 1660, produced tack; infestments to be produced by next court day.—The judge finds by a heritable Disposition and infestment following thereon, produced, that James Anderson, heritable proprietor of the lands contained in the Tack, sold and disposed the same irredeemably to the pursuers within three months after the date of the tack, which takes away the tack made with consent of Williamlaw, who has no right or interest in the lands but as mere consenter to the tack, and the pursuers have undoubted right to the lands and the whole fermes and duties thereof, and to all the evidents affecting the same; therefore ordains defender to deliver the Tack to them with an ample discharge thereof, in respect it is registered, and the said Tack to make no faith in judgment or outwith the same in time coming in prejudice of the said George Bell.

Melrose, 29th December 1660, Gideon Jackson

M'Callo and Turnbull v.
Walker and Merser.

James M'Callo and Andrew Trumbell, portioners of Bouden, sue Bartholomew Walker in Melroise for 5 l. as the price of a firloft of oatmeal bought from them at Whitsunday last, to be paid at Martinmas; also George Merser in Dernick for 5 l. for the like. Held as confessed; 6 s. 8 d. expenses to each.

Bunyie v.
Riddell.

John Bunyie, elder, portioner of Newsteid, sues Andrew Riddell, portioner of Lessudden, for the sum of 'for intending his bussines thretie four court dayes beffor the ballie of Melrois, quherof he acclaimes for each court day 6 s. Scots,' which he promised to pay. Modifies 3 l.

‘ by and attour anything formerlie receaved ’ ; expenses,
13 s. 4 d.

Thomas Loukup, wright in Melrose, sues John Fischer Loukup v. Fisher. of Wester Housbyre for 4 merks as balance of price ‘ of the window lidds and caices of Old Melrose and for bandes therto.’ Held as confessed.

Complaint by John Notman, late miller in Langschaw Notman v. sundry. Mill, and Patrick Scott of Langschaw, his master, for his interest, against the following for abstracted multures :— Mr. William Duguid, minister, portioner of Appelltrileives, the multure of 24 bolls of oats, Roxburgh measure (5 mickle fulls to the boll), crop 1658, and the same of crop 1659, with 2 bolls of ‘ hummell corne ’ ; Margaret Darleing there, the same for crops 1658 and 1659. Also ‘ he ’ complains against Andrew Darleing there who is due to him 10 l. partly for meal and partly borrowed silver at Midsummer last, to be paid at Lammas. (Decerns on pursuer’s oath); and against Nicol Cairncroce in Allenschawis for 10 l. 12 s. for meal received from pursuer at several times within the past year, payable at Beltane. (Decerns on pursuer’s oath.) Duguid in his defences denies he is thirled to this mill, and desires it to be proven ; and ‘ he was never challenged as thirrell nor summond to come to the mylne, naither did ther ever as yet decreit passe against him ’ ; and if decreit passed against his predecessors yet he is not tied, ‘ as also that decreit stands this day suspended and as yet lyes undiscussed, and to pas a second decreit beffor that which lyes befor the supream in civells be discussed is contrarie the lawes of this natione ’ ; and ‘ everie one of them hes a chartour beareing them free of thirlledge to any mylne, yea they are frie to bigge a mylne if they had the rent to it, as is heire to be seen ’ ; fifthly, thirlage is part of a man’s heritage and can only be discussed by advocates before the Lords of Session. The pursuers answer (1) that the thirlage of the ground possessed by Duguid ‘ is not to prove now ’ ; (2) since ever Notman had interest in the mill he has ‘allwayes been challenging and summonding and delayed decreits upon promeisses of better conditione nor denyalles; (3) as to not being tied like his predecessors, ‘it seemes he is not in so good condition as his prediccessors, als in ane farr better conditione for suspending, wee neid not speik of it’; (4) desire a sight of the charter freeing him from thirlage; (5) there is no need here to discuss the question of thirlage, far less before the Session.—The judge finding by several decreets obtained at Langshaw’s instance against the whole possessors and occupiers of the lands of Appeltrileives, often produced before him in former processes, that the lands of Appeltrileives have always been thirled to the mill of Langschaw ‘and hes allwayes been in use and custome to grind ther haille grist thairat,’ repels the defences and ordains defender to depone what he has abstracted. Compears Duguid and protests he had a suspension; next court assigned to produce.—Absent and failed to produce suspension; compeared John Bunyic, pursuer’s procurator, and produced a protestation thereof, dated January 1656, ‘quherby the defender is decerned to make payment of the thirled moulter lybellit conforme to the schireffis decreit and in tyme cumming.’

Chisholm.

James Willson in Kaidslie sues John Chisholm, Craikfurd, for 100 merks of tocher promised with his daughter Margaret Chisholm 4 or 5 years ago, to be paid within a year, as stated in presence of James Scheill in Craikfurd and Thomas Wricht in Kaidslie. Before Pasch last parties submitted to Thomas Law in Melrose and said Thomas Wricht, who decerned defender to pay 20 l. at Whitsunday last, 20 l. at Whitsunday 1661, and 26 l. 13 s. 4 d. at Whitsunday 1662; yet the first payment is still resting. Grants the sums and the terms of payment; decerns to pay, as the terms come and go. Also he promised to make his daughter, pursuer’s wife, ‘ane bairne of the house of all the goods and geire pertaining to him’; denied, admits to probation. Thomas Law declares ‘this within writtin lybell is all of trewth especiallic annent the promitting hir to be ane bairne of the house.' Thomas Wricht depones the like. John Dawson depones he was not present 'quhen the first conditione wes made as to the alleged promeis' but only heard it by report. James Scheill in Craikfurd depones he was present 'att the mariag agreing and hard the defender half grant to the lybell annent that part quher it is acclamed that the persewars spouse sould be ane bairne of his house.' The bailie finds it clearly proven and ordains 'the persewers [spouse] to be ane bairne of the defenders house and have ane portione of his goods and geir att his deceis.' 'Decerns ut supra, the defender present, ordaines the persewer to find cawtione to ansuer as law will.'

Complaint by Bessie Rowmanhous in Blainslie, and James Sownhous, her spouse, for his interest, against James Donaldsone, portioner there, as follows:—Some years ago she granted to the defender a procuratory empowering him to uplift all debts and goods owing to her and particularly 100 merks bequeathed to her by the deceased Marion Rowmainhous, her sister, wife of the deceased James Greive in Blainslie, and he was to account for his intromissions. This sum she is informed he either has or is to uplift from Margaret Davidsons, 'last relict' of the said James Greive, and John Darleing, now her spouse; but he will make no account for this or any other sum uplifted already by him. He ought also to produce the procuratory. The defender compearing denies receiving or having possession of the procuratory, and the pursuer ought to produce it. The judge ordains the pursuers to instruct their right to the sum acclaimed by production of the testament of Marion Rowmainhous, and to prove that the procuratory was delivered to the defender, as he denies receipt thereof.—The defender compearing produced a discharge by the pursuers dated 3d July 1660. Absolves. Andrew Phaup, pursuer's procurator, protested that the defender's denial of the procuratory may not prejudice the pursuers in time coming. Admitted. Donaldson v. Rowmainhous.

Complaint by George Adamsone in Longnewtoun, Adamson v. Riddell. Agnes Rutherford his spouse and James Adamsone his son, as follows :—Patrick and Andrew Riddell, portioners of Lessudden, by Bond dated at Melrose, 11th November 1658 granted borrowing from the complainers the sum of 600 merks, to be repaid to the said George and his spouse, whom failing, to their said son and his heirs, by Martinmas 1659, with 40 l. of penalty and the due annualrent ; and obliged themselves in security thereof to infeft them in an annualrent upliftable from half a husbandland ‘ and of these thair thrir quarters of land in Lessudden with the teynd scheawes thair of includit ’ with the pertinents, lying in the town and territory of Lessudden, with 4 l. of expenses for failing to pay the annualrent in due time, and if two terms run into the third unpaid, to infeft them in the property of the said ‘ half husband land, teind scheawes thair of includit,’ until redemption thereof ; with warrandice from all public burdens, maintenance, feu duties, services, and legal execution, except in the case of the complainers actually possessing. Moreover, neither of them being infeft as heirs to the deceased William Riddell their father, or the deceased David and Patrick Riddell, their goodsir and grandsir, they obliged themselves to obtain infeftment before 1st August 1659 at the hands of John Earl of Haddington, superior, which failing, the said complainers were to obtain heritable infeftment from the superior and the defenders to renounce all right and interest in the lands. On 18th February 1660 the said George Adamsone in presence of Mr. Andrew Hallibur-toune, notary, Thomas Unes, portioner of Lessudden, James Archibald there, David Kyle, smith there, and John Maben in Maxtoun, produced the said obligation, and because the said Patrick and Andrew Riddell had failed in the premises by not procuring themselves infeft, therefore protested that it was now lawful to him to procure infeftment in the hands of the superior and that the Riddells had by nonentry forfeited their right and interest in the property, and thereupon took instruments. They therefore crave it to be so decerned. Pursuers compearing by John Bunzie in Newsteid their procurator, and producing the said obligation and instrument of protest, and the sasine following on the bond, dated 9th May last, and the defenders not compearing, the judge decerns Patrick and Andrew Riddell to have lost the right of reversion by their non-entry and ordains George Adamson and his spouse and son to enter thereto and hold of the superior, and enjoy heritable possession.

The party contravening was to pay 20 l. Scots of penalty, besides fulfilment of the conditions. This contract was registered in the regality books on 13th March 1659. Caldeleuch still owes to the complainer 51 bolls of victual, half oatmeal, half bear, Roxburgh measure (five meikle fulls to each boll), for three years' duty, 'to wit, the just third therof for ane yeires ferme of the saidis landis payable betuixt Whitsonday 1657 and Whitsonday 1658 being the fourth yeares ferme contained in the said tacke, and for the last yeire therof he subsett the samen to tennents quho hes or at least is to give satisfactioun and payment therof, the lyke third betuixt Whitsonday 1659 and Whitsonday 1660, and the uther juste third therof betuixt Whitsonday 1660 and Whitsonday last bypast 1661 yeires instant, and as for the saids tua last yeires since the expyreing of the said tacke he did possesse the saidis landis without onie new conditione, quhich he cannot deny,' and he ought to pay the victual or 14 l. per boll meal and 8 l. per boll bear, and relieve the complainer of teind, etc., as agreed, but he refuses. The debt is 561 l. Pursuer compearing by Andrew Phaup, notary in Melrose, produced the precept and a missive by Wallace for the said tack duty, and the defender failing to compear, though often summoned by Alexander Uschar, officer, the judge ordains Caldeleugh to pay to the pursuer 14 l. Scots for each boll of meal and 8 l. for each boll of bear conform to the libel, and to relieve him of teind duty, etc., as claimed.

John Rodger, portioner of Reidpeth, sues Thomas Fleabairn in Ersiltoun and Margaret Scheill his spouse for 60 l. Scots as the agreed-on price of six bolls of malt bought from the complainer at Martinmas 1659; and the complainer being debtor to John Allen in Corsbie in 60 l. he sent Archibald Allen in Lidgertwood with his precept to ask the said Margaret Sheill to deliver 10 l. of their debt to him in name of the said John Allen, which she delivered to Archibald, but retained no precept for her warrant and his discharge; and Archibald having retained the money in his own hand, John Allen has poynded the pursuer for the said 10 l.; and the defenders ought to pay the sum to the complainer and seek their relief from the said Archibald. Held as confessed, absent.

Fleabairn.

Melrose, 13th August 1661, Gideon Jackson

Penman v.
Wallace.

Andrew Penman in Melrose sues Alexander Wallace in Lairdlandis 'quho is justlie resting to the complinar ane ew hogg of the cropt 1660 promitted be him to the complinar for his sones bounteth for service wrought in summer 1660 and promited to deliver the same yew lambe pryce therof 48 s.' Ordains to deliver the lamb, or 24 s. for the price.

Wright v.
Boustoun.

Robert Wricht, smith in Longschaw, sues Thomas Boustoun called Duikdube in Gattounside for 14 l. promised a year past at Martinmas last, and interest for a year and a half. Decerns for the principal, absolves from the annualrent; expenses, 20 s.

Watson v.
Turner.

Charles Watstone, maltman in Lauder, sues James Turner in Nether Langschaw for 3 l. 1 s. Scots as balance of price of 11 firlots of bear bought at Whitsunday 1660; also a ewe lamb, worth 20 s., of profit and increase. The bailie modifies 4 l. in compensation of the whole claim; expenses, 13 s. 4 d.

Usher v.
Simpson.

James Usechar in Darnick sues James Sympson there for 14 l. 14 s. Scots for 2 bolls of sufficient seed oats bought from complainer before last Easter. Decerns as confessed.

Usher v.
Bradie.

Helen Usechar in Darnick sues Robert Bradie in Eildoune for 7 l. 6 s. Scots as balance of a greater sum. Decerns as confessed.

Wallace v.
Ellis.

William Wallace, weaver, portioner of Melrose, sues Thomas Eilleis, wright in Dainyeltoune, for 9 l. Scots 'partlie promitted be him for his sone Thomas and partlie for uther necessars,' payable last Yule. Decerns as confessed.

Complaint by John Maxweell, portioner of Melrose, against John Coat, portioner of Lessudden, who about a month ago in presence of David Unes, officer in Lessudden, and Andrew Gastoune, set to the pursuer a little house and piece yard in Lessudden till Whitsunday 1662 for 3 l. Scots and 'ane kaine hen,' but he refuses to give possession, though the complainer has three or four times gone from Melrose to him for that effect, whereby he is damified 'and disapoynted of provyding his elding in tyme and his travell' in 10 merks. Defender confessed 'he sett the house with his brothers consent and the uther tooke it with his wyfes consent,' and referred to pursuer's oath, who refused to swear. Absolves.

Mr. James Strang, late schoolmaster at Melrose, obtained decreets on 17 October 1657 and 31 July 1658 against John Pringill of Williamlaw for five merks yearly, extending to 10 merks, for fees due to him, and on 1st August instant by virtue thereof caused arrest in the hands of Thomas, Robert and William Laidlaw in Williamlaw the said sums, which they refuse to pay. Decerns, suspending execution till Martinmas.

The procurator-fiscal complains that Patrick Blackie in Wolplaw and James Smith in Mosshouses have 'often and severall tymes heirtofore in forbidden tymes sett girnes upon severall moore hens and uther wyld foules nestes, quherby there hes been made by them great innocent slaughter and criminale danger committed by them in respect of former acts of court.' Passed from this, and ordains them to desist in time coming.

Complaint by Thomas Hay, herd in Colmslie, against John Cochran in Over Langschaw and Thomas Turnor in Moshouses, who detain from him two hogs which wandered from him, 'and hes keild them of their awin merks,' and refuse to deliver them, though the pursuer apprehended them in their possession. Thomas Blackie depones John Cochran 'tooke three hoges from the Housebyre scheipe and said they were the Longschaw hogges, he being herd in Moshouses, and knowes not quho owes them.' James Blackie depones ut altro [sic] and that John Cochran merkit them and Thomas Turnor took them fra John Cochran and keep them.—'Decerns in absolvitor becaus not provin.'

sundry.

Complaint by John Fratter, younger, portioner of Langhauch, as follows :—Margaret Darleing, widow of Robert Darleing, portioner of Appeltreeleives, was addebted to Jean Patersone, widow of William Speiding, smith in Gallascheills, 9 l. 16s. 8 d. Scots, which Jean Paterson by letters dated at Selkirk, 29th September 1660, assigned to the complainer; and to Marion Frater, wife of John Cruiks in Gallascheills, 8 l. 10 s. as the price of a boll of oats, which sum Frater assigned by letters dated at Galashiels, 19 June 1660, to the complainer; to Christian Ker in Netherbarnes, 3 l. 11 s. 8 d. for half a year's fee for service in summer 1659, and verbally assigned to the pursuer; to Isobel Frater, 3 l. 9 s. 2 d. for merchant wares, verbally assigned to the complainer. By virtue of these assignations he sues Margaret Darleing for payment. She denies the libel as conceived, and desires inspection of the assignations, and that the cedents may come and approve their assignations. She grants 3 l. 10 s. of Christian Ker's, 3 l. of Isobel Fratter's, 4 l. 14 s. of John Cruik's, and refers the rest to John Cruiks' wife. William Speiding's testament is produced, bearing the debt libelled; decerns for 11 l. Produced a missive from Andrew Darling, portioner of Appilltreeleaves, declaring that when Philip Darleing and Margaret Darleing gave in account of funeral expenses for Andrew Darling 'hir umquhill father,' the said Margaret gave up Isobel Fratter for 3 l. 11 s. for meal and other necessities 'quhilk the said Margaret had desired her to lay owt.' The judge admits of this testimony and decerns conform.

Melrose, 20th August 1661, Gideon Jackson

Complaint by John Hall, portioner of Threipwood, James Moffit, portioner there, William Moffit, portioner there, for themselves and the other possessors, against John Moffit, son of Archibald Moffit, portioner there, 'quho contrair to the comon state of the towne annent prohibiting of keeping of oversowmes hes kept and pastured therupon four sowmes of bestiall, viz. ane sowme of scheipe, ane ox, ane horse, pryce of each sowme fyve merks, by and attour the penaltie of ten pundis annent keeping of oversowmes' conform to several acts of court, half to be paid to the bailie and half to the town. James Aitchesone depones 'he knowes 8 lamb pastured wase oversowmes, and that he had more pastured ane meire and three nolt bot knowes not quhider they were oversowmes.' John Pringill there depones the defender had eight lambs, a horse and an ox 'in oversowme' this crop 1661, 'and hes the lambs and ox pasturing therupon yet, and that the horse wase sold att St. Laurence daye.' James Stoddert depones as above. Decerns in 3 l. for the sheep, 20 s. for the nolt, and 30 s. for the horse, 'and ordaines to keep no oversowmes in tyme cuming under the paine of ten pundis.'

Complaint by James Eilleis, son and heir of deceased Alexander Eilleis, maltman, portioner of Melrose, against Margaret Henderson, widow in Gattounsides, now spouse to James Bowstoun, portioner there, who by her Bond, dated 8th August 1649, granted borrowing from his said father 100 merks, to be repaid with a year's interest by Lammas 1650, and 10 merks of penalty if she failed therein. There is now due 12 years' interest, at 4 l. yearly, extending to 48 l., which with principal and expenses amounts to 121 l. 6 s. 4 d. Decerns conform to libel, and Bond produced; annualrent owing only since Martinmas 1656.

William Davidson, servitor to Mr. William Duguid, portioner of Appeltreeleives, sues William Cairncrose of Allenschawis for 68 l. 4 s. 8 d. Scots for fees for service a long time past, and 20 l. as the price of an ox bought from pursuer long ago. In defences Cairncross alleges that the claim is frivolous and irrelevant not condescending upon time or place, and 'being without three yeires' cannot be sustained. The pursuer offers to prove service rendered 11 or 12 years ago, and defender ought to prove payment, and at Martinmas last he offered pursuer 2 bolls of oats in part payment; and as to the ox, not only was it bought by defender for 20 l. but he borrowed 10 l. in addition, and sold the ox to George Turnor in Langshaw and lent him the 10 l., and received payment of both again. Repels defences in respect of the answers, and admits to pursuer's probation, who refers to defender's oath. Absolves on defender's oath from the whole pursuit.

Fisher v.
Westhouses.

Complaint by John Fischar of Wester Housbyre against John Leirmount and William Darleing in Westhouses, who about a month ago were both apprehended 'carieing away upon their backes the complinars turves from the grund of Housbyre,' and they ought to pay 10 l. of penalty conform to the act of court passed at the pursuer's instance against all the inhabitants of Westhouses, Langlie, and other places about, 'for stoppeing and preventing off them to bring hether, turves and uthers fewall therfrom,' and they ought to be further punished. Held as confessed, 'and ordaines to renew the acte.'

Frater v. Bell.

Complaint by George Bell, portioner of Reidpeth, against John Fratter in Langhauch, as follows:—John Wilsone, elder, maltman in Galashiels granted Bond on 19 August 1657 to deceased Robert Darling in Admistoune for 50 l., and the said John Fratter became cautioner for re-payment by Whitsunday 1658, with interest and 5 l. of penalty. Margaret Darling, widow of said Robert, and executrix to him and overseer to Robert and Philip Darling, their children, assigned the said bond on 5th June 1661 to the complainer. No payment was made before the decease of the said Robert in February 1658, and the cautioner still refuses. The judge finds by the testament produced that the said Margaret Darling ‘in Appeltreecleives’ cannot dispone or assign any sums contained therein in prejudice of John, Marion, Philip, and Robert, children and only executors to the said deceased Robert, and being only overseer to them required their consent and that of their tutors and curators; so decerns the said assignation to make no faith in judgment or without in time coming, and absolves the defender, reserving the right of the executors to sue for the same hereafter. Received up by Andrew Phaup, pursuer’s procurator, the Bond, Assignation, and Testament.

Complaint by William Wallace, weaver in Melrose, Law v. Wallace. against Thomas Law, weaver there, who six or seven years ago ‘hyred the complinar to goe to with him and then promitted to give him ane schilling starling for every day he aboad with him, and trew it is he aboad with him the space of ten dayes helping him to mount ane covering loome’; but there is no payment. Absolves defender upon his oath.

William Edgar, procurator fiscal, pursues William Browne and Adam Turnbull in Newsteid ‘wha and aither of them upon the day of August instant haveing shaken of all feare of God and respect to his Majesties lawes did stryke and bate one another, quherby they and aither of them have committed ane oppen brald or ryot,’ and ought to be fined. ‘Adam Trumble absent, William Broun present, deponed he nawayes trubled Adam Trumble. Absolvitor.’ Brown and Turnbull v. procurator fiscal.

Complaint by Andrew Cairncrose, now of Wester Longlie, Cairncross v. Gibson. against Michael Gibsoun, tenant to Andrew Tunno, notary in Melrose, now at Hawick, who fails to make forthcoming, in respect of Bond by Tunno dated at Longschaw, 21 March 1659, to complainer (therein designated of Colmslie) for 19 l. 8 s. Scots, for which complainer obtained decreet on 1st July last and thereupon caused Andrew Phaupe, officer, arreist in Gibson’s hands 26 l. Scots due by him to Tunno for rent of his house and lands in Melrose, for Martinmas and Whitsunday 1660, and teind and third ferme and maill, crop 1661. Decerns against the tenant 'for the fermes, mailles and 3d of the cropt 1661' upon defender's confession; expenses, 24 s.

Wallace v.
Fisher.

William Wallace, merchant in Melrose, sues William Fischair, fiar of Housbyre, for 81 l. 4 s. 8 d. as the agreed-on price of 'certain ait meall, iron, and uther necessars for the use of his house,' bought by him and his servants since 1st February 1660. Denies the libel as conceived, as it does not condescend on particulars and parties buying and receiving. Judge repels defences and finds claim proven by the account produced, but before sentence ordains pursuer to depone whether all the sum is due and no part paid, as the account is not subscribed by the defender.—Decerns conform to the libel, account, interlocutor, and pursuer's oath, defender being cited and absent.

Mein v.
Bunyie.

James Meine in Wester Longlie, portioner of Newsteid, sues James Bunyie, weaver there, for 8 l. Scots as rent of a house and yard in Newsteid from Whitsunday 1659 to Whitsunday 1660. Defender grants 7 l. 10 s. Absolves from the 10 s. as pursuer refused to depone. Paid judicially.

Melrose, 28 September 1661, Gideon Jackson

Boustoun v.
Leithan.

Helen Boustoune, widow in Gattounsaid, sues James Leithane there for 9 l. 6 s. of the sum of 17 l. 18 s. contained in a decret at her instance 25 October 1656. Decerns conform.

Bowar v.
Bowar.

Complaint by James Bowar in Eildoune against John Bower, Eister, portioner there, who a year past last Lammass day set to him a husband land in Eildown, with teind sheaves included, for 5 years, wherefrom the complainer has had one crop, 'and trew it is that this samyn day 8 dayes the persewar and defender made ane new conditione for three years efter Mertymes next, and yet notwithstanding sensyne he came to the complinar and said he wold not suffer him to plowe it, and most unjustlie thinks to break his conditione and enter thairto himselff and put the persewar from the possessioun thair of.' Defender absolutely refers to pursuer's oath 'quhither or not he gave over the land to the said defender since yesterday, quho depounet upon oath that if the defender wold not suffer him to keep it with ease he wes content to give it over.' Absolves the defender, and ordains him to possess the land himself.

Melrose, 5th October 1661, Gideon Jackson

John Erskine of Scheilfeild sues William Cairncrose of Allenschawis for 2 rex dollars due to the complainer as tutor to William Cairncroce of Hilslope his nevoy, for two years' teind pease of the lands of Moxpopple, about 6 or 7 years ago. Decerns as confessed.

Erskine v.
Cairncross.

Complaint by William and Isobel Milne, lawful children of deceased Nicol Milne, portioner of Newsteid, against Mungo Donaldsone, portioner of Melrose, and William Ker, portioner of Newtoun, his cautioner, as follows :— Donaldson gave Bond at Melrose, 25 November 1649, to their father for 200 merks, to be repaid at Martinmas 1650, and Ker became cautioner for the same, with a year's interest, and 20 merks of penalty and further annualrents after the said date; and their father on 6 September 1656 assigned the debt to them in equal proportions; but now payment is due not only of the principal, but of the penalty and 36 l. of annualrents. Decerns against the defenders, both being absent.

Milne v.
Donaldson and Ker.

Complaint by George Coupar in Westhouses against John Scott in Gattounsaid, in respect that having process against him before this court for 13 l., on Thursday last at night in presence of Andrew Marr and Robert Meine, mason, payment was promised of 6 l. 10 s. on St. Mungo's Coupar v.

Scott.

day in compensation thereof and for the pursuer's discharging the process. Since then the defender has revoked, and so complainer seeks the whole 13 l. Andrew Marr deponed 'that it wes first submitted bot not agreeit, and thereafter they agreeit betuixt themselfs for 6 lib. 10 s. which ten shilling wes referrit to John Scot and to pay 6 lib. att Saint Mungoes day and Coupar to discharge Scott of the testament.' Robert Meine depones as above, 'and hard Cowpar once deny the testament and then granted the haveing of it.'—Pursuer depones he has not and never had or hid the testament. Decerns to grant discharge of testament on payment of 6 l. at St. Mungoes day.

Paton v.
Adamson.

Mungo Patoune in Lessudden sues Helen Adamsone there for 8 l. Scots as balance of price of malt bought from pursuer about four years ago. Decerns as confessed.

Melrose, 19 October 1661, Gideon Jackson.

Boston v.
Darling.

Thomas Boustoune in Gattonside sues Margaret Darleing in Appeltreeleaves for 19 l. 2 s. Scots for a boll and a peck of oat meal bought from the complainer at Fastingseven last, payable at St. Booswells day thereafter. Decerns as confessed, being absent.

Unes v.
Hunter.

John Unes in Lessudden craves that Thomas Hunter there may make forthcomnig a boll of bear arrested in his hands as due to John Reed in Maxtoune, who is addebted to the complainer in 4 l. 13 s. 4 d. for malt received before Easter last. Pursuer depones the debt is owing, and Hunter grants his indebtedness to Reed, and is ordained to make forthcoming.

Wright v.
Boston.

Richard Wricht in Gattounsides sues Thomas Boustoune called Dookdube there for 16 l. 10 s. Scots lent at Michaelmas 1660. Decerns as confessed, absent; 20 s. expenses.

Boston v.
Wright.

Thomas Bowstoune, younger, in the Wynd in Gattounsides, sues William Wricht and Isobel Boustoune there for 16 l. 16 s. 4 d. Scots for bear and malt bought from the complainer during the past twelvemonth. Defender's wife grants ; decerns, expenses 24 s.

Robert Scheill in Westhouses sues Thomas Boustoun Scheill v. Boston. called Duikdube in Gattounsides for 6 l. 17 s. partly of harvest fee, partly borrowed, partly for 'waire' [merchandise], during the past 5 or 6 years. Held as confessed ; expenses, 13 s 4 d.

Complaint by John Davidsons, portioner of Blainslie, Scheill v. Davidson. against Janet Scheill, widow of Thomas Turner in Langshaw, in respect that the deceased James Davidsons, complainer's father, as factor and chamberlain to late Lord Elibank in 1648, paid out for the said Thomas Turner 10 l. Scots 'for his proportion of the hyreing owt of ane trowper to the Ingadgment to England the tyme forsaide,' but repayment is now withheld. John Bunyie, defender's procurator, argues that there be no process till pursuer instruct his title to pursue, and produce his father's testament and his service as heir to him ; also denies asking Davidson to advance anything, as defender has absolute discharges thereof from the late Lord Elibank.—Ordains pursuer to instruct his title and prove the debt.—Absolves, as pursuer renounces probation.

George Wallace in Melrois sues Thomas Bowie there for Wallace v. Bowie. 14 l. borrowed in January last, and 5 l. 12 s. borrowed 4 or 5 years ago. Held as confessed, being cited by A. Phaupe ; expenses, 24 s.

Melrose, 2d November 1661, Gideon Jackson

James Hislope, merchant burgess of Selkirk, sues Patrick Hislop v. Blackie. Blackie in Wolplaw for 5 l. 2 s., as balance of 13 l. and 26 s. 8 d. of expenses in a decreet at pursuer's instance against him, 3 January 1657. Defender alleges all paid but 3 l. Referred to his oath, who refers back to pursuer, who depones 4 l. 16 s. 8 d.—Decerns.

Fiscal v.
Turner.

William Edgar, portioner of Melrose, fiscal, prosecutes George Turner in Over Langshaw, for detaining a stot of John Chisholme of Craiksfuird arrested in his hands on a decret by complainer against Chisholm, and he ought to deliver the ox or stot, or 20 l. as the value thereof.—Defender depones it is worth 5 l. Decerns to pay this to the fiscal.

Law v. Smith.

Complaint by Thomas Law against James Smith in Mosshouses, who by his slothfulness of herding in 1659 and 1660 lost to James Bruntoune in Seitupe 13 'yeild yewes and ane four yeire ald wether, and sicklyke did wirrie with dogges two yeild yewes,' and the said James Brunton assigned the debt to Law. Defender ought to deliver 'for everie yew ane yew and hogge owtcume with ane lambe and fyve pundis for the wedder.' Referred to defender's oath, who deponed there were five sheep lost, whereof 4 ewes and one wether, and he has a skin 'of the fyve, so there will be four loste.' The bailie modifies 40 s. apiece for three ewes and 3 l. for the wether, in compensation of all.

Trotter v.
Turner.

Complaint by John Trotter in Eister Housbyre against George Turnour in Over Langschaw 'that quheras about the space of eight dayes since or therby the said George Turnour and the said complinar cost [exchanged] tuo meires quherof he promited to pay the said complinar ane bolle of seed oats in buite [exchange] betuixt the said persewers meir and the defenders,' but now he refuses. Defender alleges the pursuer 'upheld the beaste taucht and that he heirs by informatioun sche is not,' but refers to pursuer's oath, who deponed 'ane cleire bargane but exceptione.' Ordains to hold the bargain and deliver the oats.

Henderson v.
Blackie.

William Henderson in Ladopmure sues Patrick Blackie in Wolplaw for 10 l. Scots, also sums of 24 s., 16 s., 10 s., due for meal, and 20 s. as balance of a fee, with six quarters of 'gray,' and a pair of white hose. Grants 10 l. for the oats, a peck of 'umel corne meill,' a copful of oatmeal. Referred to pursuer's oath. 'Decernes conforme to the lybell for the sowmes, and within xv dayes the gray or 20 s., 16 s. for the horse.

John Johnstowne in Langschaw sues John Davidstone, Johnstone v. Davidson. son and heir of deceased James Davidstone, portioner of Blainslie, for 12 l. owing by defunct to complainer for a boll of oatmeal bought from Alison Turner, the complainer's spouse, in 1645; also 4 l. as balance of a harvest fee; 4 l. 10 s. for drink. Defunct began to repay, and delivered a boll of oats at 8 merks, so rests 15 l. 4 s. 4 d. Claim referred to defender, who refers back to pursuer, who declares the above balance resting. Decerns.

Decerns Andrew Kennidie to pay to Mark Blackie 10 l. Blackie v. Kennedie. for meal bought at Midsummer 1660, 4th diet; expenses, 13 s. 4 d.

Melrose, 16th November 1661, Gideon Jackson

Complaint by Thomas Wilson in Galashiels against Mr. Wilson v. Duguid. William Duguid, minister, portioner of Appeltreeleives, who gave Bond at Langhauch, 9 July 1661, to pursuer for 11 l. 12 s. Scots as the price of 'aucht single fulls of beire att 12 lib. the bolle, 2 singill fulls of peis att ten pundis,' to be paid 'att newcorne.' Decerns conform to the ticket; expenses, 16 s. 8 d.

Thomas Turnbull in Phairneley sues Andrew Penman Turnbull v. Penman. in Melrose for 3 firlots of oats bought and paid for by the complainer a year ago but yet undelivered. Defender denies, and refers to pursuer's oath, who deponed conform to the libel 'deduceand ane prick pecke aither aits or . . . vj lib. as it came to the boll.' Decerns for the rest.

Alexander Turnor, tailor in Galashiels, sues Andrew Turner v. Darling. Darling, eldest lawful son of Peter Darling, portioner of Appeltreeleives, for 5 l. Scots contained in his ticket dated at Galashiels, 3 February 1659, and promised at Midsummer thereafter. Grants the debt. Decerns; with 16 s. expenses.

Slater v.
Darling.

Robert Slater in Gallascheills sues Margaret Darleing in Appeltreeleivs for 12 l. as balance of price of 6 firlots of meal, promised last Midsummer. Decerns, defender absent; 20 s. expenses.

Gibson

Complaint by James Eistoune, portioner of Lessudden, against Walter Gibsoun, portioner there, John Gibsoun, portioner there, and Margaret Young, their mother, 'wha att their awin hands contrair to the laws and statuts of this kingdome most willfullie and wittinglie did cast downe ane dyke of the complinars standing betuixt their yaird and the persewers,' and razed the foundation thereof 'and thereafter did big and ineroch upon the complinars heritage.' They ought to rebuild as it was before, and be punished conform to the act of Parliament. Moreover, they have 'biged ane tree of his within the said dyke, thinking therby to appropriat the samen to their use.' Ordains to 'take the dyke and set it quher it wes, one James Eistouns charges.'

Decreet of declarator, Easton v.
Gibson.

Complaint by John Gibsoun in Lessudden and Margaret Young, widow there, his mother, against James Eistoune, portioner there, and Andrew Bryden his tenant, as follows:—Their onsteads lie contiguous, his being a husband land's tenement and theirs 'half ane lands tenement,' so he ought to have 'tuo elnes of measour and the complinar on,' but he claims and eneroaches on much more than belongs to him and molests and impedes the pursuer 'of his just pairt,' and he and his tenants cut, appropriate and dispone upon 'severall timber and trees of the complinars growand within his tenement'; so they crave march stones to be set. This and the preceding process being called, and both parties compearing, they chose

Robert Kyle, smith in Lessudden, Thomas Hunter, portioner there, Mungo Pattoun, portioner there, James Cochran, portioner there, and David Unes, officer there, to sight and report upon the question. Their report is dated at Lessudden, 12 November 1661, that they went to 'ane dyke of stones and timber' in dispute, and find 'that the whole dyke of tymber on the east side of the stone dyke' belongs to Easton, 'and the tymber on the west side of the stane dyke' belongs to Walter and John Gibson and their mother, who have 'uplifted ane part of the said dyke of stanes and set it about sume of the growing trees and upon the root of one cutted tree and does hinder the upshots of the tree roote to spread or bud owt' and they ought to be exemplarily punished, 'and hopping your Lordship will take sume course in this bussines that wee may be fred of it for wee have doon our dutie in so far as wee know, for it had not been in questioune sum four mens lyftimes as wee can aither heare or learne or ever hard of our predicessors quihich wes beffor us.' Signed 'T. H., R. K., I. C., W. P.' in presence of witnesses, Walter Grahamslaw, John Unes, wright, and Andrew Unes, weaver in Lessudden.—16 November 1661, the bailie ratifies and decerns as in the report 'and in lyk manner decerns and ordaines the said James Eistoune to reforme and take up the dyke and place grund and stance it quher it wes of beffoir the removeall therof.' [No mention of punishment.]

Alexander Stoddert in Calfhill, son and heir of deceased John Stoddert in Maggiltptottes, obtained decret on 6 December 1651 against John Scheill, portioner of Ersiltoune, 'possessor of certaine landis bewest Leadder,' for 16 l. with 20 s. of expenses of plea (due to his father and in part payment whereof the defender delivered a boll of bear, at 6 l., in 1653 to the complainer). Decerns for 11 l. resting; 16 s. 8 d. exp.

Stoddart v.
Sheill.

Complaint by James Broune in Bourhous against Jean Hendersone, widow of Nicol Darling in Langhauch, as Henderson v.

Brown.

follows :—The pursuer's deceased father owed her 100 merks by his Bond, and after his death, while the complainer was minor, she came to him in Lauder 'accompanied with severall persones hir accomplices of lawers and officers threatning him with horning and captione' unless he granted her a new bond in his own name for the said sum, which in his ignorance he did, whereas had he taken time to search his father's papers he would have found, and now produces, a sufficient discharge for the debt. At his granting the new bond, the defender had neither the first bond nor the diligence to give him; but now he ought to be assoilzied from both bonds, and to have delivery of 100 merks and 14 years' interest. John Bunyie, defender's procurator, craves pursuer's oath of calumny, and to find caution to answer as law will; and any discharge produced must be of the latter bond. The pursuer for answer declares that the new bond was unjustly extorted from him within 48 hours of his father's death, during his minority and 'when he could not have the advice of the master of the grund he duells into nor advice of freinds and lawers,' and he never borrowed anything from her. The fact of her having no bond or letters of caption or horning to produce to him was proof of the extortion, the debt having been previously satisfied and the papers cancelled and destroyed. The judge ordains pursuer to prove payment of the first bond by his father, and that he himself borrowed no more, and that the new bond was extorted as alleged.—William Heriot in Uxtoun, depones 'he wes informed be Mr. Robert Hart the defender's maister that he instigat and seduced the persewar to grant the band for the 100 merkes lybellit in his minoritie by threatning him with horning poynding and captioun quich they had not,' and knows nothing of the first bond, and knows by the defender's confession in Galashiels and Longhauch at Pasch last that there was 'no paction, borrowing, buying nor selling betuixt the persewar and defender,' but she alleged she had a bond from the pursuer for 100 merks 'and alledgit it wes stollen from hir with severall cloaths.' James Hay in Cairthramylne depones he knows nothing anent the granting of the first and last bond or threats of caption, but Janet Hendersone declared before him and several others in Langhauch at Pasch last 'scho had never nather borrowing nor buying or uthers with James Browne.' James Moffit in Galashiels depones as the last. The judge 'finds no clearnes be the depositions of the witnesses examined that the sowme contained in the first band wes realie payed in money or utherwayes be the persewers father John Brown beffor his deceise to the defender Jeanet Henderson conforme to the discharge grantit be hir to him as wes offerit to be proven,' so ordains her to depone whether the sum was paid or whether her discharge was granted upon the renewing of the bond by the complainer. She depones it was never paid but is yet owing 'and wes resting att the tyme of the discharge.' Absolves defender, and ordains to put the bond in execution.

Complaint by Andrew Chisholme, portioner of Darnick, John Moss, elder and younger, portioners there, James Symson there, Andrew Merse, Baitsehill, Andrew Merse, 'Poole,' for themselves and the rest of the feuars 'of the quarter callit Coat yairds in Dernick,' against John Stenhous, servitor to Margaret Eilleis in Melrose, who in September last was apprehended 'cutting and away takeing severall young oakes, sauchs, allars and hissell, and barke therof,' and ought to be fined for cutting greenwood and repay the price of the wood removed. They crave act of court for preventing the like in future 'both in that or onie uther part of the grund and als for the broome and uther fewall.'—'Grantis ane act under fyve merks, the on half to the partie and the uther to the judge.'

Act anent cutting of greenwood or broom in Darnick.

Christian Maben, spouse to James Mertoun in West-houses, sues Thomas Bowie in Melrose for 3*l.* 18*s.* as balance of his fee for harvesting in 1660. Decerns as confessed.

Maben v Bowie.

Melrose, 30th November 1661, Gideon Jackson

Act in favour of William Fisher for pasturing through his meadows.

Complaint by William Fischer, portioner of Dernick, that several persons 'both men and women and uthers in Melrose and Dernick' make common roads and passages both on horse and foot, in summer and in winter, through his ground in Darnick called the Braidmeadow, to his prejudice; and he desired act of court. The bailie fines each person found 'pastureing throw the Braidmeadow' in future in 2 s., half to the owner of the ground and half to the bailie. To be published at the market cross of Melrose.

Melrose, 7th December 1661, Gideon Jackson

Hastie v.
Garland.

Andrew Garland in Clarilaw complains that Margaret Heastie in Lessudden has wrongfully 'ledd and away taken tenscoir of cartfull of fuill pertaining to ane house that the complinar had taken from Mr. John Greive, price of each kairtfull 40 d.' Mr. John Greive declares the 'fouill' pertained to the defender. Absolves.

Pringle v.
Moffat.

John Pringill in Threipwood sues John Moffit, son of Archibald Moffett in Threipwood, for 5 l. for grass mail, promised at Lammas last, and 14 s. paid out by the complainer for him to Isobel Smith. Decerns as confessed.

Fisher v.
Cairncross.

William Fischer, fiar of Housbyre, sues William Cairncrose of Allenschawis for 20 l. Scots as the agreed-on price of a black mare bought at Midsummer two or three years ago, at least 12 l. [12 s.] of balance. Decerns as confessed, pursuer declaring 12 l. 12 s. yet due; expenses, 13 s. 4 d.

Mein v.
Rankin.

Robert Meine, elder, mason in Newsteid, sues Margaret Rankeine, wife of John Maben in Coblehouse, for 13 l. Scots as the agreed-on price of 13 small fulls of malt at 10 l. the boll, bought in June last. Decerns conform to the libel.

Melrose, 28th December 1661, Gideon Jackson

Robert Meine in Gattounside sues Agnes Darling, wife of Robert Ormstoune, for 10 l. Scots as the agreed-on price of certain malt bought from him at Martinmas 1660. Decerns ‘ut supra.’ Mein v.
Darling.

John Fischer of Westerhousbyre sues John Notman in Colmslie for 27 l. 2 s. as balance of price of oats, payment whereof was promised at Whitsunday last. Decerns as confessed, defender absent. Fisher v.
Notman.

Robert Meine, younger, sues Thomas Willson for 3 l. 7 s. 6 d. for meal, and 8 s. for a thrieve of straw, and 6 s. for a day’s work. Admitted to pursuer’s oath, who depones as above. Principal, 4 l. 1 s. 6 d. ; expenses 6 s. Mein v.
Wilson.

Mr. Hew Elphingstoune in Galashiels, executor confirmed to Thomas Elphingstoune there, his father, sues Alexander Reidpeth in Melrose for 7 l. contained in his father’s testament. Decerns upon production of the testament. Elphinstone v.
Redpath.

R U L E S

1. THE object of the Society is the discovery and printing, under selected editorship, of unpublished documents illustrative of the civil, religious, and social history of Scotland. The Society will also undertake, in exceptional cases, to issue translations of printed works of a similar nature, which have not hitherto been accessible in English.

2. The number of Members of the Society shall be limited to 400.

3. The affairs of the Society shall be managed by a Council, consisting of a Chairman, Treasurer, Secretary, and twelve elected Members, five to make a quorum. Three of the twelve elected Members shall retire annually by ballot, but they shall be eligible for re-election.

4. The Annual Subscription to the Society shall be One Guinea. The publications of the Society shall not be delivered to any Member whose Subscription is in arrear, and no Member shall be permitted to receive more than one copy of the Society's publications.

5. The Society will undertake the issue of its own publications, i.e. without the intervention of a publisher or any other paid agent.

6. The Society will issue yearly two octavo volumes of about 320 pages each.

7. An Annual General Meeting of the Society shall be held at the end of October, or at an approximate date to be determined by the Council.

8. Two stated Meetings of the Council shall be held each year, one on the last Tuesday of May, the other on the Tuesday preceding the day upon which the Annual General Meeting shall be held. The Secretary, on the request of three Members of the Council, shall call a special meeting of the Council.

9. Editors shall receive 20 copies of each volume they edit for the Society.

10. The owners of Manuscripts published by the Society will also be presented with a certain number of copies.

11. The Annual Balance-Sheet, Rules, and List of Members shall be printed.

12. No alteration shall be made in these Rules except at a General Meeting of the Society. A fortnight's notice of any alteration to be proposed shall be given to the Members of the Council.

REPORT OF THE TWENTY-SIXTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SCOTTISH HISTORY SOCIETY

THE TWENTY-SIXTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SOCIETY was held in Dowell's Rooms, Edinburgh, on Saturday, 30th November 1912,—Professor Rankine in the chair.

The SECRETARY read the Report of the Council as follows :—

During the past year seventeen members have died, and six have resigned.

The filling up of vacancies has exhausted the list of applicants for Membership.

The volumes issued since last General Meeting are :—

1. The Household Book of Lady Grisell Baillie, edited by R. Scott-Moncrieff.

2. Seafield Correspondence from 1685 to 1708, edited by James Grant, LL.B.

These form part of the issue for 1909-1910. The other book promised for that year, Miscellaneous Narratives relating to the '45, is not quite ready for issue, but is expected shortly to be in the hands of the index-maker.

The first issue for 1910-1911, Accounts of the Chamberlains and Granitars of Cardinal David Beaton, is in type, the preface is at press, and the index in preparation. The other, Bailie John Steuart's Letter-Book, has been delayed by other engagements of its learned editor, but he hopes to send it to press before long.

For 1911-1912, Wariston's Diary, volume ii., is at press ; as is also a volume of Miscellaneous Documents relating chiefly to the Highlands, from the Gregory MSS. and other sources, edited by J. R. N. Macphail, K.C., which it is proposed to issue for that year instead of the third volume of the Society's Miscellany.

For the year 1912-1913 it is proposed to issue—

1. Records of the Earldom of Orkney, edited by J. Storer Clouston.

2. Selections from the Court Books of the Regality of Melrose, edited by C. S. Romanes, C.A.

The preparation of the General Index to the first series of the Society's publications, a laborious undertaking, is making good progress.

It will be seen that the work of the Society is still seriously in arrear. But there is good ground to anticipate that more rapid progress will be made during 1912-1913.

The Members of Council retiring by rotation are Sheriff Scott-Moncrieff, Professor Hume Brown, and Mr. W. K. Dickson. It is recommended that the two latter be re-elected, and the remaining vacancy filled up by the appointment of Mr. J. R. N. Macphail, K.C.

The Accounts of the Hon. Treasurer, of which an abstract is appended hereto, show that the balance in the Society's favour on 10th November 1911 was £643, 1s. 3d., the income for 1911-1912, £541, 12s. 4d., the expenditure, £334, 6s. 7d., and the credit balance on 11th November 1912, £850, 7s.

In moving the adoption of the report, the Chairman expressed the hope that good progress would be made to overtake the arrears of the present year. With regard to the future, he could not speak personally about 'Bailie John Steuart's Letter Book,' and had only slight knowledge of 'Wariston's Diary.' Of the other books mentioned, two had been put in his hands, both most interesting, of which, perhaps, a little should be said. One of them was 'The Accounts of the Chamberlains and Granitars of Cardinal David Beaton.' The introduction he had found to be of great interest. It was an account of the state of the heritable property of the Archbishops of St. Andrews just shortly before the Reformation. The other book was to him of still greater interest. It was entitled Miscellaneous Narratives Relating to the Forty-five, but Mr. Blaikie had told him the title of the book was to be Origins of the Forty-five and other Narratives connected with the Last Jacobite Rising. The first item in the volume was a set of somewhat mutilated papers written by John Murray of Broughton, secretary to Prince Charles, which were picked up after Culloden. They were of much earlier date than the papers edited for the Society by Mr. Fitzroy Bell, and by means of them, supplemented by documents in the French Foreign Office, Mr. Blaikie had been able to explain the somewhat obscure plottings that took place in Great Britain and the Continent between the years 1737 and 1744. This was followed by contemporary memoirs written by parish ministers, one describing the Highlands at the epoch of the rising; a second gave an account, with many details nowhere else recorded, of what happened in Ross and Sutherland; and the third gave an account of the rising in Aberdeenshire, with a great amount of detail, which should be particularly interesting to many families still existing in Aberdeenshire, for so much information about their predecessors. A narrative of John Daniel, an Englishman and a captain in the Prince's Life Guards, was printed from an MS. belonging to Lord Ancaster. This narrative had been occasionally referred to by historical writers on the '45, but had never before been printed, and was full of interest. Then came the story of Neil Maceachain, the father of Maréchal Macdonald, Duke of Tarentum, Napoleon's General. Maceachain had been placed by Clanranald in the service of Prince Charles during the time he was concealed in the Outer Hebrides. It was he who guided the Prince on some of his tramps, and also accompanied him and Flora Macdonald 'over the seas to Skye.' Maceachain told the story of Prince Charles's doings from the time he arrived in Benbecula, eleven days after the Battle of Culloden, until his arrival in Skye with Flora Macdonald two months later. There was also a long account of the conduct of the Laird of Grant, which was really an apology for his somewhat dubious attitude during the rising. This was followed by a narrative of sundry services performed and expenses incurred by Walter Grosett, who was in the secret service of the Government; it gave, in great detail, interesting events connected with Edinburgh from September 1745 until the arrival of the Duke of Cumberland. The last paper in the volume was in some ways the most interesting. It was the official report of the Marquis d'Eguilles, the envoy sent by Louis xv. to Prince Charles, and who accompanied him throughout the whole expedition, and became prisoner of war after Culloden. As this report was addressed personally to the French King it was of great historical value. Perhaps the most interesting item in the report was that in which the envoy described his interview with Prince Charles on the eve of Culloden, and it set at rest for ever the historical dispute, which much embittered Jacobites at the time, as to who was responsible for fighting that action. D'Eguilles informed us that it was Prince Charles himself, who, scorning to turn his back on the Duke of Cumberland for a single day, determined to fight the battle in spite of all advice from his followers.

The report was adopted, and a vote of thanks given to the Chairman.
